LOCAL FIRM HIGH IN TIRE CONTEST

In a state-wide "big league" contest between Oregon Goodyear dealers, the Medford Service Station of this city is scoring an exceptionally fine record, according to "fittingness" returns recently received by C. C. Farnas. The novel contest, which is national in its scope, is known in Goodyear circles as the "Big Ruth baseball contest" and will continue until September 1st. As a trophy for winning the first five "innings" of the contest, the Medford Service Station has received a baseball, in a handsome plush lined box, which has been autographed by Babe Ruth himself. This trophy designates the local Goodyear dealers as winners in the first division. Haura Tire Company of Portland was second in this division.

After the contest closes, the winner will enjoy a banquet and receive an attractive trophy and the Medford Service Station is ambitious to win the coveted distinction of being first in Oregon.

Tourist travel through Medford and southern Oregon is practically at its peak now, according to C. C. Farnas of the Medford Service Station. "We have been literally flooded with tourist business during the last few weeks and our repair department has been exceptionally busy," Mr. Farnas said.

MANY REPORTS OF FUTURE BUILDING ACTIVITY HERE

Several important realty deals and building projects are now pending in this city, one being of sufficient size to radically change the skyline of Medford.

The past week an option was taken on the Maule estate property at the corner of Ninth street and Riverside avenue. It is said that the Friesens Tire company plans the erection of a tire station there. Members of the Medford Realty Board appraised the property Tuesday.

It is also understood that Union Oil company has taken an option on the lot across the street, belonging to E. J. Emwick, with the intention of erecting a service station there. Mr. Emwick is now in the Middle West at the Astor estate conference for possession of property in the heart of New York.

For some time past negotiations have been under way for the purchase of the E. E. Gates building at Riverside and Sixth streets, now the home of the Ford agency. According to C. E. Gates, three or four parties are negotiating for the property. He recently purchased the Jane Kent property at Fifth and Riverside avenues, as a home for his agency. If the present property is sold, for three months there has been talk of the erection of a ten-story office building in that city, and an auto finance company is now reported as interested in the proposition. It is now said to be marking time owing to this being "an election year."

Two sites have been considered for this structure. One is the lot on Front street, across from the old city hall. The other is the corner of Main and Fir streets, owned and occupied by a one-story building belonging to Charles W. Palm. It has long been one of Mr. Palm's ambitions, when returns would justify a heavy investment to erect a modern business structure in his home town.

A plan to place another story on the Medford building at the corner of Main street and Central avenue, now undergoing alterations preparatory to occupancy by Jarmin and Woods, has been abandoned.

The fall and spring building operations in this city, from the preliminary talk promise to be the largest in history.
