

Her Dreadful Past

Convicted, an outcast, marked for life with the brand of patricide.

The Amazing True Story of a Girl Patricide—

PERHAPS you recall reading in the newspapers the case of Gretchen, the pitiful story of a girl who poisoned her father—and then, at her trial, steadfastly refused to utter a word in her own defense, preferring punishment rather than describe the terrible details of the soul-destroying life he had forced upon her.

You read of her conviction and incarceration. There, apparently, the story ended. But really it was only the beginning of one of the most amazing human dramas ever enacted.

In prison Gretchen performed her duties in utter silence; nothing interested her; she kept completely to herself—an outcast branded for life as a patricide.

Then Mary Howard, instructor in an exclusive girl's seminary, came to reach in the prison. Her heart went out to the little soul-frozen daughter of the slums. She was kind to her, encouraged her, tried to make her feel that she was not a pariah but a girl like other girls.

At first Gretchen feared and distrusted her. Later she thawed a little. Then one night, in the seclusion of Miss Howard's room, the dam of her emotions burst and her body wracked with sobs, she told for the first time the dreadful story which had led to the jury, who would probably have resulted in her acquittal.

Her story in July True Story Magazine, is a complete account of the events leading up to Gretchen's dreadful crime, her trial, imprisonment, eventual parole and the glorious success she is now making of her life. Terrible in places but with a supremely happy ending it will make you shudder and smile through a mist of tears. It is entitled "Out of the Slums" and appears complete in the July issue of True Story now on sale.
