In his new book Trotzky says capitalists of every nation will force a war on Russia because capitalist nations feel they crush Soviet Russia.

They don't feel that way. Big imperialism is really big business, engaged in developing industry and making money, knows that war doesn't pay, and doesn't want any war with Russia. Fighting Russia is like fighting a feather bed. The deeper in you sink, the more you choke.

Imperialistic big business will sit quietly and watch Russian theorists fight each other—as when they threw out Trouzky.

Coolidge warned Hoover from overwork, urging him to watch his health. The writer warns Mr. Hoover against fast eating.

As a skillful engineer he would not allow any subordinate to treat a machine as he, Mr. Hoover, treats his own body.

His mind is working constantly. He eats absent-mindedly, in a hurry, never ceasing concentrated mental work.

In short, he lives as the late E. H. Harriman used to live. And only years of active outdoor life saved him. When Harriman went to see the German doctors, they said if he had eaten slowly, instead of seating his luncheon on his desk while he worked, and especially if he had taken light beer with his meals, to relax, he would have lived many years longer.

Herbert Hoover won't take light beer. Perhaps the German doctors were wrong about that, anyhow. But he will live longer, if he can be persuaded to eat more slowly, and stop concentrated thinking, at least during meals.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., most generously, has given $2,000,000 for students' building in Paris, in the new "University City," built on the site of the old Paris wall.

In the days when Abelard lectured at the Paris university, eager students climbed at night to tall steeples and there, away from street shadows, read their books by moonlight.

They heard lectures before daybreak, in cold, stone rooms, their half-frozen fingers writing painfully.

Miss Katherine Yocks, of Youngstown, Ohio, traveled miles and miles over the sands of Sahara thinking the sun would bring back her voice that she lost. IT DID.

She visited the Ghoul, of Marakesh, if you know who he is, in a dwelling 3000 years old in the Atlas mountains. The Ghoul probably knows as little about us as we know about him.

More interesting to many Americans, Miss Locke saw at Timbuctu, pens where American slavers once bought slaves from native chiefs.

Young men, playing jazz music in night clubs now, would be amazed to see those pens where their ancestors once stopped on the way to America. They would bless the slave traders that brought the ancestors here. We never know what is for our good.

CATHOLICS IN TERROR IN MEXICO

Priests Go Into Hiding for Fear of Reprisals for Obregon's Death — Labor Leaders Also Censured for Arousing Feeling Against Former Mexican President.

MEXICO CITY, July 21.—(AP)—Police today were tightening the net of evidence against Jose De Leon Toral, hoping to send him before a firing squad next week for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon.

It was expected that a public civil trial of the slayer would be started soon after expiration on Monday of a writ of amparo, or injunction restraining police and military authorities from taking any action against the slayer.

Investigation into the various phases of the killing went forward as additional arrests were made.

"The investigation will continue upon the same line that has marked it hitherto—that is, the responsibility of the Catholic clergy," said General Antonio Rios Zertuche, chief of police.

The newspaper El Sol asserts that terror prevails in Catholic circles. This is said to be particularly true in Guadalupe, where the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint, is situated. Catholic priests of the shrine, who since the religious laws became effective have performed no services but, dressed as laymen, have continued to live in that vicinity, are said to have gone into hiding.

Some members of the Knights of Columbus, a number of priests and the Sacristans of the shrine are known to have been questioned by police. No report of their examination has been made public.

Persons expressing any sentiment against Obregon are being watched closely. A woman, believed to be a housemaid, was overheard by a policeman to say:

Hint Anti-Catholic Plot

"Thank God, Obregon is dead," and was promptly arrested.

Newspapers assert that all information points to Toral being a religious fanatic. In certain quarters it is thought that this fanaticism might have been played upon by political enemies of General Obregon with the idea of making it appear that the slaying had a religious motivation.

Fifteen hundred members of the agrarian party, which supported General Obregon in his campaign, marched through the streets of the capital demanding that Luis Morones, secretary of labro, and other labor leaders resign from office. They asserted that the propaganda of the labor leaders against Obregon had prepared an atmosphere favorable for the crime.

Antonio Soto Gama, spokesman for the national agrarian party, said:

"We want President Calles to understand that the situation is most grave; the country is on the brink of a civil war and the denial of justice in Obregon's death means war with all its consequences."

El Universal Gratico printed what was claimed to be a stenographic report of President Calls' examination of the assassin shortly after the crime. In reply to Calls' question as to his motive the slayer was quoted as replying:

"I killed General Obregon at the command of Christ, the king, in order that the laws of His religion might reign in Mexico."

