

PORTLAND MAN SHOT TO DEATH AT BREAKFAST

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 2.—(AP) Shot to death with a bullet from a small rifle, the body of K. D. Dewey, 60, was found today seated upright at the breakfast table of his ranch home just outside of Portland.

Officers started a hunt for Rex Mead, a 17-year old boy, who had been employed by Dewey as a chore boy.

The shot was fired from the kitchen doorway while Dewey was seated at the table. The bullet hit Dewey in the back of the neck. The 22-caliber rifle, from which the fatal shot had been fired, was found resting against the kitchen door.

Officers said the slayer had planned the crime carefully. A rug had been laid on the kitchen floor in such a position as to permit approach to a point of vantage freely, without detection.

Scattered about the house were Dewey's personal effects, including the contents of a suit case in which he was known to have kept considerable money. Several bank-books and wallets were left on the kitchen table. A few checks made out in Dewey's name were left untouched. A neighbor found the body this morning.

Dewey and the boy had returned yesterday from Seaside, where they had been for a week's vacation. Dewey formerly was a shipping clerk in Portland.

He had spent his time recently improving small farms and selling them. His wife from whom he was separated has been living in Portland.

Dewey's place was on the base-line road at Rockwood.

The sheriff's office sent telegrams broadcast seeking the arrest of young Mead. Officers on all northern highways as well as toward the coast were requested to keep a lookout.

Records show that young Mead was arrested on July 11, last year, when he was found sleeping in a park room in Portland. The boy told the police then that he had twice been in the Frazer detention home. Frazer home said young Mead had given them trouble when he was there.

At the time he was taken to the detention home, his mother refused to take care of him, officers reported. She said Rex would not stay at home.

On one occasion the boy ran away to the home of his grandmother at Yankton, near St. Helena, and another time he ran away and was found in San Diego. His mother sent for him.

Juvenile records show that the lad has been in trouble since he was nine years old.

WANTS BETTER FISHING

(Continued from Page One) William Donovan, assistant United States attorney general, with Milton Eberger of San Francisco, completed the party, said that traveling in small boats, the secretary and his companions had worked the whole lake by cross-sections and were convinced there were very few fish in the lake.

After working back and forth, the fishermen returned to the shore for lunch and rest under the shade there. They had another try at it, but quit later in the afternoon and motored about.

that he believes it will be impossible to obtain adoption of the equalization fee plan for farm relief, no matter which party is in power.

As he analyzed and attacked democratic convention planks on farm issues and argued that they failed to harmonize even with Governor Smith's personal views, Senator Watson said it was "unthinkable" for the farmer to hope to secure adequate protective tariff rates through the democratic party.

"Whether the equalization fee plan can be adopted or not, the existence of the agricultural interests of this country depends absolutely on the maintenance of a high protective tariff, higher on most agricultural products than

LOCAL YOUTH IS PUT IN JAIL ON CHARGE OF GIRL

K. Archer, 19, local youth, was scheduled to have a hearing in Judge Taylor's court this afternoon on a statutory charge, following his arrest last night by Police Officer William Peck for an alleged attack on a 15-year-old local girl, whom officers say Archer knocked unconscious with his fist and then assaulted her.

The girl whose name is withheld by the police, was attacked in the rear of the Hilarity hall dance pavilion at 10:30 last night and remained senseless for a short time. When she regained consciousness her attacker had disappeared and she staggered to a nearby street and there told a motorist, whom she knew, of what had happened. The police were summoned and Archer's arrest was made a short time later after which he was immediately placed in jail.
