"Slipping through the door of the police station and dodging up the alley in the rear of the city hall, Robert Carson, arrested Tuesday night following his attempt to burglarize the McMurdo home near Jackson Hot Springs, last night escaped custody here," says the Ashland Tidings. "Despite an intensive search, no trace has been found of the fugitive as yet. Carson had been held in the city jail for more than 30 hours without a complaint being filed against him, while the legal limit is 24 hours. The police were doubtful of their ability to hold him, even though he should have been recaptured. The fugitive, when arrested Tuesday night, admitted that he was wanted in Dayton, Ohio, for the theft of an automobile."
