

CROWDS ATTEND SCOTT WOOLF'S COOKING SCHOOL

The baking and cooking demonstration being given daily by Miss Verna Lindquist, home economist expert and dietitian of the Malleable Iron Range company, makers of the famous Monarch range at Scott Woolf's furniture store, are proving very popular. The attendance for the first two days of the demonstration were away above our expectations, according to Mr. Woolf.

Miss Lindquist has been appearing before large audiences throughout the county, conducting some of the most successful schools the women of Oregon have ever enjoyed.

The classes begin promptly at 2 p. m. daily. Tomorrow's class will feature pastries and every woman of Medford and southern Oregon is invited to attend these daily classes.

A feature of the cooking school will be the cake baking contest, the recipe being furnished by Miss Lindquist at her classes. This contest is open to every woman in Medford and southern Oregon and the cakes must be made out of Marvel flour, a home product. Cakes will be half frosted and will be judged by their general appearance, shape, color, depth and texture of crust, smoothness, flavor and lightness of both the cake and the frosting. Judging will be under direct supervision of Miss Lindquist, assisted by Mrs. C. D. Thompson of the Greater Medford club and Jack Rockwell, pastry cook at the Colonial bakery.

All non-prize winning cakes will be returned to the owners. Prizes will be announced in this paper Sunday morning and will be announced at the class Saturday afternoon, June 2. All cake must be entered by Saturday noon.

Valuable attendance prizes are being offered daily. Additional information regarding the cake contest and school can be obtained at Scott Woolf's furniture store.

CHINESE FIREBUGS SET DORM AFIRE

FOOCHOW, China, May 29.—(AP)—Fire destroyed a dormitory of the Fukien Christian university last night. The building housed a hundred students and was valued at $50,000. The cause of the blaze was not determined.

LONDON, May 29.—(AP)—A Royal detachment from Foochow today said the fire which destroyed a dormitory at Fukien Christian university was "obviously incendiary." It said there was evidence that chemicals were used.

Chinese irresponsibles in Foochow were charged with having fired dormitories at various schools in a campaign against mission work in the province of Fukien. The buildings destroyed previously were at Foochow college of the American board of missions, at the grammar school of the same mission and at St. Mary's college, a British mission.

SINNOTT RESIGNS AS CONGRESSMAN

SALEM, Ore., May 29.—(AP)—The resignation of Representative N. J. Sinnott, Oregon's congressman from the second district, reached Governor Patterson by telegraph last night, to be effective May 31. As announced about two months ago, Sinnott has been appointed a member of the federal court of claims. Since there will not be another session of congress until after the election of Sinnott's successor in November, it will not be necessary for the governor to call a special election to fill the vacancy.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP)—The supreme court today refused to stay the order of the interstate commerce commission reducing the rates on deciduous fruits shipped east from California. The railroad contended that the lower rates should not take effect until the supreme court at its next term could pass on the validity of the commission's order.

REPORT 6000 DIE CHINESE BATTLE MENACING PEKIN

TOKYO, May 29.—(AP)—Advices from Tientsin today said heavy fighting was in progress along the Peking-Hankow railway between northern troops and Shansi province troops, allied with the nationalists.

The battle, which began last Saturday, was reported to have taken a toll of 6000 lives.

The Shansi army was attempting to draw the main force of the Nationalist (northern) troops in the province of Shansi to the west in order to weaken the position of the northern allies on other fronts. The movement was intended to allow troops under General Fung Yu-hsiang, nationalist ally, to break through to the east of the railway at the strategic center of Hokenki, about 70 miles southwest of Tientsin.

SHANGHAI, China, May 29.—(AP)—The nationalists in their drive up the Peking-Hankow railroad on the city of Peking, have captured Paoingfu, important strategic point, 52 miles south of the northern capital.

HOUSE CAMPAIGN PROBE ORDERED

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The house today adopted a resolution directing Speaker Longworth to appoint a special committee of five members to investigate campaign expenditures of the candidates for president, the vice president, the senate and the house.

The committee was directed to report back its findings not later than January 3, 1929. An appropriation of $50,000 was provided to meet the expenses and the committee was empowered to hold hearings subpoena witnesses, and investigate the campaign contributions, the amounts contributed and the nature of expenditures by political candidates and organizations.

