

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE

THE PACIFIC COAST SHOULD WAKE UP

Daily, Sunday, Weekly... MEDFORD PRINTING CO. 11-17-29 N. Fir St. Phone 74

An intensely interesting talk was given at Crater Lake yesterday before members of the State Editorial Association by Dr. T. Tingfong Lew, of the National University of Peking, China.

Dr. Lew showed how the present revolution in China was in reality a newspaper war, in that the New China, its basic cause, had been the direct product of education through the Chinese newspaper.

He declared the Nationalists are now practically in control of all China, that this government is overwhelmingly pro-American, but that unless the American people are aroused to the situation and show some interest in China's fate, there is grave danger that China, to avoid Japanese domination, will turn to Soviet Russia instead of the United States.

So with great sincerity, fluency and eloquence, Dr. Lew urged the Oregon editors to become "internationally minded," to study the Far Eastern situation, and do what they can to prevent world domination by a union of China and the Muscovite hordes.

For the speaker frankly predicts the approaching end of Island Empire domination. England, he thinks, is through. Japan can't compete with the great continental powers, Russia, China and the United States, who are to hold the future fate of the world in their hands.

Shall the Russian theory of Communism or the American theory of Republican Democracy prevail?

It is not necessary to agree with all of Dr. Lew's assertions to grant that the next few years are to be critical ones in the Far East, and that the attitude of this country is to have far-reaching consequences upon the future history of the world.

The American people—and particularly the American newspaper men—should become more "internationally minded." We of the Pacific Coast particularly should pay more attention to the situation in the Far East, for, whether we like it or not, the determining events of the next decade are to be staged in, and on the borders of, the Pacific ocean.

But the chances of arousing the people to this situation are, unfortunately, very slight. Just as the Great War came as a complete surprise to a majority of the American people, so the explosion in the Far East, which is equally inevitable, will undoubtedly take a majority of the people entirely unawares.

If the Democratic platform is any criterion—and no doubt it is—America is now provincially inclined and less disposed to take the political responsibilities of its world economic leadership than ever before. For in that platform the very phrase used by the Senatorial die-hard against President Wilson and the League of Nations was incorporated among its important principles—the "avoidance of all engaging alliances."

This is no excuse, however, for those who see the trend of approaching events to do what they can, to prepare public opinion for them. Just as Dr. Lew told about a newspaper man who couldn't make a speech without referring to Patrick Henry, so may we lay ourselves open to a similar admonition by once more deploring the situation in the Far East is one of many good reasons for voting for Herbert Hoover, the one American in public life who knows most about the Far East.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. The number of letters received, only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this newspaper.

AN OUTLINE OF HYGIENE No. 42—When the Heart Grows Weary.

Chronic myocarditis is the technical name doctors give to the slow heart muscle failure of cardiovascular diseases or heart artery weariness. Sometimes this gradual loss of efficiency in the wall of the heart is apparently independent of any apparent cause.

The name of the hotel and didn't even know the name of the streets near by. I abandoned a lot of eggs that day before I came upon a view.

Is T. B. contagious? Can the germs be carried by members of the family? Our children go to school with children in whose family there is a case. —Mrs. H. E.

Answer—T. B. stands for tubercle bacilli. The abbreviation for tuberculosis is T. B. Tubercle bacilli is a third person in order to catch tuberculosis from the patient is not necessary. So of course there is no risk for your children in playing with the children from the home where there is a case of tuberculosis.

My husband has sleeping paralysis or paralysis adjutant. Can anything be done for this disease? —Mrs. W. C. L.

Answer—Parkinson's affection, shaking palsy, or paralysis adjutant, isn't sleeping paralysis, and really isn't paralysis at all. It is just a kind of trembling and associated weakness in the affected members. I should be glad to tell your husband's physician, on the doctor's request, what little I have learned about remedies for this trouble from readers who have found considerable relief. As this involves the administration of licorice root medicines, I can give no information about it except to physicians.

Does eating pickles and other sour stuff during the menstrual periods do any harm? —Mrs. B. P. R.

Answer—No, more or less than would at any other time. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

That was a pretty fair message, Hoover sent to Sen. Messers, Chairman of the Republican national convention, considerable in only a year's work on it. Congratulations are rarely spontaneous, but I thought I'd do something about it.

Chronic myocarditis is a painless condition. In most cases patients never complain of any distress about the heart. Just a general falling off in physical and mental efficiency. Patients usually think of their health as being all right, and only realize their failure of the periodic health examination is a good sensible habit for persons over 40 years of age, especially persons who still have fairly good health.

Chronic myocarditis is ordinarily very chronic from 15 to 30 years. No one has any cure for it, but nevertheless it is best for your health and the happiness of those around you that your doctor know your condition and advise you how to live while you live. No one has a right to become an invalid a moment sooner than he can help, nor to cultivate the role of skeleton at the feast. The care of one's health is a religion. The body is the temple of the soul. Some people do not consider the temple sacred. If they do not defile it they neglect it shamefully.

And that's all we have to say about middle age.

Now let's have a background at the environment, a glimpse at the hazards in it and some brief suggestions how to cope with them. It will appear shortly.

