Col. Lindbergh yesterday was awarded $25,000, which is a guarantee that he will not have to eat his hand of medals when he grows old.

A drunken driver who crashed into a pedestrian and killed him, reports "I do not remember. Neither does the pedestrian."

Mary Garden, beautiful and buxom grand opera star, has been assured by the Portland press that on her second visit to the metropolis, Mayor George Baker will not get fresh and kiss her, as he did on her first visit.

The womenfolk are striving mightily to complete their spring housecleaning in time to do it all over again after the coming season.

THE WOMEN'S QUERY? "Sentie holding a new flag" is the title of a cartoon showing a pair of trousers being run up over the Seattle city hall.

It is highly probable, that Will H. Hays, of old scandal notoriety, will not be re-elected moderator of the Presbyterian church, after a notice speech extolling the success of Prohibition enforcement, and his cleaning of the movie world.

Citizens who attended the basketball tournament are recovering, and many of them are now able to tell the trill of a lark, from the beat of the referee's whistle.

"I had a delightful evening," he said, as he hit her good-night. (SF. Bulletin.) Perils of necking.

PANCAKES UNPALATABLE—(Household Hints, Portland Telegram.) That's not news.

Nothing can be done about motor freight lines using carriers the size of an Eagle Point barn, but the public can be thankful the aristocrats of the highways have never thought of modelling their vehicles after windmills.

Youth is back from the campus. Occasionally a collegian forgets him or her self, and mentions their fraternity house, in an off-hand manner.

The Bill Warner kid is fooling around the edges of the social melstrom.

There are several cases of premature spring fever.

Correction: It was announced in these parts ten days ago that Dock Picket had cut his veteran pipe from his will. He was praised for his will power. At the time it was not known that he had switched to cigarettes and chewing gum.

JOURNALISTIC SMARTNESS... Last night a large man with a squint in his eye came into this office and inquired if the editor was in. We were alone, and he was an exceedingly large man—and there was a certain nervousness about his manner of speech that we didn't like. So we said the editor wasn't in, but we would step down stairs and call him. He dropped in a chair, and we went down stairs. On the stairs we met another very large man, who had the same nervousness of speech. He wanted to know if the editor was upstairs. We told him the editor was upstairs reading a paper and was exceedingly cross. He went into the office—and a few moments later the most terrific fight we ever heard about began. (Atchison Globe.)

Sour food causes Bad Breath... This digestive treatment stops bad breath, soothes sore throats, relieves heartburn, and cleanses the system.

A FOOLISH PERFORMANCE

THE attempt to involve the Democrats in this oil scandal by dragging in Al Smith is, to say the least, a feeble one.

Even assuming Senator Robinson is correct, and Sinclair did contribute money to the Smith campaign fund, to which he secured a position on the New York racing commission, such action would not reflect upon the integrity of either man.

For many years, wealthy men like Sinclair have contributed to the coffers of both major parties. Many of the large corporations have done likewise, as the investigation of the senatorial campaign in Illinois demonstrated.

In return, heavy contributors are often remembered in subsequent executive appointments. It is all a recognized part of the political game and, while somewhat sordid, involves no moral turpitude.

Putting the worst construction possible upon the alleged Smith transaction and the best possible construction upon the Teapot Dome deal, they still remain as far apart as the poles, when viewed from the standpoint of common honesty and fair dealing.

It was not Sinclair's contribution to the Republican campaign but what that contribution involved, which has so aroused, and rightly aroused, the indignation of public men like Senator Borah.

We don't believe the leaders of the Republican party were actually implicated in this crooked transaction. When all the facts are in and a proper perspective attained, we feel confident it will be shown that but one member of the Harding administration was in on the deal and personally profited by it—in other words, the crime was a personal, not a party matter.

But the fact remains the deal was made, the money paid, and as the principal culprit was a member of a Republican cabinet, the Republican party cannot escape a certain moral responsibility.

The Democratic party, not being in power, cannot be involved; and any attempt like this one of Senator Robinson to drag in Al Smith is silly and childish.

