

WOMAN ARRESTED ON RUM CHARGE; HOME IS RAIDED

Mrs. Goldie Dunlap is in the county jail today charged with the possession and sale of alleged moonshine, following her arrest last night at 9 o'clock when Federal Officers Terry Talent and C. A. Herr and Policemen William Peck and Ray Stoneker raided her home at 322 North Oakdale avenue, where they also arrested Vernon Williams of Medford for possession and George Siever and Kenneth Wattenberg, both of this city, for intoxication.

Mistakenly identified a large part in the woman's arrest, inasmuch as she invited Officer Talent into her home when he knocked at that time who he was. According to his story, Officer Talent walked in and found his way immediately to a sink where three quarts of alleged moonshine were standing in several containers. He placed Mrs. Dunlap immediately under arrest and other officers arrested Siever and Wattenberg for intoxication and placed Williams under arrest for the possession of one quart of alleged moonshine.

Officers say that nine men were in the place and all had apparently been drinking. Five serving glasses were seized by the raiding party in addition to the liquor. The Dunlap home had been under surveillance for some time by authorities to whom a number of complaints had been brought, in connection with alleged liquor selling that was said to have been carried on there.

Mrs. Dunlap was to have been given a hearing today in the local justice court, where Williams, Wattenberg and Siever were also scheduled to appear.

YOUTHS HELD FOR AUTO THEFT, USE PISTOL TO ESCAPE

John L. Du Grosse, 17, Jack Shaw, 17, and Hollis King, 16, three Los Angeles newshoys, are facing charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and car theft following their arrest late Saturday night at Gold Hill by Deputy Sheriff Paul Jennings. They are accused of having held up two local couples, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cason and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. St. Claire, on North Bartlett street, when the three boys were discovered draining gasoline from their automobile.

In a confession signed by all three, the trio say that they stole the roadster, in which they were arrested at Gold Hill, from Joe Green at Venice, Calif., and they were stealing gasoline for the machine when they were discovered by the local couples. Du Grosse told Jailer Oscar Dunford that he covered the two couples with a pistol and threatened death if they hindered the escape of the trio. The boys took no money, and left immediately for the north.

Deputy Sheriff Jennings located the boys this side of Gold Hill parked along side of the Pacific highway when they stopped behind them. Immediately upon his stopping, the car speeded away and the local officer a short time later located the boys in Gold Hill, where they were placed under arrest and later brought back to the county jail here.

The confession, made yesterday to Jailer Dunford, is six pages long and stated that the trio arrived in Medford several days ago. It goes on to state that gasoline was stolen from several cars in Medford and that the "California" car, which they admitted stealing, was equipped with license plates taken from another machine. The boys also attempted to repaint the machine and tore off numerous identifying accessories.

The trio will probably be turned over to the federal authorities for the violation of the Dyer act, which prohibits the transportation of stolen machines from one state to another.

COAST SOLON IS MAIN SPEAKER AT KIWANIS LUNCH

Government and politics are cold blooded. They will hand you nothing unless you are interested enough to demand it for yourself. said James W. Mott, state representative from Astoria, who was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon at Hotel Medford this noon.

James W. Mott

Mr. Mott spoke on "The Business Man's Relation to Government" and by a forceful sounding up of the machinery of government and politics are cold blooded. They will hand you nothing unless you are interested enough to demand it for yourself.

"Business men are too busy watching their trade and the details of their own particular place of business to take the time to investigate what is going on in politics, that affects them. They are the victims of a certain propaganda that comes to them thru the medium of trade slogans which they have accepted as gospel truth such as 'competition is the life of trade' and 'business men and government won't mix' and they struggle blindly along beneath any unaccountable loads which, if they would stop to consider, would be lifted with a proper voice in legislation," he said.

"The prosperity of public utility is due to favorable legislation, and public utility has developed a private monopoly in the machinery of our government. The fishing industry, which is the third largest enterprise in our state, would not be what it is today were it not for the fact that its principal representatives have an active voice in the legislation of the state government."

"The farmer, was worse off than the middle ground business is today, before he woke and cut his eye-teeth in an attempt to find his place in the legislation that affected him. Now, if the McNary-Haugen bill or the other farm bills are not the farmer's friend, he will keep working until he does get what he needs. He has a voice in the government.

