The joy of Easter, with its glad music, its beauty and wealth of color of flowers, and the quickening spirit it typifies of new life and growth will rise in adoration today from the churches and homes throughout the Christian world.

Easter signalizes the formal dawning of springtime. Winter is at an end, the trees and flowers are putting forth buds and blossoms, and there is balm in the air and in the hearts of those who have been leading a life of fasting for the past six weeks.

Society has been very quiet this past month, but a number of luncheons, dances and other affairs have been planned for the near future.

City Council Have Meeting.

Anyone who doubts that this is the "Age of the Child" should have attended the City council last Monday afternoon at the Junior high.

The regular reports from the various schools are in themselves testimonials to the fine child-welfare and parent education work being done by each association.

Representatives from several city organizations presented various plans which have to do directly with the good of the child. The Jackson County Humane association was represented by Mrs. Bert Anderson and Mrs. Sid Richardson. The talks caused much interest among the parents and teachers who approve of the plans outlined by this new organization.

Mrs. Josephine Jones gave an interesting sketch of the coming May festival in which the children who are on the Health Honor Roll will have a prominent part.

These meetings are always open to the public.

Wednesday Study Club Have Interesting Meeting.

A pleasing change was made in the Wednesday Study club's program on April 4th, when Mrs. E. B. Pickel reviewed a new book "Black Valley" by Hugo West. The author is a South American and the scene of the story is Black Valley, Argentina. The charm of childhood; the strength and weakness of the different characters; and the joy and pathos of the romance were all delightfully presented by Mrs. Pickel.

Mrs. J. O. Grey's paper followed the development of Journalism in Latin-America, through the early struggles for a free press, to the present time, when Latin-American publications take rank with the best in the wordl.

Mrs. J. H. Carkins' talk on "Astronomy" was unusually instructive and enjoyable and the carefully prepared charts, showing the relative positions of the constellations, etc. helped to give a clearer understanding of this interesting subject.

Everyone was pleased to welcome Mrs. P. O. Crawford, a former member of the club, as guest.

The next meeting will be on April 18th.

Ashland--Pratt Art School Here During Summer

The programs for the Ashland-Pratt Art summer school, July 9-August 11, have been received here. The outstanding member of the faculty this year, aside from the head of the school, Miss Belle Cady White, will be Edgar Bohiman, a former student of Jane Snedicor, who taught him for two years and then secured for him a year's scholarship in the Portland Art institute. He afterward graduated from the state university of Eugene. Since then he has taken a course in the Cornish school in Seattle on another scholarship, while another scholarship took him to the American Laboratory theater in New York City, afterward becoming assistant to Dean Throckmorton. Last summer he traveled in Europe with a passport which permitted him to visit any and every theater in Europe. Last fall he returned and became assistant director of the Baltimore and Ohio centenary pageant. At present he is designing several operas for the American Opera company.

Those who knew Pres. and Mrs. Campbell of Eugene will be interested in knowing that his first stages were decorated in their home as he and Jane Campbell played together with the puppet stages, and that it was through Mrs. Campbell that Jane Snedicor became interested in him.

Ray Gill Speaker Medford Garden Club.

The Medford Garden club held a meeting at the Medford Hotel Wednesday, April 4th. Thirty members of the club were present and all others would have been had they realized the treat in store for them in the lecture given by Mr. Ray Gill of Portland on soil preparation and fertilizers. He prefaced his remarks by calling attention to the fact that the Garden club is a wonderful asset to a city and that since these Garden clubs have been formed a decided improvement in Oregon cities had been made. He suggested that it would be worth while to members to stop long enough to recognize the business possibilities created by the friendly atmosphere of beautiful flowers.

He cited Portland, Oregon and Victoria, B. C. as samples of what can be done along that line. Then he launched into the main subject of fertilizers, classifying them and telling how to use them; what kinds of grass to use for lawns and how to improve those already made. Dahlia catalogues were distributed and these also contained information on fertilizers and formulas of lawn seed.

A letter was read at this meeting from the Chairman of the State Bill Board Committee, Mrs. G. B. Fowler. This committee wishes to call the attention of the public upon the unnecessary use of bill boards which make our landscape unsilghtly. It is also interesting to know the this year Portland is asking all Garden clubs of the state to place an exhibit of any kind of flowers desired at the Rose festival in June.

The membership does not warrant the club here going to this expense so if Medford people want Medford to go on the map in Portland and show them our roses are just as good as theirs. An invitation is extended to all interested to join this club. The club also wants Medford people to know that the little town of Shasta City, in California has entered upon a campaign of beautifying the town—they have adopted the Shasta Daisy as their city flower and the people have come forward with so many prizes that the committee hardly knows what to do with them. A florist in Niles, California has offered two hundred roses as a prize. The campaign begins in earnest next week and any garbage and unsightly refuse will be removed in trucks accompanied by a band. If a little place like Shasta City can do this, why can't Medford to it, too? and incidentally we are also on the Highway.

A large number of officers and members were in attendance Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of Talisman Temple No. 40, Pythian Sisters, in the Knights of Pythias Hall, on West Main street.

Many representatives from the four temples of District No. 4, will be in attendance. These are Umpqua Temle of Roseburg, Thermopolylac Temple of Grants Pass, Mt. Ashland Temple of Ashland, and Talisman Temple of Medford. Present plans also include a visit from the grand chief, Sister Leo Ballagh of St. Helens, at this time.

Piano and Dance Recital Event of the Week

The recital hall in the Sparta building was full to overflowing Friday night, when Miss Alice Marie Holmback and Miss Ruth Lur, two of Medford's talented young teachers, presented their pupils in recital. The piano pupils wer eall young, many in their first year of study, but pleased and interested by the correctness of their technique and the evident musical understanding of their selections. It is rare indeed to hear little children phrase, memorize and interpret simple but beautiful music so well.

