PRESBYTERY FOR THIS DISTRICT ENDS SESSIONS

The spring meeting of the Southern Oregon presbytery closed yesterday afternoon at Ashland with a full attendance on Tuesday and Wednesday of the active ministers from Klamath Falls, Merrill, Malin, Roseburg, Sutherlin, Oakland, Gledale, Medford, Grand Pass and other Rogue River valley points, and also lay delegates from quite a number of these places.

The time Tuesday afternoon was given to fully discussing a plan for unifying all the work in the Tule Lake district in southern Klamath county and extending into Modoc and Siskiyou counties in California. This plan was adopted and the whole territory, including the present work of the Merrill and Malin churches and considerable new work outlined for the various other points in the whole Tule Lake region, is to be under the direct management of the presbytery and the country life department of the Presbyterian board of national missions, and the work as thus unified carried on as a "demonstration parish," under a board of directors, including the ministers of the territory covered, a trained, special worker from the national board, and a woman specially fitted for "health" and "project" work to be undertaken. This board of oversight and management will also include local laymen chosen by the churches of the district, and the synodical executive for Oregon, Dr. D. A. Thompson, of Portland.

There will be close cooperation in this work, with the county health department and the county agents stationed there by the states of Oregon and California, and with the Boy Scout workers, and a county plan with the other churches whereby they will not enter into the district to duplicate the work undertaken in this way.

Some main features of the work to be carried on will be: Sunday and other services every week in all the churches and stations included; a definite program for recreational activities and health measures and for beautification of private and public grounds; also for definite evangelistic work and thorough religious education of the children and young people of the parish.

All this region has abundant water for irrigation and is rapidly

BOMB EXPLOSION KILLS 14; ITALIAN KING UNMOVED

MILAN, Italy, April 12.—(AP)—A bomb explosion shortly before King Victor Emmanuel inaugurated the Milan fair today killed 14 persons and injured 49 others.

Despite the explosion, the king, who had been greeted enthusiastically on his arrival in Milan this morning, took part in the inaugural ceremony and went through all the exhibits, stopping at various pavilions where were the most important exhibits, just as had been arranged on his program.

The police immediately began an investigation to determine those responsible for the outrage. Several inspectors-general of police are en route to Milan.

The activities of the fair, which is an annual trade exhibition, were continued without change, the only postponement being a gala evening, which had been planned for the Sala theater, which was put off in respect for those killed.

It was delayed on the coast yesterday by fog.

Fifteen minutes after his arrival, the commander continued his journey by airplane to Butte, Mont.

"A Man's Past" at the Rialto

"A Man's Past" is at the Rialto. The story is excellently told, the players are splendidly cast and the direction leaves nothing to be desired.

It concerns a noted physician who is sentenced to prison for putting to death one of his patients suffering an incurable disease. He escapes from the prison and is well on the road to rehabilitation when he is discovered by a former officer of the prison. The love interest is especially strong in that the officer and the surgeon both love the same girl and it appears that the officer will expose the doctor in order to get him out of the way. He does not, however, which sends the story into an entirely different climax which is both original and thrilling.

Conrad Veidt makes his American debut in this picture and as the surgeon, he lends to the screen one of the finest bits of acting since its inception.

County Health News

The Jackson county health unit respectfully submits the following report for the first quarter of 1928:

It must be remembered that this county is one where the population is barely 10 to the square mile and there are 3,000 square miles. For the three months the doctor and two nurses traveled on county business 8,527 miles—mostly over rough country and mountain roads.

Educational work was carried out to the extent of 17 well attended lectures. In addition, the doctor and one nurse each teach classes in the local hospital training school. From an educational standpoint it is interesting to know that both the local newspapers confer with this office about articles relating to public health that they publish.

Epidemiological work was as follows: There were 69 contagious investigations by the doctor of suspicious cases occurring in the county. Twenty of these were quarantined. There were 3540 doses of toxin antitoxin given to children in 19 rural school districts. This meant an enormous amount of work, as traveling 40 miles of county road to reach a school of six or seven pupils was not uncommon. As three visits were necessary in some cases four, it will be seen that this work, while laudable from a standpoint of prevention, was very difficult of performance. In addition, considerable effort was made to increase the reporting of venereal diseases and as a result 29 new cases were turned in to this office.