"Organized labor's rise to prosperity and dignity and influence was not accomplished by any indifferent attitude on the part of the laboring class. They demanded a vote in the government and now their station is one of the glories of our nation."

Besides Mr. Mott, outside guests at today's luncheon included J. W. Dunlap and Walter Bond of Portland, President R. B. Hammond announced the divisional conference of Kiwanians which is to take place in Roseburg Saturday night, and urged a large attendance from Medford.

GOSPEL SQUADRON MEETS AT J'VILLE; DRAW BIG CROWDS

The two meetings of the Business Men's Gospel team held at Jacksonville Sunday afternoon were the crowning events of the activities of this Christian organization up to the present time of a number of people attending a criterion of success. The first meeting was held in the First Methodist church at 2:30 and the second at the Presbyterian church at 5 o'clock. At the first meeting the little church was jammed to its capacity, it being estimated that 150 people were present; and the second meeting, the largest ever held by the gospel team, filled the larger church to its capacity, being present 200 and 250 people being present, according to estimates.

Historic Meeting Places The writer is going to somewhat ignore the remarks made by the speakers at these two meetings and divulge something of what might be a revelation in historic value as to the houses of God at which these two meetings were held.

Paragraphs and columns have been written about the dramatic historic reminiscences that the old pioneer town of Jacksonville has furnished for the pages of the history of Oregon and the north-west, but we are wondering if the people of this section know that Jacksonville is the possessor of the first Protestant church established west of the Rocky mountains. This church, First Methodist, was founded in the month of January, 1854, the old weather-beaten and worn church tablet which hangs in front of the building testifies to this bit of historic evidence. In other words, this old relic of the pioneer days, housed the people who gathered together 74 years ago for the purpose of worshipping the same Master that we of this modern age are worshipping, or seven years before the occurrence of that dramatic tragedy of American history—the civil war.

Another Relic of History The Presbyterian church, while not as aged as its sister church nevertheless stands as a monument to pioneer days, being established some 54 years ago. We wish that we were able to tell the names of those who were kind enough to decorate this church as it was dedicated for the gospel team toward us during our stay in Medford. The altar and various other beautiful bouquets of native flowers, giving evidence of the wonderful Christian spirit and hospitality of the people of Jacksonville.

Little wonder that the members of the gospel team give us a more interested in their work for Christ, because people everywhere are receiving them with open arms and the crowds of Medford people are growing larger each Sunday. People who follow the gospel team wherever they go.

Among the speakers on Sunday's programs were J. N. Nalms, H. S. Walker, P. M. Harner and Everett Cole. Many of the gospel team members are developing into real evangelists, and the men who spoke on Sunday's program did not fall short. Besides these men a great many people took part in the testimonial service, telling what Christ is doing for mankind.

The DeMolay queen, Miss Wells, will accompany the drill team to Salem, where she will take part in the state queen contest, which is to be held at the conclusion May 5. The DeMolays had one of the most attractive booths at the high school carnival last Friday night. The Elks lodge deserves much credit due to the fact that they loaned the boys a roulette wheel. The cause of the big success of the booth goes to Vaughn Stone and his assistants, Robert Slater and Paul Nowcomb. The manager of the contest, Art Davis, was kept very busy counting the votes. The final count was announced on the dance floor at 11 o'clock.

SEATTLE FRIENDS OF INDORE'S BRIDE SORRY FOR HER

A few hearts were broken temporarily among the neighborhood shiks in Nancy Ann Miller's section of Seattle, when her dejected maharajah from India boat their time and carried Miss Nancy off to his India home, according to V. H. Meagher, Seattle representative of the Post products, who spent the week-end in Medford. Mr. Meagher, who just graduated from the University of Washington last year, lived only three blocks from Nancy Ann himself, and often attended parties there with the neighborhood "hunch."

Asked whether or not he was to be classed among the "broken hearted," the collegiate looking Mr. Meagher said merely this: "Listen, do I look like a shik?" He then hurried on to describe the Seattle girl as a very costly type, with a quantity of noise and charm. He told about her studying in Europe and speaking French and other languages fluently.

"She went with one lad in our neighborhood more than any one else, until this Indian officer began to develop, and then it was all off with him and all other Seattle boys," he said and added, "We all feel sorry for the poor kid—not because she missed us, you understand, but because you never know what to expect of one of these 'real shiks'."
