

"A Night in Spain" Coming to Craterian August 13th---Good Attractions at Medford Theatres This Week

Top—Twenty-one reasons why Medford people are looking forward eagerly to the sensational Shubert presentation, "A Night in Spain," which is coming to Hunt's Craterian August 13. This unusual show, which has been the subject of more comment than any show in the last year or two, will feature Phil Baker, Ted Healy and Aileen Stanley. There will be the 18 Gertrude Hoffmann girls, 70 charming serenitists and altogether 162 people actually engaged. Left—Emil Jannings and Fay Wray, who star in "The Street of Sin," which is the film attraction Sunday at the Craterian. Middle—Bebé Daniels is back again in her latest comedy skit, "Hot News," which will be shown at the Rialto tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. Right—Resista, Jr., the little girl who no man can lift, will be featured in one of the regular Wednesday night Association Vaudeville programs at the Craterian. Bottom—"Lights of New York," the world's first all-talking picture, will delight Legion convention guests who visit the Craterian beginning Thursday. This Vitaphone super-production is one of the sensations of the year.

Good Vaudeville Craterian Wednesday

Strong men, scientists and athletes of every civilized country in the world have tried to lift Resista Jr., the 85 pound girl appearing Wednesday night at Hunt's Craterian theatre, and as yet no one has succeeded in lifting the dainty little lass when she wills that she shall not be lifted.

The management of the theatre invites local athletes and strong men to match their strength against the power of Resista. Local scientists are likewise invited to witness the demonstration, and it may be possible that in the city of Medford the solution of the mysterious problems that has baffled leaders of science elsewhere may be solved.

Many and varied are the answers to the problem: "How does she do it?" Some investigators of Resista Jr. have affirmed that the power that pulls Resista to the floor is electrical or magnetic, but with every appliance known to science, these investigators have sought for electrical and magnetic forces in vain. It has been claimed by some that the force is muscular and the feat performed by clever muscular manipulation. Even the men who claim this admit that a person cannot exercise muscular force to keep the body from being lifted from the earth. Others argue that if muscular power is used it would witness private tests of this marvelous phenomena are convinced that it is one of the most remarkable inexplicable problems that has ever dawned on the horizon of science.

SHUBERT REVUE COMING TO CITY

The management of Hunt's Craterian theatre announces that "A Night in Spain," which is playing one week between California and Minneapolis, will positively appear on Monday, August 13. Medford is very fortunate in having been chosen, inasmuch as such important cities as Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver will not have an opportunity to see this attraction.

"A Night in Spain" comes with the prestige of its twenty week stay at the Four Cohans, Chicago, and previously for the major part of the season at the Forty-fourth Street theatre and Winter Garden, New York. Press comment in both cities mentioned the show as being one of the best extravaganzas that the Shuberts have ever sponsored. Both in point of sheer merit and advanced ideas it is credited with being superior to "Gay Paree," previous holder of revue honors.

Continental ideas and disregard for conventionalities distinguish the show. The cast is identical with that seen in both New York and Chicago, including as it does Phil Baker, Ted Healy, Aileen Stanley, eighteen Gertrude Hoffmann Girls from the Moulin Rouge, Helga Huva, Coriza & Peggy, Paul & Pearl, Edith Brown, Sid Rivers, Michel Ash, Bob Stansley, George Anderson, Glen Dale, Barbara Vernon, Tito Coral, Bobby Pinkus, Sam Brown, Larry Pine, J. Emil Jannings at Craterian Tonight

If we needed any further proof that Emil Jannings is the screen's greatest character star "The Street of Sin," which opens at Hunt's Craterian today, would suffice. This master stroke of motion picture literature with its daring treatment and amazing fidelity to life will color your thoughts for months.

Jannings' American debut in "The Way of All Flesh" was a sensation. "The Last Command" established his reputation among us. "The Street of Sin," set in the swarming London slums, is the star's own creation. It was written from his original idea by Josef von Sternberg and Benjamin Glazer and was directed most ably by Mauritz Stiller, who seems to sense fully the particular genius of the German actor.

Jannings' latest characterization is written with a mighty hand, albeit a human one. The majority will agree that it is worth seeing more than once.

"Two acts of 'Talkies' of exceptional quality are all the more reason for one to want to see this show more than once.

Diplomat Likes Music

THE HAGUE (AP)—Richard M. Todd of California, United States minister to the Netherlands, is known in Holland as the music fan of the diplomatic set. He is not only to be found at every concert of note given in The Hague, Amsterdam, or Rotterdam, but to American artists giving concerts in Holland he is of great assistance.

"It Leads to Reno" Is Frank's Comedy

Once more Mr. Frank is presenting one of the season's current hits, a play full of sensation, melodrama and a rich vein of comedy. "It Leads to Reno" starts its action, and never retards until the two-hour comedy drama has finished, and those who have witnessed it, certainly know they have been somewhere and many a young wife or young husband will think twice before they have their next family quarrel. As an added feature, the Terrible Turk will meet Mr. LeRoy, Medford's strong man, on Sunday night only, to compete in feats of strength.

Starting Wednesday, Frank's comedians will present "We're in the Army Now." The performance Thursday will start at 9:30, as Thursday will be Legion night.