The doctor has done considerable work in conjunction with the local hospital, acting as resident pathologist and chief of laboratory. Through his efforts we have acquired a complete laboratory, completely equipped and in charge of competent technicians. The laboratory does all tests for the health unit free of charge in exchange for the doctor's services. This means that all cultures and specimens of urine are examined locally instead of being shipped 320 miles to the home office and then waiting a week for the result. The American College of Surgeons, as a result of their recent inspection, have granted the local hospital class A without any conditions attached. This was impossible until an adequate laboratory was established.

Under the head of child hygiene comes the following items: Nursing calls, 11; prenatal, 35; maternity, 23; pre-school, 83; school, 60. There were 720 pupils examined by the nurses and 342 by the doctor. Seven were excluded and 87 defects found on former examination were found corrected. There were 22 health talks given and eight baby clinics conducted by the health unit with attendance of 89 babies.

County indigent work required a large amount of time as the whole burden of the county work falls on the doctor. During the three months there were 19 visits to the poor farm and 89 visits to homes of county indigents. One hundred and two visits were made to the hospital. There were a total of 693 county visits made and treatments given. There were 29 visits to the county jail with 66 prisoners with treatment given, all venereal cases. In addition, 198 examinations were made of venereal inmates. Three autopsies were done in suspected criminal cases, at the request of the county coroner.

One thousand four hundred and sixty-five people called personally at the office to confer with the doctor or the nurses, or to have a chest examination or treatment, and there were 1768 telephone calls. During the three months 823 letters were written and sent out. The nurses average 48 hours per week and the doctor 88.

In addition, certain fixed or permanent clinics have been established. There are now regular monthly baby clinics at Ashland, Central Point and Medford. These are all well attended. A complete dental office has been installed in one of our rooms by the Jackson County Public Health association and the State Dental society, and a dentist is paid for work which he does on school children whose parents cannot afford to pay for dental work. These clinics are held regularly every Friday afternoon from 1 to 5.

CEREMONIALS OF MAUNDY THURSDAY

Thursday, April 12, is observed by services in the churches in commemoration of the partaking of the Last Supper by Christ and His disciples. Its rightful name, Maundy Thursday, is chiefly derived from the words of the ancient antiphon sung in the churches and starting with "Mandatum movum do vobis." Indeed, the word Mandatum later came to stand for the main ceremony of that day—the washing of the feet of the catechumens.

Of the many queer customs featuring this day in ancient times, perhaps the most important was this washing of the feet. This practice was prevalent in many parts of Europe in the middle ages, and there is even mention of its performance in Spain as early as the fourth century. Gradually, in the monarchical countries, the custom developed into the ceremony of the king's washing the feet of as many poor men as there were years of his age. In England the practice continued in that fashion until the reign of Queen Elizabeth, who directed that the feet of the poor men should first be lathered by her servants, in warm water and sweet herbs. James II was the last English monarch to perform the ceremony, for his successor, William of Orange, instructed his attendants to execute the duty; and the custom was discontinued in that country in the year 1754. However, it was

How does she keep her hands so LOVELY?"

Those few whispered words made me flush with pleasure

—the most beautiful hands, yet she does all her own work—

As I looked up from pouring tea, I realized with a thrill they were talking about me! I felt such a happy glow of pride . . . for my hands USED to be my despair!

Now I find it easy to have soft, pretty hands, in spite of dishes to do three times a day. I discovered that by using Lux for all my dishwashing, my hands never became rough or red or chapped-looking. With Lux, they are even WHITER and softer after washing dishes than before!

Millions of women who do their own work now have hands as flawless, as lovely, as if they never touched the dishpan! Because they wash dishes with delicate, sparkling Lux suds!

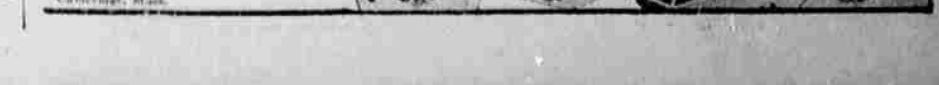

For these instant, magical suds are SOMETHING to even the most sensitive skin.* Lux is made by a marvelous special process—made whiter and thinner and purer than anything else. There is no trace of harmful alkali in Lux, nothing to dry up, to coarsen the skin, as there is in ordinary soaps—whether flakes, chips or cakes.

And Lux costs so LITTLE! In one of the big packages there is enough Lux for 6 weeks' dishes! So little to pay for beautiful hands!

*Many beauty parlors use Lux suds in manicuring the nails to soften and whiten the fingers.