Vatican Explains

ROME, July 21.—(AP)—Osservatore Romano, official vatican organ, in an editorial today says that what is now happening in Mexico recalls what used to happen in Rome under Nero when the Christians were accused of setting fire to the city in order to be able to massacre them afterwards.

The newspaper stigmatizes the crime of Obregon's murder, but protests the assertion that it was inspired by religious sentiment and rejects the accusation that the crime was instigated by the Mexican episcopacy.

The editorial says that Osservatore Romano is glad because of announcement that there will be a public trial of the assassin instead of his execution within 24 hours, as was first reported here. Meanwhile, Osservatore adds, it is "worth nothing" that the name of the assassin had been changed several times and that only lately did the report circulate that religious objects were found upon his person.

Fair and Normal.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—(AP)—The weather outlook for the week beginning July 22, was announced here today by the United States weather bureau as follows:

Far western states: The outlook is for fair weather and normal temperatures over the interior and for considerable clouds and fogs on the coast during the coming week.

FINAL CURTAIN IS RUNG DOWN FOR MISS TERRY

Famed and Much Beloved English Actress Passes Away at Ripe Old Age of 80 — Sends Death Bed Message to America.

SMALL HYTHE, Kent, England, July 21.—(AP)—Dame Ellen Terry, British actress, beloved by playgoers the world over, died this morning in the little oaken farmhouse tucked away in the vales of Kent, where she had quietly spent the last years of her life.

Death came at 8:56 a. m., after an uncomfortable night, during which she sank slowly to the end. When dawn appeared the doctor announced the patient was considerably weaker. She passed away peacefully surrounded by relatives. Her death marked the final period of her hopeless struggle against a combination heart attack and cerebral hemorrhage, from which she had been sinking slowly since Tuesday.

Message to America.

A few days ago with the end approaching she gave the Associated Press this message for America:

"Give my love to America, and tell my dear friends there that I am thinking of them as I rest here in my quiet English countryside. When one is 80, one has dreams of days gone by and often many happy times I spent in in my dreams I live again the America. My heart is warm with the memories of my friends across the sea."

The whole wide world which loves such consummate art as that with which Ellen Terry charmed and thrilled lovers of the drama for more than half a century, was plunged into mourning by the news that the final curtain had been rung down on her great career.

There had been fears for some time that she whose life was the stage, would not much longer survive the definite withdrawal from it which her age compelled. She celebrated her 80th birthday last February. Miss Terry's daughter, Edith Craig, who gave up her career as a theatrical producer to be with her mother in retirement, and who has left her mother's room for only brief periods of rest during the last four days was at the bedside. The actress' son, Charles Terry, her favorite niece, Miss Olive Terry, and her companion, Miss Barnes, were also present.

Her Last Wish.

Miss Terry kept constantly at hand for daily reading, a little worn copy of "Imitation of Christ" by Thomas A. Kempis. Not long before she died, the following lines of verse, in her own hand, were found written across the fly leaf:

"No funeral gloom, my dears, when I am gone.
"Coffee-gazings, tears, black raiment, graveyard grimness.
"Think of me as withdrawn into the dimness.
"Yours still; you mine.
"Remember all the best of our past moments and forget the rest.
"And so, to where I wait, come gently on."

Below this was written: "I

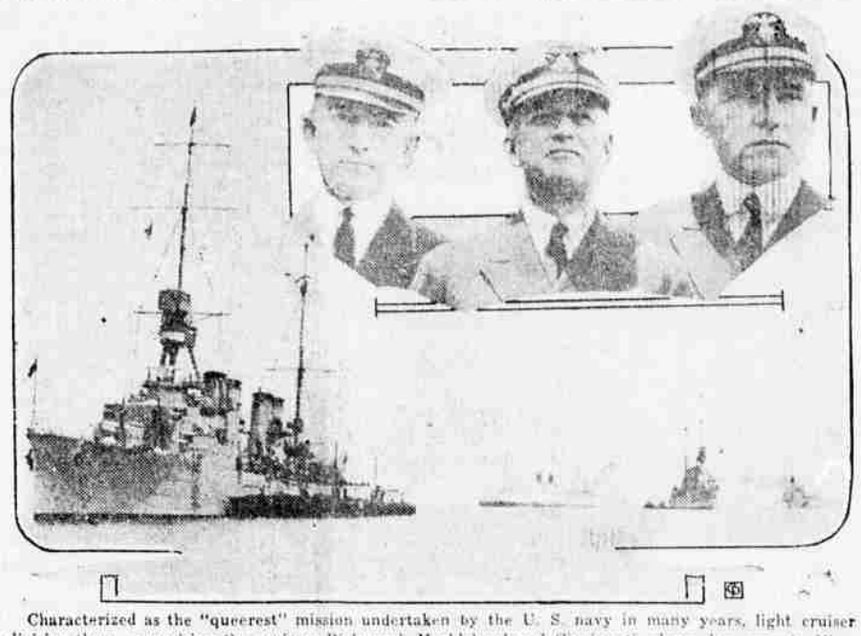
DRY LEADER IN INDIANA FAILS IN HIS APPEAL