QUILL POINTS

Woman inferior? Well, which sex clings to garments that must be buttoned in seventeen places every morning?

You can tell a sport model at a glance. It has nine colors instead of seven.

If he thinks he works too hard, he's probably one of these low-gear chaps who takes 14 hours to do eight hours' work.

People don't believe all they read. Sometimes the headlines aren't large enough to be convincing.

Correct this sentence: "Lie still, dear," said he, "I think I can stop its crying and get it to sleep again."

If money getting is a success, every man is a failure. No man has yet got all of it.

All the white man wants to do in the Orient is to take orders and give orders.

Americanism: An uneasy feeling that the man who is courteous has something up his sleeve.

If you can see the good and evil in both sides, the one way to avoid being hated by both sides is to keep your mouth shut.

Some people can decide quickly and tell what they want, and others just give up and say, "Ham and Eggs."

Correct this sentence: "We found a good program," said he, "and kept the same station all evening."

When the poor go to a party, they have one advantage. If you haven't changed attire, you don't mind changing a tire.

Tact is the ability to arrange the activities of a woman's club without throwing together the women who are made at one another.

Hurrah! Dizzy Vance says a game of golf takes off 12 pounds, so now you'll know where the wife is if she isn't at home.

Correct this sentence: "I had an invitation to a bridge today," said the wife, "but I declined it because I had my mind to do."

Columbus came again. "Women are still painted," he mused; "still almost nude; still delimiting in beads; still savage after all these years!"

Pictures help a news story or fiction, but a success magazine's article of the How-I-became so wonderful type would be a lot more impressive without the portrait.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received, only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this newspaper.

THE PHYSIOLOGY OF CHRONIC RHINITIS

A good doctor is a prophet, honor be to him. He is not without honor on earth. In his own country and in his own house, abroad he may amiablely venture a guess as to what all a casual acquaintance or what's good for him, but in his own country he wisely refrains from this sort of a "bum doctor" consequently he is a "bum doctor."

To suggest any remedy whatsoever for simple chronic rhinitis is a thing a good doctor certainly does not attempt in his own country unless he has first had a look up at the site or source of trouble. Aside from the unwieldy use of blind guesswork, this smacks much too much of that most ridiculous form of quackery, "catarrh" speculation. Further warning about the remedies I am going to suggest, will not be needed by folks who know me—they won't use them anyway.

Twenty years ago a patient with the hardihood to present himself in a successful doctor's office with a complaint of constant or intermittent obstruction or stoppage of one or both nostrils then and there I was able for his temerity, to send him to the fringed surgery, and turbinate or spongy bodies were hacked sawed or pared out of the nasal cavity literally by the bushel. The "ordinary" doctor or the nose and throat specialist who hesitated about "removing a bone" from any such patient was a piker, and no body knew that better than the patient. You see, the use of a hot iron, or something made a hole through the clogged passage so that the patient was certain to obtain immediate relief at least to the obstruction or breathing, and for six months or so everything was fine and dandy, but then the victims of the operation seemed to begin to realize that the turbinated or spongy body serves a function. I function very few schoolboys know, because physiology isn't regarded seriously by our educational authorities.

Let us inject a bit of elementary physiology here even though it take the space we intended to use to suggest a simple home treatment. The turbinated or spongy bodies are three shelves placed along the outer wall of each nasal passage, having a thin bony base or root, and a thin covering of mucous membrane with a rich network of blood vessels in it. These turbinates serve a double purpose, being both radiators and humidifiers. As radiators they are more efficient than any radiator devised by man, for they warm up all the air entering through the nose from whatever temperature the outside air may have to approximately 98 degrees F., as it enters the windpipe. And besides they add to the excessively arid atmosphere most indoor dwellers breathe most of the time, sufficient moisture to prevent irritation of the throat, larynx, bronchus or lungs by the air. Obviously the turbinates have their work cut out for them. Age and piled up certain doctors or health authorities who belittle the idea of using humidifiers to maintain a wholesome degree of humidity in the living rooms, sleep or office, betray their unfamiliarity with this bit of physiology that's all. Any kind of fairly efficient humidifiers, other than automatic systems built in, necessarily will be more or less a nuisance, to attend and keep at work, but anyone who appreciates health and comfort will gladly pay each a price for the boon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS... Carrots Turned Skin Yellow... A reader has taken a great fancy to raw carrots. She eats them as a relish, or three times a day. The palms of her hands have become quite yellow. Can this be from the coloring matter in the carrots? Her complexion is a fine yellow too, but her skin is quite free from eruptions since she has taken to raw carrots and celery and greens, with less meat than she formerly ate. (G. M. D.)

