Preparations are well under way for the annual Montana picnic to take place June 3 at the Evershade auto park near Phoenix where one of the most successful and best attended picnics of several years is expected to be held. Several committees have been appointed to complete details of entertainment, refreshment and transportation, and they will probably hold a joint session soon to map out final arrangements. Over 300 former Montana residents attended last year's picnic at the Riviera auto park north of Gold Hill and the attendance this year is expected to be much larger, encouraged somewhat by the fact that a comparatively large number of new families, all former Montana residents, have moved into the Rogue River valley during the past year. Delegates are expected to be present from Klamath county, Josephine county and northern California.

"I wouldn't live in California if they paid all my expenses," said C. M. Kidd, this forenoon, following his return from a recent trip to the state capital at Sacramento, where he spent a month in Arizona and southern California. "I don't like the California climate," continued Mr. Kidd, "and their drinking water is very poor. However, to spend the winter months in Arizona is enjoyable, as never a day goes by without sunshine for several months. One hotel at Yuma has a standing offer to provide three meals and room to its guests for every day that the sun does not shine, and so far the hotel has not been obliged to pay."

COUNCIL DEMANDS LIABILITY BOND ON PAGE RUINS

The matter was brought up at the city council meeting last night by Councilman J. J. Buchter, chairman of the building and light committee, who declared that, while George A. Hunt had workmen boarding up the entrance to the old Page theatre ruins and making the old marquis safer, in accordance with the council's notification to him recently that the ruins were dangerous to life and property, the walls should be removed or strengthened and that the council should not be satisfied with this—as it did not relieve the city government from damage, should any one be injured or killed, or property damaged.

Mr. Buchter asserted that the minor safety improvements being made was simply passing the buck back to the city administration, and that the council ought to pass the buck right back strong. He thereupon made a motion that Mr. Hunt be required to furnish an indemnity bond to the city of $150,000, to protect it from possible suits.

After considerable discussion, during which the mayor and most of the councilmen, all of whom were present except Messrs. Kerschaw and Crose, seemed a $150,000 bond too high, Mr. Buchter finally agreed to have the bond made $100,000, and the motion prevailed unanimously.

Richard Headrick of Los Angeles, 12, known as "the little minister" will be heard in the Medford First Methodist church Sunday night and every other night during the next week. The child who astounds all with his eloquence has attracted large crowds wherever he has gone and his grasp of spiritual truths is declared by leading ministers to be almost miraculous.

The subjects which the child evangelist is to cover on the various nights have not as yet been announced, according to Rev. T. H. Temple, pastor of the local church, but if the reports of southern church men are correct any topic chosen by the "little minister" will stir up unusual interest in the congregation.

MAY OIL HIGHWAY TO GOLF CLUB

If present plans are carried out, East Main street from the end of the pavement to the Medford Country club will be called by the state highway commission "Gasco" equipment as soon as the work on the Crater Lake highway is concluded.

The state highway commission has agreed to do the work for cost, and at a meeting of the county court this morning the court agreed to give financial help, as did Mayor Alender and members of the city council, on the part of the city.

Property owners along this road, however, will have to bear the chief expense if the project is carried out, and T. L. Enble has been appointed chairman of a committee to see that this is done.

This oil treatment would not only eliminate the dust menace but would according to the state highway engineers, preserve the road for many years, and be in fact the next thing to a permanent pavement.

The cost is estimated at between $1000 and $12000 per mile.