INDIANAPOLIS, July 21.—(AP)—A sentence of 60 days on the state penal farm and a fine of $250 imposed on Dr. Edward R. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, for contempt of the Indiana supreme court, has been reaffirmed by that court. The court yesterday refused, however, to increase the sentence on a motion of Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom.

Conviction for contempt of court was obtained following publication of statements that certain members of the supreme court were prejudiced in deciding liquor appeals. The motion to increase the sentence was filed after the publication of correspondence between Shumaker and Senator James E. Watson. Attorney General Gilliom contended this correspondence indicated "corrupt attempts by Shumaker to corruptly influence a decision favorable to him."

An appeal to the United States supreme court now is the only means by which the dry leader may be able to avoid serving the sentence. Attorneys for Shumaker said they did not know whether an appeal would be taken. Dr. Shumaker declined to comment.

U. S. CRUISERS START ON NAVY'S "QUEEREST" MISSION



Characterized as the "queerest" mission undertaken by the U. S. navy in many years, light cruiser division three, comprising the cruisers Richmond, Marblehead and Cincinnati, above, has gone to Nicaragua with a picked crew of 270 men and 40 officers, all able to speak Spanish fluently. They are to scatter through Nicaragua with orders to mingle with the people and convince them of the friendliness of the United States. Left to right, above, Commander Tulley Shelley, leader of the friendship battalion; Captain Hugo W. Osterhaus, commander of the flagship Richmond, and Lieutenant Harrison, flag secretary.

OBREGON LAID TO REST AFTER BRIEF SERVICE

Family of Slain Mexican President Insist Upon Immediate Burial, So Official Plans Are Changed —Thousands Mourn Hero

NAVAJOA, Sonora, Mexico, July 21.—(AP)—The time of the funeral and burial services of General Alvaro Obregon have again been changed in respect to the wishes of the immediate family. General Obregon will be laid to rest at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

General Obregon came home today to a silent demonstration of respect and sympathy unequalled in all his brilliant earthly career as a soldier and statesman.

Tribes of stole Yaquis and Mayas, 3,000 federal Mexican troops and many more thousands of the people of all Mexico, were gathered today to meet the body of their chieftain and escort it to a final resting place.

Funeral services, in charge of the military and as simple as the hardy farmer of Cajeme could wish will be held this afternoon at the little village of Huatabampo, Obregon's birthplace.

An added touch of tragedy to a scene already almost over-laden with evidences of grief, was the collapse again of Senora Obregon this morning, as the funeral train slowly crept into the railroad station at Navojoa. The widowed mother of several children was inconsolable and an American physician, Dr. V. A. Smelker of Nogales, Ariz., was called to attend her.

Contrasting sharply with the streamers of black crepe draped everywhere about Navojoa, were the great banks of flowers brought by persons of every social rank and plane, as humble tokens of a respect lasting even into death.

Off in the distance to the south the blue peaks of the Alamos mountains framed a setting, beautiful even in its sombreness.

The burial of General Obregon in the broad lands bounding the Mayo river will bring him back to a final sleeping place, where, as a boy he often rested under the trees of the valley. It is the true home of the Obregons and there at the Hacienda de Siquisiva, Alvaro was born. All around lie the vast holdings of the man who rose to the premier position of his country, but was not proof against an assassin's bullets.

Billy Sunday Offers $5 Reward for the Return of His Teeth

HOOD RIVER, Ore., July 21.—(AP)—Reward of $5 has been offered by Billy Sunday, noted evangelist, for return of the lower plate of his false teeth set, which has been lost.

Mr. Sunday yesterday inserted an advertisement in a local newspaper. The teeth are gold plated, given to Sunday by an admiring dentist.

FIND DEAD MAN NEAR PACIFIC HIGHWAY HERE

An unidentified man, believed to be of middle age, was found dead at 7 o'clock this morning in an irrigation canal near the Owen-Oregon mill alongside the Pacific highway by William Vaughan of the Porter Lumber company. The man, who had a whiskey bottle in each hip pocket, is believed to have been dead for 10 days.

