CALIFORNIAN IS AN ENTHUSIAST OVER FISHING IN ROGUE

Wild with joy after landing a 42-pound salmon, measuring 42 inches in length somewhere in the Rogue River early Thursday, Delbert Halfhill, Los Angeles contractor and builder, bought three rolls of kodak films and used every one in securing pictures of his first real fish and himself.

The amateur fisherman whose experience in the art had been limited to eating sea food along California beaches, used an old six-ounce bamboo rod which he borrowed from Walter Leverett, his brother-in-law, with whom he has been visiting for a week.

It is no easy matter to land a heavy fish, according to Mr. Halfhill, who with his companion, Douglas Stewart, spent some time cornering the catch between rocks. Both of the men got wet up to their chins and all but stood on the fish to hold it. That night the salmon was taken to Ashland and displayed to friends.

"Just wait until I get back to Los Angeles and show people what grows in the Rogue river," Mr. Halfhill repeats several times a day, his relatives say.

2 CARS CRASH ON C. LAKE HIGHWAY

An auto wreck on the Crater Lake highway at "death curve" near Prospect yesterday afternoon resulted in two cars being badly damaged but the occupants of the cars fortunately escaped injury. Both cars had to be towed to this city for repairs. Each car owner blames the other for the accident, and claims to have had the right of way.

It seems that at 2:30 p. m. J. J. Hubbard, a veteran carpenter and builder of Lakeview, Ore., in his Ford coupe was proceeding toward the city at 10 miles an hour when Mrs. Gertrude Murray of 826 East 28th street, Oakland, Calif., in her Ford sedan, was proceeding upbound at about the same speed when the two cars came together. The impact, it is claimed, forced the lighter car some distance up the hill and across the road, but the railing at the road side prevented the cars from going over the high embankment.

SPECIAL VOTE ON STREET REPAIR

After a formal discussion of the subject at a joint meeting of the city council and the aviation committee of the chamber of commerce last night, it was decided to hold separate special elections for the $100,000 bond issue for the repair of streets, and the $110,000 bond issue for a new airport, and to defer the airport bond election until fall or early winter, by which time the supreme court decision on the Hesstorp bond issue for a new airport will have been received and certain other matters in connection with the proposed new airport here will have been ironed out.

The special election on the $100,000 bond issue for street repairs has been set for September 18.

VICTIM OF JULY 4TH JOKE IS RECOVERING

Twelve-year-old Walter Barnett of St. Helens, Ore., the victim of a Fourth of July prankster who set a match to the fuse of a star-shooter in the lad's pocket, is reported to be resting easily at the home of C. D. White of the Hergsdahl meat market. Mrs. Barnett arrived here this morning to help take care of her son.

The accident occurred at Lake Creek where Walter was attending a celebration. He jumped from the top row of seats in the grandstand as his clothing caught fire. Severe burns from his neck to his hips have caused him a great deal of suffering during the past few days.

WARM WEATHER STARTS FOREST FIRES IN HILLS

While the mountain sections on the Crater National forest are still damp, except for the south hillsides, yet it will take only a few days continuation of the present warm weather to dry them out and make them a forest fire menace.

Two small fires were discovered yesterday afternoon in the Crater forest, to which small fire-fighting groups were at once hurried, but the exact condition of each fire was unknown at the forestry office here this afternoon, as no further report had been received from either.

One of these fires was in a steep timbered hillside in the Applegate section near the conjunction of Butte fork with the Applegate river. The other fire was towards Needle Rock in the upper Rogue River district, and this was also a hillside fire in a steep, mountainous district.

Illustrating the alertness of the forest lookouts, each fire was reported by three lookouts in its respective section, the Needle Rock fire being reported by the Hershberger, Abbot Butte and Bald Mountain lookouts.

Each fire started in the afternoon and each was "man caused," it was thought at the Crater national forest office headquarters.

CHAN EGAN HAS CAL. GOLF COURSE READY FOR PLAY

DEL MONTE, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Fifteen of the new holes of the Pebble Beach course on which the national amateur golf championship will be played next year, have been completed, it was announced today. Thirteen of them will be open to the golfing public for the first time tomorrow. The remaining three holes will be opened shortly.

In the meantime, the temporary greens have been kept in good shape. H. Chandler Egan, Medford, Ore., former national champion, who has directed the task of improving the course, said.

Egan said the Pebble Beach course would become one of the half dozen greatest golf tests in the world as a result of the changes.

"The new tees and greens will prove a revelation to the foremost golfers of the country when they assemble here next September for the national amateur championship," he said.
