Girl Scouts of Troop Two Hold Regular Meeting.

The Girl Scouts of Troop Two held their regular meeting Friday evening at the Y. W. C. A. club rooms, under the leadership of their captain, Allen C. Wilson. Mrs. Mary Chaney, the president of the American Legion Auxiliary, their sponsoring body, presented the troop with the Girl Scouts standard colors, a troop flag and an American flag. This was a most welcome surprise for the girls as they have wanted flags ever since being organized in January. A rising vote of thanks was given to the American Legion Auxiliary for their gift to the troop.

The remainder of the evening was spent in wrapping packages and filling Red Cross Christmas bags. Medford's quota is twenty five bags and seven articles are placed in each one. The girls enjoy doing this sort of service for the community and community organizations. This is the second year they have been able to assist the Red Cross.

Troops one and two will not meet again until August 21st when they will be guests of the Boy Scouts at their Armory stunt show to be given that evening.

Girl Scouts will gather at the Y. W. C. A. at that time and attend in a body.

The Court of Awards will be held on the first Friday in September at the regular meeting place.

Legion Auxiliary Notes

The Americanization department of the Crater Lake Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will start their regular classes for the instruction of applicants for citizenship, Wednesday, August 15th. These classes are held in the Medford Public Library each Wednesday at 7:00 p. m. under the leadership of Mrs. D'Abiani.

In the past these classes have been very popular with those needing help in passing examination for final papers. Anyone who expects to apply for his final papers within the next six months is invited to attend. There are no charges connected, the instruction and texts used are free.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Governor Young's office has granted a request for extradition to Oregon of J. J. O'Neill, alias H. L. Dodson, held by police of Pittsburg, Cal.

May Appear in Concert Here

Irene Hampton Thorne, gifted artist pianist, who has been here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Brown, left last evening for her home in Seattle to re-open her studio.

At the last concert sponsored by the "Coast Artists" when Mrs. Thorne appeared as one of the two artists featured, she received the following high and unqualified praise: "Mrs. Thorne, a favorite concert pianist who has won the acclaim of critics through her artistry was warmly greeted, and won an ovation on her playing of 'La Danse d'Opal'."

The many friends of this gifted artist sincerely hope that she may give a concert in Medford sometime in the early autumn.

Mrs. Rallsback's group presented a splendid program which was as follows: Hymn, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," Talk, "What is the Survey," by Mrs. Collins. The United Christian Missionary society has completed a survey of its fields and forces both at home and abroad and has published a book, "From Survey to Service," from which all the programs for the year will be taken and the survey was explained in Mrs. Collins' talk.

A very complete paper, giving the location of all mission stations and an outline of all work carried on in the various stations was read by Mrs. Everett Eads as a favor to Mrs. Kindred who had carefully prepared the paper but who was unable to attend the meeting.

A short discussion followed, participated in by several women and the missionary benediction was repeated in closing. It was unanimously decided that a pleasant and profitable day had been spent.

Ramblings of a Foot Creeker

REDWOOD PARK, Calif., July 6.—I closed my former letter with a P. S. saying it was cold here. At Redwood we met north bound people from Griddy who told us the weather had been very hot in the Sacramento valley, but a cool wave was on just then. So if we moved right along we might get thru the valley while it was pleasant. That was why we made little delay, except to rest and to put Lizzie in a good humor—but the further we went the more "pleasant" the weather became. If it was gauged by a falling thermometer. By Saturday a high wind blowing on our right beam, as a sailor would say, made it so very "pleasant" that my wife put on my winter overcoat and wrapped her legs in a woolen blanket. As I said before, we camped over Sabbath at Mt. Hermon. There all the cottages hung on the hillsides and in the trees much like bird's nests, and the very small space available for tents also had a sharp slant and had no provision for fires. When we arrived here on Monday at an elevation of a thousand feet the "pleasantness" increased. But here the camp site is flat with place for fire at each tent and dry wood to be had for the getting, or could be purchased.