METHODIST IDEALS OF VICTORIAN ERA LAUDED IN SERMON

KANSAS CITY, May 29.—"We love this new and wonderful world," said Bishop Laurens J. Dirney of China in the devotional address yesterday at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. "These five verses in the twentieth chapter of Matthew record one of the saddest experiences of the Master," said Bishop Dirney.

"To seek from Christ selfish personal advantages in the New Kingdom, which was to cost Him his life, reveal the density of his ignorance of its spiritual nature. But to have answered with an empty, pitiful affirmative His searching question, 'Are ye able?'"

must have mocked Him more painfully than the ribaldry of Herod's soldiers with their crowns of thorns. "Do you not hear Him ask of this church and all the modern and commendable methods and activities of this new day, are ye able, oh Methodists, to preserve that mystic dynamic living something that gave you birth, that was caught like a mighty irresistible contagion from life to life, and lifted by its redeeming grip into a mood of song, the sudden hopeless masses of England who were crushed straight in the direction of another French revolution—that strange intangible something that leaped an ocean and began to run out over the long trail into the wilderness in the heart of Asbury, Cartwright, and their kind, out over in the van of the western trek of the covered wagon, sweeping over the spot where we now sit, when it was sheer prairie—out into the little settlements and trading posts, and on over the mountains, where it burned like a consuming fire in the heart of William Taylor and hundreds like him and through their prophetic souls touched into purity and power and into a conscious, conquering relation to a living present Christ, a foundation of this great civilization?"

Are ye able to keep that living creative something central in the heart of all our busy, complicated modern church life?

"We love this new and wonderful day. Here we sit in the very heart of a great throbbing modern city where you can find every new thing there is under the sun that makes rapid and irresistible the industry of today.

"This new generation smiles scornfully at what it deems the pruderies of the Victorian age. But look at the horizon! What are those stainless snow-capped summits that will keep their gleam in the sky for a thousand years to come? They are the moral and mental grandeur of the Victorian age. Tradition, Brownie, Gladstone and a score of others. We may lightly discount the social restraints of that day if we will, but history will declare that there was profound philosophy under the social reticence of that older time—and those mighty summits will be in the sky generations after the Bertrand Russell philosophy of social life shall have vanished with his name from the memory and respect of men.

"Again I hear Him asking of the teachers and the preachers of His church—are ye able—to make this great modern movement of religious education to do what it was designed to do, namely, to reach that inner capacity for God which lies like a golden promise in the soul of every normal child, and develop, educate, train that deepest of all its latent powers until the consciousness of God, the fact of God and obedience to God is become the dominating mood of life.

I hear Him asking the leaders of His church—the laymen and the minister, 'Are ye able to go back and make my people understand that by the deepest law of the spirit world there is something of incompleteness in the salvation of any human soul until it has helped to fill up the sufferings of Christ for the salvation of every human soul.'

JURY INCOMPLETE IN DOG TRIAL

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., May 29.—(Special to Mail Tribune.)—The third day of jury picking in the Sella dog case where the defendant stands charged with cruelty in connection with vivisection experiment at Cottage hospital here, was reminiscent of Webster and Fields' famous game of "put and take out." The day was half over with less in the jury box than yesterday. These lot out crowded new drafts of veniremen called from nearby places of refuge. Attorneys wrangled and the crowd yawned or laughed. The atmosphere of a famous murder trial only this time it's small, "a white fox terrier with a stub of tail" defended by the weakest of communities.

With both attorneys wearied of the delay, the jury was completed at 4 p. m. today. Testimony damaging to the defense was introduced by Prosecuting Attorney Clarence Ward when Clay Perry, nearby resident, and Mrs. H. Richardson, testified to revolting condition of the animal chained in a garage apparently insufficiently cared for and dying of hunger and wounds. The case, which has exhausted four panels totaling 150 veniremen, is expected to go to the jury this week.

Local Man Is Agent for Coffield Tire Protector

W. A. Crane, whose ad appears in The Mail Tribune today, has been appointed factory distributor for the Coffield Tire Protector Co. of Dayton, Ohio, for Jackson county. These protectors have been manufactured since 1916, and thousands of them are in use today.

Mr. Crane states: "Sales are far in excess of what I expected, because I meet so many car owners from the middle western states who have either used the protector, or know of their economical qualities, combined with the 95 per cent elimination of punctures, blow-outs and rim cuts. The redeeming feature of the protector is economy. The manufacturers claim the protector will actually save car owners many dollars a year on upkeep."
