FREAK RAINSTORM BRINGS BIG DROP IN TEMPERATURE

A freakish rain storm, bringing with it a drop in temperature at the same time to a maximum of 56, which caused the people to build fires in their homes to keep comfortable, caused a downpour in Medford, which neared record breaking proportions for a 24 hour period in June and presented most all outrage yesterday.

In all 7.9 of an inch of rain fell in Medford, making it the heaviest rainfall during a 24 hour period in June since June 27th, 1917, when 1.12 inches of rain fell. The next heaviest June downpour in the history of the Medford weather bureau for a 24 hour period, was on June 29, 1912, when 3.15 inches fell.

Yesterday's rain, which was a little above the normal total for the month of June, and which was the heaviest rainfall here since March 26th last, started in at 6:50 a. m. and continued until 4:55 p. m. when it stopped until 5:10 p. m., after which it rained heavily for a time. Most of the rain came down heavily and steadily all forenoon.

The rain came without previous warning, as the weather maps did not show it was coming, and the downpour here seemed to be the heaviest in the state. Marshfield had only .24 inches, and Portland, 1.6; North Bend, a trace, and Baker City, .02. Wada, Waha, Wash., and .04 and Barock, Calif., .26.

Yesterday's rain here did no damage as near as could be learned up to early this afternoon, beyond some hay being down in the valley, but otherwise was regarded as beneficial to fruit and other crops, without irrigation, aiding in sizing up the undrained pears and apples, and proved a veritable boon to berries and garden crops. As near as could be learned the cherries were not damaged, as it is said the peak of the crop is not due yet for a week.

MEDFORD DUE FOR FIRE CONVENTION

Upon his arrival in Marshfield, where Chief Elliott attended the Southwestern Oregon News of that city had the following to say of the local chief: "The gentleman Jack" of the fire chiefs is Roy Elliott, who comes from that delightful little city of Medford, where almond blossoms greet you in the spring and flowers bloom in the year around. Chief Elliott, accompanied by Mrs. Elliott, is registered at the Chandler during the convention."

RECORD BREAKING SEASON EXPECTED AT C. LAKE LODGE

That Crater National park will have a record breaking attendance this coming season, as already there are three times as many reservations for accommodations at the lodge from eastern people as for last year, and that the lodge will be open and ready to entertain all visitors to the lake on and after June 22, with a full complement of employees, has been given out this noon by Ed. Price, vice-president and general manager of the Crater National Park company, which holds the lodge, stage and other park concessions, who arrived in the city last evening from Portland to make his headquarters here and to make trips to the lake and Klamath Falls to hold the Crater Lake season opens.

However, this does not mean that the stages will be in operation before July 1, but all motor vehicles coming between June 22 and July 1 will find accommodations ready.

The Crater National Park company will maintain offices during the season both at Medford and Klamath Falls. Only two stages will be operated between Medford and the lake, as there are no afternoon trains arriving here as heretofore, this season, and four stages will be operated between Klamath Falls and the lake, while two stages will be maintained at the lake to fill in as needed on the route.

Clyde Marshall, chief clerk of the lodge last year, and Mr. Price and his brother, Earl Roberts, will operate the stages between here and the lake, and the former with a mechanic left this morning for Prospect, where the stages have been kept in winter storage, to place them in first class condition for the season's running.

Ed. Price, vice-president of the lodge last year, and Mr. Price and his brother, Earl Roberts, will operate the stages between here and the lake, and the former with a mechanic left this morning for Prospect, where the stages have been kept in winter storage, to place them in first class condition for the season's running.

On the afternoon of June 25 the members of the California Forest association will arrive at the lodge for their four-days' convention, immediately after which the Oregon Editorial association will arrive for their annual meeting.

There seems to be no doubt but the roads all the way to the lake will be cleared of snow by the June 22—in fact, the Davidson, supervisor of road clearing work in Crater National park, who arrived in the city last night and departed for the lake again this forenoon, said that he planned to have the road between Anna Springs camp, which has been cleared of snow now as far as government camp, opened and in good condition by June 18.

It seems that he, as well as the officials of Crater Lake National park and of the Crater National Park company, deem the eight inches of snow that fell there yesterday as of no consequence, thinking that it will melt away quickly and take some of the old snow with it. Mr. Davidson said, in fact, that already yesterday the new snow was already melting and that there had been no freeze at the national park last night or the night before.

R. W. Price, who is very enthusiastic about the bright prospects now for a record breaking attendance at Crater Lake park, said today that as soon as the weather permits his company would begin the construction of the cafeteria and cabins near the camp grounds. These buildings will not be completed in time for use this season, but will be in readiness for next year.

A group of eight intimate friends and relatives were present at the church and later attended a wedding dinner served at the A. J. Gail home.

ASHLAND STUDENT IS PRESIDENT OF NORMAL SCHOOL

SOUTHERN OREGON NORMAL, June 11.—Counts of balloting for student body election were complete Thursday afternoon before 5 o'clock, with a total of 216 votes cast. Unusual interest in the election was displayed as proved by the large per cent of students who voted.

For president of the student body Harry May scored an easy victory over his opponents. May is a resident of Ashland and is finishing his first year at the Normal.

Roland Parks was elected vice-president of the student body by a close margin. Parks is also a local man. Wilma Howard of Milton, Oregon, was the student body's choice for secretary. Carter Hozza of Medford received the vote for student body treasurer.

Vernon Trimble, of Grants Pass, defeated Mary Galey for editor in chief of the Siskiyon in one of the most closely contested struggles of the entire election. Kenneth Anderson, one of Medford's representatives at the Normal succeeded in defeating Dick Marple of Portland for the position of business manager of the school publication.

It is singularly interesting to notice that although women as well as men were nominated for practically all offices only one woman was elected to an office.

All officers elected Thursday will take office at the beginning of the 1928-29 school year and serve for one year.

Melvin Nathan, who won the school championship in tennis Thursday afternoon by defeating Don Smith, was awarded a watch for by R. W. McNeal, coach, in behalf of the students in recognition of his excellence in tennis.
