Mary Astor Coming to Rialto Tomorrow

"Three Ring Marriage," coming to the Rialto theatre tomorrow, which co-features Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, is a genuine blown-in-the-bottle circus story, with the flavor of the sawdust ring, red lemonade, clowns, bareback riders and wild animals.

It is a genuine circus story for most of the cast is made up of circus performers, and a real circus was staged intact, from opening pageant to hippodrome races.

"Three Ring Marriage" is the picturization of Dixie Wilson's gay romance of the circus, "Help Yourself to Hay." It was directed by that master of comedy touches, Marshall Neilan, and it gives both Miss Astor and Hughes ideal opportunities for their talents in the roles of circus riders.

There are giants and midgets, clowns and prancing horses, blaring bands and flying trapeze artists as the background for this interesting story.
