A crew of men are putting a coat of paint on the new wood work of the Bybee bridge.

Sams Valley grangers and their friends are planning an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic which will probably be held on the river south of the Nealon ranch.

The many acquaintances here of

Would Save Brother

Bob Gaines, convicted murderer of his 22-year-old daughter, Sylvia, is in his death cell at Washington state prison, Seattle, his execution set for Aug. 31, and his brother, Bill, above, one-time power in county and state politics, has failed in his attempt to save him. As the former stood before Judge Robert M. Jones, of the U. S. supreme court, for sentence, the latter rose and dramatically asked the judge to sentence him instead of his brother. Bill Gaines was convinced that the case was an attempt to break him as a political power and so has felt the responsibility for his brother's fate.

John Vincent were sorry to hear of his death at Jacksonville, Wednesday and extend sympathies to the bereaved relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent were residents here for many years where they once owned property and were a part of the social and working force of the community.

'Last Command' Now at Hunt's Craterian

Jannings has scored again, this time in a remarkable characterization as a military general. His new picture has been titled "The Last Command," and it opened an engagement at Hunt's Craterian theatre yesterday.

This American-born German actor presents in this new production so commendable a figure that it cannot be compared to those of "The Way of All Flesh," and "Variety."

"The Last Command" is a story of the red revolt in Russia, showing Jannings as a mighty general, strictly military but beloved by his men. He betrays a girl but imprisons her companion, the girl in turn saving him from death at the hands of the blood-mad revolutionists. He then comes to America in search of this fair savior, and there the thread of the story takes a strange twist.

It is a gripping story, one with poignant love and drama, mystery, and thrills, so far different from "The Way of All Flesh" and "Variety" that it is hard to believe the same star played in them all.

Being presented on the same bill are two acts of vitaphone vaudeville that are a show in themselves.

Fred Arlath, the well known vaudeville comedian, is seen and heard with his company in the comedy sketch "Men Among Men."

The other act is presented by the well known pair, Van and Schenck, the pennant winning battery of songsters. They offer a series of their most popular song numbers in a way that gets over 100 percent.

"Red Riders of Canada," featuring Patsy Ruth Miller, will be the screen attraction at the Rialto theatre tomorrow.

The picture is adapted from the magazine story "The Pirates of Muskogee" written by William Byron Mowery.

The story runs vividly through the great northwest, starting with a double murder by a character called "The Buzzard," a noted fur pirate.

Through an oath of vengeance, Pierre, the son of the murdered man, is himself murdered but helps the "mountain" and his sweetheart, who is Pierre's sister, "get his man."

Patsy Ruth Miller, who is the featured actress of the story, is said to have an emotional role of great power in this feature.