GILDED SPARTYRDOM

I sometimes pause and shed a tear for my rich neighbor Biddad Beer. He's loaded down with bonds and stocks and all varieties of toys his home is filled with works of art whose price would break your heart; he has a stable full of cars, he can afford to king's cigars; he has a butler at his call, and useless trophies in his hall. But if he ate a piece of pie the chances are he'd promptly die. A foreign chef can afford to load fine victuals on his board, but he is doomed to eat such fare as fills a mortal with despair. If he consumes a piece of cake he has no kind of stomach ache, and learned physicians congregate to place a poultice on his waist. He is a man who likes to eat all sorts of food, and he's a good cook, but he can't cook for himself, but he's the boss of his meals. And everything he eats is weighed, and the rules are disobeyed, and if he eats ten grams of stuff where seven grams would be enough, he's tied up in a sailor's knot with ailing pals that bit the spot. He looks out from his window's height upon the hungry, brassy, wight, who mows the lawn and prunes the trees, and eats for lunch three pounds of cheese, six onions and a pumpkin pie, and Croesus leaves a bitter sigh. He looks out from his mansion grand on workmen who till the land, and draw eleven bucks a week, and he looks out from his window's height upon the hungry, brassy, wight, who mows the lawn and prunes the trees, and eats for lunch three pounds of cheese, six onions and a pumpkin pie, and Croesus leaves a bitter sigh. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Johnson of Fossil, Ore., have returned to Ashland accompanied by their children, Bobby and Mildred. They plan to make their home in Ashland on Scenic drive. Miss M. J. Heinsaker has been attending school at the State Agricultural college at Corvallis during the past year.

Henry B. Carter of Astoria avenue has returned from a trip to San Jose, Calif. He plans to make another similar trip at an early date and may go as far south as Los Angeles.

Mrs. S. T. Songer, Mrs. Mollie Songer and Mrs. Will Mervin Talbot visitors one day this week at the home of Mrs. Mary Bodegan, 414 Holmes, of Klamath Falls, has come to Ashland to establish a tax service, with headquarters at the Ashland Flower shop. Mr. Heinsaker will use his fine new Auburn cars in his business.

George M. Green, managing editor, and Miss Ruth Johnson, news editor of the Ashland Daily Tidings, were in Medford Friday evening to attend the banquet given by the Medford Chamber of Commerce to the editors of the states.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vining have been visiting recently at the home of Vining's mother, Mrs. Mary Vining, on Granite street, and at the home of Mrs. Vining's mother, Mrs. Anne Russell on North Main street. These also made a visit to Irving E. Vining at the Lake of the Woods. They left Saturday morning for their home at Oakland, Calif., and were accompanied by the tip by Mrs. J. P. and son Kenneth of Los Angeles.

Miss Marjorie Gillette, who is employed by the Moon Lumber company, left Friday night to spend a vacation in San Francisco. Mrs. Green Andrews is visiting for a few days with her sister, Mrs. Stella Adams, who resides near Toke.

Miss Velta Askey and Mrs. Margaret Campbell Dunlap entertained most delightfully on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. C. Polk, on Gresham street, honoring Miss Jessie Guthrie, a bride-elect. The hostess was surrounded with masses of mixed blossom. There was the entertainment for the evening at which Miss Gertrude Carlton was the winner of high score and Miss Frances Pratt was crowned for low score. Late in the evening little Miss Peggy Silver arrived with a basket of lovely gifts for the honor guest, after which the evening was broken by a close with the service of dining refreshments.

Guests for the happy affair were Mesdames Elwood Hedberg, Clyde Young, Dean Scott, Andrew McGee and Joyce (Johnson) Board of Oakland, Calif., the Misses Inez Silver, Margaret McCoy, Gertrude Gillette, Lella Gillette and Gertrude Carlton.

Miss Katherine Vincent, Lillian Graves and Ruth Violet of the Southern Oregon Normal school faculty, Miss Barbara Brown and Miss Vincent's cousin Miss Elmers, visited Crater Lake on Sunday. They drove to the lake by way of the Klamath Falls route and returned to Medford.

The Democrats must offer SOMETHING DEFINITE to offset Republican property, which can't be denied, and 7,000,000 plurality. You can't wipe away the carpenter or bricklayer's interest in 1928 Republican losses, merely by telling that Mr. Fall stole an oil reserve.

And besides, the Republicans did not wait for the Houston convention denounce oil corruption. For instance, Arthur Capper, Republican senator from Kansas, with his son a farmer following as any man, said, long before the Democrats got excited: "The conspiracy of Teapot Dome is the equal of any of the major crimes carried out by the unscrupulous and infamous freebooters of the middle ages. For spectacular rottenness I doubt whether we have the equal of Teapot Dome in American history or ever will have." No mystery about that. It is as good as "Back to your tents, O' Israel."

The musicians' union views the talking, singing, band playing movie with alarm. It says music on the film will lower the tone of the American music. That would be bad, for some cases. In more cases, it would be impossible.

What the musicians mean and should say, is that they feel the musical film competition. It will compete with inferior music and wipe out a lot of it, heaven be praised.

It will create an unheard of demand for GOOD music, and really able musicians, and will pay them better than they were ever paid before.

Chaplin can act in one place and be seen by 50,000,000 people. Therefore his acting is worth $2,000,000 a year.

Musicians will play in one place and be heard by millions, and accordingly reach the top, will earn accordingly.

No good new idea ever hurt anything or anybody except rank incompetence.

John Coolidge, son of Calvin, declined a job in 19 words and is praised for brevity. Thank you very much for your kind offer, but as yet I am unable to accept any such position.

That is not so brief. Calvin Coolidge would have written "No, thank you." Cromwell would have written "No."

However, John Coolidge wrote a friendly letter, which is better than perfect brevity.
