

O. S. C. CONCERT ARMORY PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

Oregon "mist" does not stop the Oregon State college military cadet band from scheduling its parade, as was witnessed here yesterday afternoon. Members of the band say that each of the three times they have appeared in parade on their tour thus far it has rained.

The band played its concert before a large and enthusiastic audience in the Armory last night at eight o'clock. The concert was followed by a "never-to-be-forgotten" dance, also in the armory. The music furnished by the eight-piece band orchestra was of a type that is typical of the "peppy" college from which it came.

The saxophone quartet made a decided "hit" with the audience and was called back three times for encores. Special mention must be made of Raymond Cooney, soloist who played a trumpet solo, "Stars in Velvet Sky" by Clarke, and of Navarre Dunn in a slide trombone solo, "The Favorite" by Hartmann. The audience was pleased with the solos sung by Theodore Gilbert, a pupil of Paul Petri, director of music at the college, as was shown by the applause he received after each selection.

These tours of the band are entirely self-supporting as is made possible by the concerts and dances, given in the evenings. Alumni of O. S. C. and the Oregon National Guards helped in making arrangements for the band's appearance. The band has appeared in Medford for the last 18 years, and plans are now under way to bring it back for another appearance four years from now. "Sidelights on O. S. C.," a moving picture of the college work and activities, was featured on the program during the intermission of the concert. Concerts were played before large audiences at Roseburg Thursday night and at Glendale Friday night. It is reported that one of the largest crowds ever attending a dance presented by a university or college was on hand at the Roseburg dance.

With olive drab military uniforms complete to leather leggings and orange-lined capes, the band presented an appearance that is in harmony with the quality of music it plays. Drilled to march with precision and led by an experienced drum major, the band received much favorable comment from the towns visited on its 1200-mile trip into eastern Oregon last year. A large number of persons from southern Oregon, who attended the U. of O. S. C. football game at Eugene were particularly impressed with the music played and the training shown by the band, according to reports received by Captain H. L. Beard, director.

Compared with college bands of the Pacific coast in training, appearance and strength, the band is said to rate as one of the very best. One of the two chapters of the national honorary band fraternity, Kappa Kappa Psi, granted to institutions west of the Rocky Mountains is at the college.

Every spring during the vacation the band makes a concert tour of the state of Oregon together with parts of the neighboring states. Four routes are planned out of the state and the trip is made over each one every four years. If a student plays in the band for the four years of his college career he may see the entire state of Oregon.

VALLEY DEMOCRATS SEEING RAINBOW

Enthusiasm was expressed by W. E. "Judge" Crews, former corporation commissioner, and prominent local democrat over Democrats line-up throughout the state prior to the election of delegates to the Democratic convention in Houston June 27. Mr. Crews, who is a member of committee of 100, which rules the Smith-for-President association in the state expressed himself as being particularly proud of the representation from the First congressional district, which takes in Jackson county and the territory as far north as Salem.

W. H. Canon, former mayor of Medford and well known Jackson county resident representing this section of the district, while Dan Frye, pioneer druggist of Salem, has filed from the northern section. As it now stands they are the only candidates from the first district to be represented in the primaries May 18.

Although declaring that Al Smith is their first choice, both candidates expressed a willingness to be governed by the choice expressed by the Democratic voters on May 18.

MR. PATTON DENIES THAT HE FAINTED

Mr. Owey J. Patton who is convalescing from a severe bilious or indigestion attack, while tottering around down town on feeble legs yesterday in quest of a long needed shave at a barber shop, it seems takes serious exception to the statement published in the Mail Tribune of his sudden illness in which it was said that he fainted and fell in a restaurant.

He says he did not faint, nor has history recorded an instance of any other Irishman ever having fainted—says that he was just sick at his stomach, discerned the restaurant and waiters floating around, and that a citizen seeing his plight at once took him home in a car.

Be that as it may, the Mail Tribune gladly publishes a correction that Mr. Patton did not faint. It is now understood that the sight of food made him groggy, he gasped, and passed out in some manner other than the fainting route, and came to in his room at the Dr. J. E. Reddy home on Oakdale avenue, where he has since been deluged with beautiful bouquets from well-wishers, light artistic foods befitting his condition, and with calls from anxious friends.

To some of these friends last Thursday night, Owey in relating the intimate details of his sudden illness, in his inimitable manner told of being rushed to his room. "Next thing I knew there was Doc, Hayes in the room," said Owey, "and Doc he applies a stomach pump to my arm, feeds me a bucket of castor oil and a ton or two of epsom salts."

Here the telling of Owey's story is interrupted by the censor. Suffice it to say that he hopes to be back tomorrow performing his duties as circulation manager of the Mail Tribune.

PRIVATE PEAT TO LECTURE TUESDAY

On Tuesday, March 27, at one o'clock Harold R. Peat, internationally known as "Private Peat," will appear before the student body of the Medford high school in his famous lecture "The Inexcusable Lie." "Private Peat" is a young Canadian who became a hero during the World War and has climbed to the top of the ladder in the lecture field in the past ten years.

His remarkable lecture, "The Inexcusable Lie," is a stirring appeal for understanding peace and harmony among the nations. Although he conspicuously served his country in the World War, "Private Peat" does not believe in warfare as a means of adjusting differences, but points to more sane and peaceful methods of settling trying situations and insuring permanent peace.

LICENSE BUSINESS OF COUNTY GROWS

"Sometimes, I hardly know what to do, business has increased so since we moved from Jacksonville," said Olga Anderson, clerk at the sheriff's office last evening shortly after having issued a large number of temporary auto licenses to motorists from all parts of Jackson county.

"Just seems as if business is growing and growing," she continued, "for now we issue two licenses to the one we used to issue at the old court house over in Jacksonville. I guess there's getting to be more automobiles in the county or there's an awful lot of new people coming in."

Myron F. Sheets, the carrier of rural route No. 1, returns to duty tomorrow, following a week's vacation during which Harold N. Fisk, substitute rural route carrier of the local postoffice, and who is a student at the University of Oregon, spent the spring vacation period in carrying the route.