The costuming and ensemble of the dances were charming and the children are receiving valuable training in the fundamentals of the terpsichorean art. Solo dances were performed by Miss Lantis, Miss Chord and the Misses Logan.

Miss Ruth Warner Has Wonderful Trip.

Miss Warner's first stop was at San Francisco where she visited her aunt, Mrs. E. N. Warner, a sister, next at Saguache, near Denver Colorado where she visited Dr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Pugh. Mrs. Pugh will be remembered by her many Medford friends as Miss Esther Warner.

At Oklahoma City she was met by Mr. and Mrs. Fleming, formerly Miss Mildred Swearingen with whom she had a delightful visit.

From Denver she proceeded to Washington, D. C. where she had a most instructive and delightful stay visiting all prominent places of interest in the "City Beautiful" being especially impressed with the neat, well kept appearance of our national capital.

On arriving at New York City she went to the Biltmore hotel where she found her baggage waiting for her—owing to the thoughtful and careful planning of Mr. Spurgeon the efficient S. P. ticket agent in Medford who routed her ticket, arranged for hotels and furnished her with general information, that added greatly to her comfort and pleasure.

On Sunday she enjoyed a good service at a Presbyterian church near by the hotel.

During the remainder of her stay in New York City Miss Warner was a guest of Mrs. Guy Palmer, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Geo. Anderson of Medford. A sister of Harold Corliss, Mrs. Andrews entertained her at lunch at one of the well known "Alice Foote Dougall's" select cafes and she was invited to visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carpenter whom she hopes to visit on her return when she will make a longer stay in the great metropolis.

Sailing at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday February 7th, she awoke next morning to find herself well out at sea on the beautiful steam ship Doric, one of the newest ships on the Atlantic, launched at Belfast in 1923. It is 601 feet long, 67½ feet wide; tonnage 16,500 tons; carries two thousand passengers, besides the crew of 402 people. On this trip, however, only about 500 passengers are aboard in order to facilitate the pleasure of those taking the entire trip.

The captain, Samuel Bolten is a seaman with a worthy history having gone to sea at the age of twelve, rising through many hardships and interesting experiences, having been decorated during the World war for bravery, and now Captain of a splendid English vessel on the White Star line, which travels 16 knots per hour and offers all the comforts of the finest home to the passengers which she carries.

Ruth experienced six days seasickness going over, which wasn't so "good."

After the unpleasant experience however, she felt good as new and as the ship carried an unusually fine orchestra she found a place at once among the musical element on board, thanks to some kind friend who let it be known to a friend on board, that Ruth had musical ability. Consequently, she has done much singing enroute both in the orchestra and the Sunday evening services.

After a wonderful ten-day voyage thme Doric docked at Fanchal, Maderia, February 16th, then on to Gibralter, stopping at the city by the same name, Algiers, Tunis, Malta Island, Athens, Constantinople, Bierut, where they could not land on account of small pox, Haifu, Palestine and cities bordering upon the sea of Galilee, Nazareth, Jericho and Jerusalem going south to Port Said, Cairo and Alexandria in Egypt—(falling in love with Cairo). At Mt. Carmel she said the view was more like the Rogue River valley than any thing she saw on the whole trip.

Next they sailed north ti Sicily, stopping at Sarncuse, Naples, Rome in Italy, Monte Carlo and thence to Paris and Liverpool where they spent two weeks before returning to her own country and expect to arrive at New York City April 10th.

Among other things enjoyed she speaks of lectures, on the boat enroute, concerning countries to be visited as being of special educational value, the kindness and friendliness of people she met, how her journey was made pleasant during the whole voyage by friends—and every point of interest and pleasure being of far greater intensity than she had ever in her wildest dreams conceived it could be. To her it has meant more than "Visions Realized". She says the trip from Medford to New York alone more than repaid her for the expense of the entire ticket.

For the whole trip she has not one word of criticism—only praise and appreciation.

Her plans for returning to Medford are at present uncertain but no doubt she will be back some time because of her mother and her many interests here.

Women's Missionary Society Have Meeting.

The Women's Missionary society of the Christian church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Andrews on Vancouver avenue on Tuesday, April third.

After the business meeting which was presided over by the president, Mrs. Everett Eads, the meeting was given in charge of Mrs. F. W. Wilmot. The subject of the afternoon was "In their Footsteps", presenting the many leaders in the work who have given everything for the cause of the Master's work without thought of financial gain or future need, in many cases for very small salaries and who are dependent on us for support.

The Scripture lesson was read and commented on by Mrs. Roe after which Mrs. Frick led in a beautiful devotional prayer.

Mrs. Lloyd Wicks and Mrs. Herbert Berrian gave a dialogue, "Not Mercy, but Justice." This pictured our responsibility to these aged workers as justice not charity.

Mrs. Eads very beautifully read the poem "The Bridge Builders," after which Mrs. Wilmont gave a resume of Mrs. Rogers' conference talk along the same theme. Mrs. Berrian, then read a lovely poem written by a neighbor of the old people's home at Marion, Indiana in tribute to these aged ladies.

The rest of the afternoon was given to Mrs. Mitchell, mother of Miss Hattie Mitchell, one of our missionaries at Mondome, Africa. Mrs. Mitchell had with her a large and most interesting collection of pictures and curios sent from Africa by Miss Hattie. Customs and conditions in Africa were discussed by Mrs. Mitchell as she very charmingly displayed the articles.

After the missionary benediction delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of Mrs. Wilmont's division.

The real name of Lewis Carroll, author of Alice in Wonderland, was Charles Lutwige Dodgson.
