

Local and Personal

Frank P. Farrell, who has been strongly urged by many friends for weeks past to enter the race for district attorney, and who was on the fence in the matter, finally decided last evening to not enter the race for the Republican nomination. This leaves the only candidates in the race Newton C. Chaney, who sent his filing papers to Salem yesterday, and W. G. Trill as candidates for the Republican nomination, and George Coddling as the candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Whether due to rain or sunshine, or some other act of nature, a stop or slow signal has not yet been placed at the dangerous intersection of Sixth street with West Main street, although it is understood that it was decided by the council committee on streets a sign in the week to place such a sign there. The beautiful yellow pole, on which the sign was to be placed, and at the top of which a stop sign was placed when such signs were placed on all streets intersecting West Main street the last of last week, and then taken down, is still there.