We set our tent here, for the first time, without attaching to the car, and as soon as dinner was done, which we cooked on our gas stove, we drove out possibly half a mile and got wood. We started a fire and have kept it going almost constantly ever since until today. And as I write this evening it is going again. This morning at 7:00 o'clock a big thermometer at the warden's office read 51 degrees, so you may understand why we have crawled in bed now.

When we arrived here I was wearing a straw hat. For the previous two or three days I had seen none. So you may imagine my delight when, that same day, a car drove up and made camp just next to us and the driver was wearing a Panama. I was feeling about as conspicuous as a man would feel on the streets of Medford wearing the stove-pipe variety. So I soon went over and grasped his hand expressing my pleasure to see him—or rather his hat. He told how it kept stretching, and showed me the big roll of newspaper he had cut under the awning and to keep it from going down over his ears, but I assured him on my word of honor as a gentleman and a traveler that it was the very finest hat I had ever seen.

In my last I made some reference to dam sites, and I said our tent is close by one. Well this dam makes a sizeable pool, and in spite of the cold weather at almost an hour of the day there are snails there. My wife declares they are damn sights, and if I don't stay away she will put blinders on me. But I tell her there is only one and it's a dam site, and I am merely trying to figure out why those girls don't freeze to death.

MT. HERMON, Aug. 3.—The foregoing letter got laid aside and almost forgotten, but all I said about the cold has continued true until the last 10 days. We came over here the first, but until our last day at Redwood park we hugged the fire every night and generally with our winter wraps on.

We have read in the Mail Tribune about your excessive heat wave in Oregon, and a man lately told me how the heat in the San Joaquin valley melted the beads on his wife's neck; so perhaps it will make you feel cooler to think of us hugging the fire to keep warm. When we would go to the bowl for the evening entertainment we would get so close to the big fire of rails it would seem it ought to melt the solder off a tin-can, but it won't make us just about comfortable.

Now for a bit of philosophy. We are told that when we burn a piece of wood we are liberating heat which was stolen out of the sunbeams by the tree from which the wood was taken. If that is true, when the trees are 200 feet tall—one of them is said to 330 feet—and grows very dense, how much heat could there be left after the sunbeams have passed thru such a mass of foliage? I don't know, but I do know that with our tent in the sunshine here at Mt. Hermon, only 17 miles distant, the climate is very different.

Last Monday we went to Santa Cruz, a distance of 23 miles, to buy some provisions and see the sights. We had been warned by a resident of the city to keep away from the beach or we would see a lot of girls whose fathers had recently died and left them a legacy. Well I have a sort of natural instinct to comfort them that mourn, and my wife was just wild for a legacy too. So of course we went. I will merely add, we seen it. But as my wife wants to write again I will leave it to her to tell about it.

WM. M. CARLE.

P. S. I might remark that an error of the printer in my wife's last letter describing the doings of the Girls' Reserve on the platform of the Big Bowl made the matter considerably worse than the facts. However the facts were had enough.

DEVILS LAKE—Extensive improvements in building being carried on here.

Wedding Bells

Miss Jennie Elcher of Central Point and Frank Howard of this city were united in marriage at the home of Dr. J. J. P. Bray on Lozier lane at 6 p. m. Saturday, August 11. WOMEN IN MAJORITY HOOPER'S ACCEPTANCE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 11.—(AP)—A colorful crowd, in which women predominated, braved a scorching sun for hours today in this huge oval to participate in the greatest political event in state history—the official notification of Herbert Hoover that he carries the hopes of the republican party in the 1928 presidential race.

They had come to witness the first spectacle of its kind in California and to hear the state's most distinguished son enunciate the principles and the issues upon which he asks for a four year term in the White House, beginning next March 4.

SALZM, Ore., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The World Publishing company, which recently suspended publication of the Salem World, has filed suit against Jack O'Day for the recovery of $1000. It is alleged that O'Day received this amount, which he failed to credit to the publishing concern. His automobile has been attached.

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Fire losses in Oregon outside of Portland during the month of July totaled $1,301,442, says a monthly report of Clara A. Lee, state insurance commissioner. The loss was the heaviest for a single month in two years. The heaviest loss was at Lebanon, where several buildings were destroyed with an estimate damage of $200,000, and Klamath Falls suffered a $250,000 loss.