Answer:—Give in carrots often causes a yellow staining of the horny epithelium of the soles, palms or other places where callus or thickened skin occurs. This is harmless. The general skin will not become yellow. The habit of eating such raw vegetables daily is a healthful one. The stain will disappear soon after the carrots do. I wish I could suggest that raw beets will give the complexion a beautiful rosy tint, but they will not. Some ladies declare that best juice is a fine rouge, however.

Ask Me No Questions and I'll Tell No Lies... I ask what you think of the secret smoking of women and girls. Do you think it will affect the health of the unborn child if a prospective mother smokes? Don't answer if you are in favor of women smoking, as I should hate to see anything printed in its favor. (Mrs. A. A. B.)

Answer:—I am not in favor of men or women smoking, but I think it is no more harmful to men than it is to women. I believe the health of the unborn child is injured if the expectant mother smokes, though some doctors tell patients they may smoke.

Gas Is Air... My baby, two months old, suffers from gas on her stomach all the time. One doctor advised giving enemata. (Mrs. M. A. H.)

Answer:—Usually it is just air swallowed by the baby in nursing. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for nursing the baby. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

A mother's first duty is to her family at home. After that it's nobility's business how she brandishes her knees. It must be awful to be rich, and have nothin' to look forward to but the result of some murder trial, or gettin' all lit up again.

Rippling Rhymes

(By Walt Mason)

THE CHEERING WORD... Encouragement is what men need if they would prosper and succeed; and so I say to Jasper Jiggs, when I behold him greasing pigs, "It's wonderful how well you do the useful task you now pursue. I've seen pigs greased in many lands by men considered master hands. I've seen them greased by graduates of famous schools in foreign states, but no one's ever shown such skill. I think that no one ever will." Old Jasper's toil began to lark, for greasing pigs is grievous work; and careless men observe his smoke and greet his efforts with a joke. The children jeer at Jasper Jiggs and wonder why he's greasing pigs. At village fairs and kindred shows a prize of heavy value goes, to that contestant who can hold the well greased pig, as we've been told. Pigs must be greased from snout to tail for this time-honored sport would fail, and so to Jasper I remark, as by his greasing booth, park, "Your skill is wonderful, old scout, you have no equals hereabout! Crowned heads and jurists wearing wigs, and ears should see you greasing pigs!" His weary face lights up at this, his spirit knows a thrill of bliss. He feels there's some one, safe and sane, who knows his toil is not in vain, detects his artistry and sees his belly isn't full of bees. He is inspired to efforts fine, and turns out lubricated swine so much superior to those of his competitors and foes, to those he's turned out in the past, the great art critics stand aghast. A little word inspires a man to do the very best he can.

ton in the minds of many people, as to where that moonshine went. And also the question arises as to whether it helped to fire those seven shots at an unarmed man. These questions will not down. And if prohibition enforcement is carried on in this manner, it won't be very long until the prohibition law will be repealed.

We have a great deal said against capital punishment, yet many people who say they do not believe in capital punishment are loud in their praise of an officer who deliberately kills an unarmed man.

But there is a higher court where blood must be atoned for—the voice of the brother's blood crieth from the ground. Yet some even dare to say there is no salvation for a bootlegger. Well, there may be some surprises when the reformers must stand with bootleggers before the judgment bar of God. And there will be no hoodwinking the court on that day.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidney. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often averting serious kidney disorders.