Deputy Coroner Stock was of the opinion this forenoon that the man had become intoxicated and then fell into the water accidentally and drowned. His features were unrecognizable as a result of the water action, which brought the body to the surface some time during the past 12 hours. The spot where it came up is easily seen from the Pacific highway.

Officers this afternoon were attempting to identify him, but if identification can not be made, he will probably be buried in the county tomorrow.

Deputy Coroner Stock and Sheriff Jennings thoroughly searched the dead man's clothing this forenoon, but could find no papers or letters, which could possibly give a clue to his name. All the deceased had on his person included four pennies, a pocket knife, an empty pocket book, a nearly empty tobacco pouch, a pack of cigarette papers, one full bottle of drug store bitters and a nearly empty bottle of moonshine.

A hat was found near the irrigation ditch, where the body was discovered, this forenoon by R. H. White, an employe of the ditch company operating the canal. The hat band did not carry the name of the establishment, where it was purchased.

The dead man was clothed in blue overall pants and a striped shirt and had reddish hair. This description dovetails with the description of a stranger who was noticed by a Mail Tribune reporter in Medford up until 10 or 12 days ago. This individual wore the same kind of clothes and spent much of his time sitting on a bench opposite the fire hall. The man, who was also noticed by fire department members, had no employment and in the late forenoon would come regularly to the Sixth street bench.

No one has been found who knew him and the possibility is strong that he is the drowned man found in the irrigation ditch. However, there can never be actual proof as the face was disfigured beyond recognition.

DENY FINANCIER MET WITH FOUL PLAY

Autopsy Shows Lowenstein Was Alive When He Plunged 4000 Feet to English Channel — Was He Poisoned?

CALAIS, France, July 21.—(AP)—Captain Alfred Lowenstein was still alive when he plunged 4000 feet from his airplane over the English channel, it was concluded by the medical men who turned in their autopsy report today.

At the request of relatives a further examination will be made of internal organs to determine whether poison or disease caused the Belgian financier's abnormal condition at the time of the tragedy. This is based upon the supposition that he tore off the collar and tie which were found in the plane. Evidence already has been given that just before leaving his seat for the rear of the machine he acted as if he were suffering.

The present autopsy finding disposes of suppositions that he might have met death in the plane. The implication that some other occupant of the ship was responsible for his passing was thus canceled.

The regular autopsy completed official formalities of the case here. Formal identification was officially reported and the body was placed in a coffin preparatory to its shipment to Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 21.—(AP)—Members of Captain Alfred Lowenstein's entourage denounced as "rubbish" rumors that arrests were imminent in connection with the crime hypothesis of the death of the noted capitalist. They said that these reports gained circulation when relatives insisted upon thorough postmortem examinations to clear up, if possible, the gossip respecting the banker's physical condition during the trip. The reports were reinforced by misinterpretation of the mutilated condition of the body. It was pointed out that this mutilation was such as would naturally result from a drop of 4000 feet and long submersion in the English channel.

The body is expected to arrive at Brussels tonight. It is the intention of the Lowenstein family to have it conveyed to a cemetery immediately and with the strictest privacy.

S. D. CROPS RUINED BY HAIL STORM

WESSINGTON SPRINGS, S. D., July 21.—(AP)—Approximately 100 square miles of crops from north of Wessington Springs southeast through Lane, were reported destroyed when a 20-minute hailstorm struck the section yesterday. The storm was said to be the most destructive within the memory of local residents.

The storm struck a district about four and a half miles wide and about 20 miles long, according to reports this morning.

Stones as large as hens' eggs, falling 20 minutes, beat the grain into the ground.

OLD WOMAN IN FEAR OF DEATH SHOT IN CHAIR

East Boston Window Found Dead in Kitchen With a Bullet Wound in Shoulder —Showed Fear of Violent Death for Many Years.

BOSTON, July 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Carrie Galdi, 69, East Boston widow, who, neighbors told police, had lived in fear of someone, was dead today with a small bullet wound penetrating the left shoulder.

She was found on her kitchen floor by a son, Arthur, late yesterday, but it was not until hours later when the medical examiner discovered that the wound could have been caused by a bullet that a search for her slayer was started.

The woman had been sitting in a rocking chair with her back toward a window which was open and screened when he left the house earlier in the day, Arthur declared. When he returned the window was closed and the screen, pierced by a small hole, was inside the room near the window.

Both Arthur and another son, Frank, a bricklayer, denied their mother had lived in fear, but neighbors and other relatives told of the extreme caution the aged woman used in opening her doors.

