

ROSEBURG LAUDS CRATERS' VISIT TO BERRY CARNIVAL

That Medford's participation in the Roseburg strawberry carnival last week was greatly appreciated by the people of Douglas county is indicated by the following item which recently appeared on the front page of the Roseburg News-Review:

"The Craters, Hospitality Club of Medford, and the Medford Post American Legion drum and bugle corps, arrived in Roseburg by caravan at 10 o'clock this morning and the afternoon passed the streets, participated in the industrial parade, serenaded and took the city by storm. It was the neppiest gang to make an appearance during the entire week and the Emporia chiefs were highly pleased with the response to their invitation given the southern Oregon city.

"The visitors also expressed themselves as pleased with the entertainment afforded them during their stay here today and many will remain over tonight to attend the fireworks pageant and army dance.

"The eventful note in the visit of the Medford boosters today was the publicity given the American Legion convention to be held in their city in August. Banners, badges and shouts heralded the event to all Douglas county, and Roseburg promises to 'Meet 'em in Medford.'

"The convention this year will be one of the finest ever staged in the state of Oregon. Medford has been promoting for months for the conclusion and has announced a program that will attract visitors from all parts of the Pacific coast. The American Legion convention in Oregon each year is the biggest ever staged in the northwest, and Medford expects to entertain the largest crowd in her history.

"Horace Bromley, commander of Medford post, and Paul McDonald, chairman of the convention committee, were both here today, and they had many objectives to describe what they promised the vets in August. It will be a grand gathering, no doubt, and Emporia part of the American Legion plans to attend practically 100 per cent.

"Roseburg should be very grateful for the visit of these southern Oregon boosters today, for it is indicative of the friendly spirit shown by a neighboring city."

GUARDING AMERICAN INTERESTS IN CHINA'S WAR ZONE

The death of Clarence L. Reames, which occurred in Seattle, deprived Oregon of one of her most distinguished poets, and in the very figure of his career. Mr. Reames was born in Medford, and southern Oregon both knew and loved him well. In Portland, also, his passing brings grief, for he had many friends, who recall his exceptional service to the country, as United States attorney for Oregon, and later as special assistant attorney general in charge of employee prosecutions.

During the World War period Mr. Reames was the only outstanding but an inevitable figure. In 1923 he became special counsel for the shipping board, serving admirably. Recognition as an unusually able and brilliant lawyer came to Clarence L. Reames early in life, and it is certain that his work is proved worthy of the responsibilities imposed upon him.

As for Clarence Reames, the friend, he was beloved of many. His nature was sincerely frank and engaging, with a trace of quiet boyishness. He found time in any day, however occupied, for the moxie of friendship, for a smile and a word, or aid, if need there was for assistance. Though for some years his residence had been in Seattle, Oregon has always thought of Clarence Reames as her own. And Oregon grieves her loss.

MASON CARAVAN TO VISIT KERBY

On Thursday night, the members of Medford lodge 492 A. F. & A. M. will journey to Kerby where they will enter the Master Mason degree upon candidates of that community. The local square and compass men will gather in Kerby on Friday at 5:15 o'clock at the Masonic temple where a caravan will be formed. After their arrival at Kerby they will meet with the Kerby Masons and confer the coveted 31st degree, which will be followed by a banquet here in the evening.

Charles C. Furnas, worshipful master of the Medford Masonic lodge, has extended a special invitation to all local Masons to join the Kerby caravan and enjoy the degree work and banquet in the neighborhood town. A caravan caravan of Masons is expected at the Masonic temple here on Friday evening at 5:15 o'clock to participate in the evening's activities.

LAST MADAME Q BROMLEY BACKERS HIGH TRIBUTE IS PLAY MAKES HIT; IN ROAD DISPUTE PAID C. L. REAMES, SINGING SUPERB VISIT POP GATES PORTLAND PRESS

From Dr. R. C. Mulholland, the chairman singer of "Oregon My Oregon," who trained the Copco players in this song ten minutes before the curtain rose on the last of the Madame Q plays broadcast over KMBH, the Mail Tribune-Virgin station, to E. C. Ferguson, who acted in the place of Mayor Alexander, and Ted Baker, who impersonated himself, the players in last night's production were superb.

The play itself, a three-act piece, was full of vigor and farcical dialogue as well as a quantity of local color, and the Copco players, who have given consistently notable performances, were never better than in the final skit. Miss Jo Murray, who has portrayed the role of the languid Madame Q the entire series, and Earl Davis, local announcer, who has impersonated the inimitable wise cracker, Jack Merryweather, listed their characterizations to a thrilling height as the climax of the play drew near.

James Stevens, who played the Indian rambler, and Harold Corless, who played Prince Charles of Monaco, were responsible for a steady stream of laughs in their scenes together, where, by intended, dirty digs and finally strong arm methods, they battled over the smiles and attentions of Madame Q on the trail to Rogue River valley. These gentlemen as well as Mary Greiner, the announcer, demonstrated their versatility and ability as quick change artists in their rapid shifts from one character to another.

The Indian rambler, General Wong of China and Harry Mauring of Rogue River valley, were cleverly impersonated by Stevens, Prince Charles of Monaco, Akbar the rajah's ambassador and a Southern Pacific porter by Corless and Marie, the little French girl, Jaya, the Indian girl, Dixie, a stenographer, and Mrs. Akbar, by Mary Greiner.

Last night's play, which ended happily, bringing all the various characters back to Rogue River valley, where they married and settled down on Jack Merryweather's 100-acre tract of land, was dedicated by the author to the "people of Medford" in a short talk before the first curtain.

Aside from a number of private radio parties reported throughout Medford and the valley last night, the radio music house was turned into a theater by Clayton Isaacs and his assistants, and a capacity crowd of local residents who happen not to have radios in their homes were entertained by the last Madame Q play there.

"A delegation of Bromley supporters from Grants Pass and Ashland visited C. R. 'Pop' Gates, member of the state highway commission, in Medford, Saturday, and asked to learn of any complaints against Bromley which had been allegedly received. Compliments so far as could be learned dated back eight years ago when Bromley went on the job and was unfamiliar with the type of blanks used.

"Failure of Bromley to report to Chandler each week-end while on probation was said to have been due to the fact that Chandler removed all of Bromley's office supplies and equipment out of the Grants Pass headquarters to the Medford office.

"Whether or not Bromley will remain on the job is problematical. The fight against Chandler is centered on his alleged antagonism toward excessive men."

Rev. R. E. Close, superintendent of the Anti-Slavery League of Oregon, will address Medford congregations, Sunday, June 3. Mr. Close is said to be an eloquent speaker who presents up-to-date information concerning prohibition in a concise and interesting manner. The league superintendent will speak at the morning service in the First Baptist church and in the evening at 8:00 o'clock in the First Methodist church.

Rev. W. J. Morrow will address the M. E. Church, South, in the morning of the same day. Every one is urged to attend one of these services. Some very interesting facts will be disclosed.

PLANS DISCUSSED BY BOSG GROWERS. How poor growers of the valley met last night at the Hotel Medford and discussed plans for the wider distribution of that fruit and for an extensive advertising campaign. A general committee was named to assemble a detailed report to be submitted at another meeting. There were about 50 growers present. Two plans were discussed at the session. It is planned to secure distribution in the six leading cities of the land, as the market may come to know the Bosg pear, thoroughly. The details of the advertising plan will be worked out later.
