

GORGEOUS
Yet Truly Inexpensive
THE ST. CLOUD

A fascinating symphony in form and color, the St. Cloud is a lovely pattern distinguished by an ivory band, bordered in a beautiful scroll design relieved by composites of fruit, all superimposed on a background of pale canary yellow. The shape, known as Silverite, is a new one, and the ware itself is Pareek, a recent notable achievement of the famous Johnson Bros., Ltd., of England.

You will particularly like the hollow pieces such as the cover dish, which is a marvel of artistic utility. The handles are solid, beautifully modeled, and placed horizontally almost at the top, where they afford a secure hold.

MRS. WILSON AND MRS. AL SMITH ARE IN THE LIMELIGHT
ASHLAND HIGH SCHOOL BOY ADMITTED TO WEST POINT

(By Martha Daley, Associated Press Staff Writer.)

HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—(AP)—The four important democratic committees have gone into action and with them their attention is soon to be turned to the election of a new president, while not of great importance, is at least felt.

Only the time-honored masculine committee on resolution which will formulate the platform with which the democratic nominee will go to battle in November, has no women on its roster. Never has a woman served on this committee, and this year is no exception.

But the ladies stayed up late last night with the credentials committee and were due to participate in the meetings today of the committee on rules and order and permanent organization.

The festive air of the first night session of the convention was only slightly disrupted by the need for a large number of committees of two women members of the credentials committee and the two outstanding women contestants all appeared at the late meeting in evening frocks.

Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thompson, former national committee woman from Louisiana, wearing a light green chiffon frock with a large fringed array of matching shades thrown over her shoulders, was there to help conduct the fight for her chosen delegation.

Mrs. Lester J. Pollock of the District of Columbia, who suffered defeat before both the sub-committee and the national committee, appeared in a shell-pink chiffon and lace gown to wage war against John Costello, national committeeman.

Five feminine names appear on the roll of the committee to notify the presidential candidate of his nomination.

The greatest number of women will serve on the committee to notify the vice-presidential candidate. There are 15 names on this committee, while the women workers and the newly appointed national committeewomen took the spotlight of feminine activity during the first day and night of the convention, the two leading distinguished guests, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, came in for their share of the limelight.

Mrs. Wilson took her seat in the front row of the platform seats, a tan early hour and didn't leave the hall until the gavel had been pounded for the last time, while Mrs. Smith arrived late and left early. She sat in a secluded box halfway back in the hall.

Mrs. Wilson, respondent in a white chiffon gown lavishly embroidered in silver and an orchid pattern, appeared vigorously at all the high points in Claude Fox's keynote speech, except those references to her husband that caused the entire assemblage to rise.

Just before adjournment for the Chairman Shaver announced the next social event of the convention, a breakfast this morning for all women delegates, given by the women members of the Texas delegation.

Recently, under the name of Mary Butler, Mrs. McCormick played a minor role in "Crime." She was not recognized by members of the regular cast or by the audience.

Mrs. McCormick said she took the name "Mary Butler" to escape social obligations so that she could give her full time and effort to the study of dramatic art, in which she is keenly interested. She is especially interested in the production of children's plays and wishes to study direction. Her original plan did not contemplate going any further than amateur theatricals, she said.

The bride was charming in a gown of pink organdy, with rhinestone ornaments. Mrs. Gideon served a delightful wedding luncheon at the close of the reception. The bride and groom left late in the day for Crescent City, where they will spend their honeymoon before going to their home at Hozomean, Mont., where Mr. Lang is a teacher in the public school. Oregon Supreme Court Decisions

SALEM, Ore., June 26.—(AP)—

The supreme court today handed down an opinion holding against the numerous plaintiffs in the case of W. J. Gregor and others, appellants, against the city of Portland, in which an attempt was made to enjoin the city from collecting the amount assessed against them as benefits of the improvement of Interstate avenue.

The opinion was written by Justice Coshaw and affirms Judge Ashby C. Dixon of the lower court for Multnomah county.

The opinion holds that the improvement is of general benefit to the property owners along the thoroughfare, that the council compiled fully with the city charter, and concludes as follows:

The distribution of the benefits and damages is a quasi-judicial function. . . . Intrusted to the council. With the exercise of those functions within the charter and constitution, the courts have no power to interfere.

Other opinions today were: Rose Aitkenhead vs. Anna L. Holmes, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; action against defendant for alienation of affection of plaintiff's husband. Opinion by Justice Bean, Judge John H. Standerson affirmed.

First National bank of Cottage Grove, appellant, vs. Hazel Pennington; appeal from Jackson county; suit to recover on promissory note. Opinion by Justice Bean, Judge C. M. Thomas affirmed.

J. E. Shea vs. Joe C. Peters, appellant; Charles E. Kenner, et al., defendants; appeal from Multnomah county; suit to foreclose mechanics lien. Opinion by Chief Justice Rand. Decree of Judge George R. Taxwell, modified.

Lizzie A. Cullison, et al., appellants, vs. Hotel Seaside; appeal from Clatsop county. Suit to enjoin defendants from obstructing right of way. Opinion by Justice Bean, Judge J. A. Enkin reversed.

H. C. Klinge vs. Harry L. Farris, doing business as Portland Silver Fox Farm, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; suit to rescind contract. Opinion by Justice Bean, Judge William Ekvall affirmed.

Otha Hamilton vs. R. C. Kelsey, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; suit for damages. Opinion by Justice Rossman, Judge T. E. J. Duffy affirmed.

William L. Hutchison company, appellant, vs. Northwestern National bank, et al.; appeal from Multnomah county. Action to recover damages for trespass. Opinion by Justice Belt, Judge Louis P. Hewitt affirmed.

May Butler, administratrix substituted for Vandalla Williams Green, vs. City of McMinnville, appellant; appeal from Multnomah county; action for damages. Opinion by Justice Belt, Judge George H. Bugley affirmed.