Some of those accustomed to visit her were only admitted after Mrs. Galdi had satisfied herself as to their identity, they said.

Baseball Scores

National.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—The Cubs nosed out the Giants by 2 to 1 in a bitter 15-inning game here today as the first part of a double header. Fred Fitzsimmons went the route for the Giants, against the veteran Artie Nehf. Guy Bush and Percy Lee Jones. Beck's homer tied the score for the Cubs in the sixth and Stephenson's single sent Maguire home with the winning run in the 15th.

KLAMATH MURDER SUSPECT FREED

CONDON, Ore., July 21.—(AP)—A man taken into custody here late yesterday on suspicion of being John Meek, wanted at Klamath Falls on a murder charge, was released today after two officers from Klamath Falls declared the suspect was not the fugitive.

The district attorney and a deputy sheriff of Klamath county, after an all-night ride, arrived here today, and after being shown the prisoner, said he was not Meek. The prisoner answered several features of Meek's description, including a scar over one eye.

The suspect was taken into custody at a road construction camp near here late yesterday after Sheriff Logan had been informed that the man probably was the Klamath Falls fugitive.

Meek has been sought since last December, when Johnnie Ansil was slain in a store robbery.

HOOVER TO HAVE QUIET WEEK-END

Republican Candidate Will Attend Church Tomorrow and Remain Quietly at Home — First of Week, However, Will Have Conferences With Governor Young, Hiram Johnson and Others.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., July 21.—(AP)—Abandoning his original plans for a quiet week end at his home here, Herbert Hoover today began a series of political conferences which will be continued intermittently until the time of his notification on August 11.

Governor C. C. Young of California was invited to luncheon and for a discussion afterwards in Mr. Hoover's study.

During the early days of next week, Mr. Hoover will confer with Senator Hiram Johnson and leaders from other Pacific coast states.

Mr. Hoover will spend Sunday quietly at home, but will attend church services, most likely in the beautiful chapel at Stanford university.

Between times, the nominee will work on his acceptance address. Mr. Hoover usually writes and re-writes his papers and speeches several times.

After the speech is ready for the printer, the republican standard-bearer will take to the hills, at some point in his home state, for several days of rest and fishing.

Need of Vacation.

While he has benefitted by the trip across the continent, the commerce secretary has had many months of hard work with scarcely a break, and he feels both the desire and the need for a brief vacation.

Those who travelled across the country with Mr. Hoover from Washington noticed a day by day change in him. When he boarded the train a week ago today, he appeared greatly fatigued and in the early stages of the journey it was with apparent effort that he faced the crowds which gathered at the stations along the line to extend greetings.

After the rest at the summer White House in northern Wisconsin, his old buoyancy began to return and as his special train swung into the far west, he seemed carefree and happy, and met the welcoming crowds with a genial smile.

He spoke briefly to the assembled groups and frequently carried on conversations with individuals. The thing that seemed to give him the greatest pleasure was shaking hands with the small boys.

Happy to Get Home.

Those who saw the nominee said he seemed happy to be back home once more on the campus of the university where he was educated.

His first home here was a rather small frame structure, rented. Then he purchased a larger home, but this did not quite suit Mrs. Hoover, who designed the present structure, which embodies her ideas of a thoroughly sunlit home. The building covers a rather large area, and is set in the middle of a beautiful garden on a gently sloping hillside.

The main entrance is on the upper side of the hill and leads to the second floor, where there is a spacious entrance hall, and beyond a huge living room with a fireplace, opening into dining room and breakfast alcove.

House Is Attractive.

Beyond these stretches a wing containing the kitchen, pantries and servants' quarters. To the left of the entrance hall on the same floor are Mr. Hoover's study and the family sleeping rooms.

Opening off the reception hall, directly opposite the main entrance door, is a brick paved terrace with gayly colored canvas covering. There are also an open fireplace and a profusion of potted plants. From the end of the terrace one may view the rear part of the grounds where there is a swimming pool. Closer still is the inner garden, with its profusion of trailing vines and beautiful flowers.

On the first floor are several guest rooms and two other rooms which are now being converted into workrooms for the Hoover headquarters.

Atop the main building and exactly in its center rises a third floor, much smaller than the main building, where also there are family and guest rooms.

Perhaps Zach Will

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Colonel Zach Mulhall intends to startle the boys back home in Oklahoma. The ex-rough rider and two-gun sheriff is visiting town. "I guess I'll buy one of these flying machines," he said. "The boys on the ranch will drop dead when they see me."
