BUILDING NEWS

C. A. MEEKER RESIDENCE COMPLETED ON WEST JACKSON

Tom Billings, building contractor of the Berrydale district, is completing a modern four-room bungalow on the southeast corner of Jackson and Oak streets for C. A. Meeker of the M. & M. department store. The new home is completely finished with every modern equipment, including built-in cooler, linen closets, breakfast room furniture and kitchen cabinets. The kitchen is equipped for an electric range with apron overhead to care for steam from cooking. A feature of the bathroom is the tile board covering on the walls which makes possible an enameled finish, neat in appearance, and easy to keep clean. This board is a new product of the Union Fibre Board Co., and enables the building to have the equivalent of a tile bath or kitchen at greatly reduced cost.

The roof on the house is a new type of interlocking composition shingles and is the only roof of this type in Medford. Mr. Meeker is offering this new home for sale at a reasonable price with generous terms, and parties interested should see him at 215 N. Bartlett.

VAWTER RESIDENCE IS EXAMPLE OF SUPERIOR HOUSE CONSTRUCTION

The new home now being built for Wm. Vawter on Glen Oak avenue will be, when completed, one of the best constructed houses in this popular new district known as Skyline Heights. The contract for this work was let to Geo. W. Oliver. Mr. Oliver will be known by many as the man sent to Medford last summer by a Portland contracting firm to construct the Rogue River Studio, which building to date has not been completed.

When work was stopped on the studio, Mr. Oliver was engaged by "Bill" Isaacs to finish his large summer home on the upper Rogue river, and has just recently completed that work in a very creditable manner.

The basement for the Vawter house and the wall framing were completed last week, and anyone who is interested in seeing an unusually good job of this phase of house building should see Mr. Oliver's job this week. There probably has not been a building erected in Medford in recent years where as good construction and materials have been employed as there has to date in this building.

The "Builder's Bureau of Information" is proud to have furnished the building materials for these two structures.
