Divide et Impera.
 Our African Teacher.
 Russia's Navy.
 Catapulting Planes.

(Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.)

Japanese statesmanship has adopted western ideas, this motto, DIVIDE ET IMPERA, "divide and govern." That was the motto of Louis XI, of France, who said the more his nobles fought each other, the greater would be his power.

Japan divides China by forbidding Manchuria, where Japan has heavy interests, to join with China's national government.

Five nights in succession Great Britain's air forces will wage make-believe war against the great city of London, a war of deadly gas that could kill every human being in London or New York in a few hours.

One hundred and fifty airplanes will attack, while hundreds of machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, searchlights and sound detectors will see what they can do to meet the attack. Instead of real gas or TNT bombs, imitation bombs will be dropped.

In America we have a simpler plan, borrowed from a great African authority. We didn't borrow it from Hannibal, ancient Carthaginian hero, but from that noble denizen of the desert, the ostrich. When he is frightened, or sees danger, according to tradition, he buries his head in the sand. His theory is that if he doesn't see the danger, the danger can't see him.

While Pilsudski, most powerful man in Poland, addressed his veterans, Russia's navy was making a display of power off Lithuania. That annoys Europe.

Russia's navy isn't big, but it is more powerful than Germany since her defeat.

Russia owns some modern battleships, with names curious to us. One is called "October Revolution." Another "Paris Commune."

More important to Russia and Europe is the fact that aviation is taught in the Russian public schools, and a bolshevik flying organization, studying aerodynamics, has 5,000,000 members.

Yesterday afternoon the French He de France, bound for New York, 450 miles out, launched from her deck by catapult a powerful amphibian plane loaded with mail.

The amphibian leaving the He de France at 1 o'clock, arrived in New York with the mail at 5:10 o'clock the same afternoon.

A pleasant, useful experiment. It wouldn't be so pleasant to have on the Pacific or the Atlantic ships from Europe or Asia, launching bombs and deadly gas bombs. Let's hope this catapulting of planes from ships will confine itself to mail delivery, at least until, if ever, we have a respectable fighting air fleet.

Herbert Hoover talked to 70,000 people standing before him, all of whom heard him distinctly, thanks to voice amplifying devices. Millions on the Atlantic seaboard heard him over the radio before he was heard by those 100 yards away in the crowd from him. His voice, carried by electricity at 126,000 miles a second, went 3000 miles before his voice, carried by sound waves, could go 100 yards.

Twenty-four hours before Herbert Hoover spoke in California he

FIND BODY OF MISSING EXPLORER

Professor Hornsby and Two Companions, Missing Two Years, Found By Canadian Mounted Police in Wilds of Canada—Apparently Didn't Survive the Winter.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Another mystery of the north has been solved by the Canadian mounted police, who radioed today that the bodies of John Hornsby, explorer, and his two nephews, had been found in a lonely cabin west of Hudson Bay, death having apparently been caused by starvation.

For two years no word had been heard of the explorer and his nephews, swallowed up in the silence of icy wastes.

The wireless message received here today from Staff Sergeant M. S. Joyce of the mounted police at Chesterfield Inlet, said that the bodies were found in a cabin on the north bank of the Thelon river in the barren land west of Hudson Bay.

Men who had known Hornsby, paid high tribute to him today at the explorers' club in New York city. They said that ever since his disappearance it had been feared that he had become a victim of the rigors of the north, but hope had been sustained until the last. An exploration party which went into the region only recently, they said, had been instructed to make every attempt to determine his fate and make sure that he and his party were not marooned alive in some spot from which they could not get back to civilization without assistance.

It was said that Hornsby, who was born in Lancashire, England, in 1874, was a man in the forefront of his profession. From 1900 until the war he conducted a series of journeys into the region where he was to die later. He fought for two years in the war and later resumed his exploration in the north country that he loved. It was said to have been a close friend of Vilhjalur Stefansson.

Didn't Survive Winter.

A search for the Hornsby party has been in progress since December. In June 1926 they left Fort Reliance at the eastern end of Great Slave lake in a canoe in an attempt to reach Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay before winter. They took no dogs.

Indians reported seeing the party in 1926. In the summer of 1927 the last authentic word of Hornsby was brought by trappers. In an abandoned camp near the Canada river this note, dated in 1928, was found.

"Traveling slowly. Elles had shot a fat buck caribou. Hope to see you down the Hanbury this winter."

The party apparently did not survive the winter. Their bodies were found sixty miles below where the Hanbury river empties into the Len river. The river junction is 20 miles west of Chesterfield Inlet.

SENATOR MOSES "NOTIFIES" HOOVER

Chairman of the notification committee, Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, shown above at the "mike," traveled 2000 miles to advise Herbert Hoover the Republican convention at Kansas City had chosen him the party's standard bearer for the 1928 presidential campaign.

3 MEMBERS OF HOOVER SPEECH FAMILY DIE IN GIVEN PRAISE SUMMER HOME BY PRESIDENT

Early Morning Fire in Redwood City Fatal to Wife and Son of Wealthy San Francisco Man—Father Saves Himself.

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Three persons were burned to death here today in a fire which swept the summer home of Sol Koff, a wealthy San Francisco real estate man. Four others were injured.

The dead are Mrs. Leah Koff, Howard Koff, 7, and Miss Rose Heyman, a New Jersey school teacher, a cousin.

The injured were Sol Koff, whose leg was severely cut in a leap from a second floor window; the Koff's nine-month-old son, treated for smoke inhalation; Miss Jane Movietto, the baby's nurse, sprained ankle, bruises and shock; and Mrs. A. Rebenzer, cook, sprained wrist and bruises.

The fatalities resulted from suffocation. Members of the Redwood City fire department worked over the three bodies at the scene of the fire in an attempt to revive them.

The fire, which broke out at 3 a. m. may have resulted from a chimney defect, as the family last night burned a large mass of timbers in a fireplace, preparatory to returning to their San Francisco home today.

Koff received his injuries when he leaped through a pane of glass. Within the dwelling were his wife, two sons and other household members.

Miss Movietto and Mrs. Rebenzer followed Koff's example and saved themselves by jumping from the top floor of the two-story house. A boy was reported to have dashed into the burning house and rescued the infant son. Firemen who arrived carried out the unconscious forms of Mrs. Koff, her son and Miss Heyman, but they could not be resuscitated.

From the position of the bodies, the three had tried to escape, but had been overcome by the smoke that poured up from the first floor. The home was owned by the pastor of the Redwood City Congregational church, Rev. R. J. Currie. He was to have moved into the dwelling today. Firemen confined the flames to the lower floor.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 14.—(AP)—William C. DeMille, motion picture producer, and Clara Beranger, scenario writer, were married in the drawing room of a westbound Santa Fe passenger train as it stopped here this morning.

DeMille arrived here last night from Los Angeles and arranged to have the county clerk at the train with the marriage license and with him a justice of the peace to perform the ceremony.

When the train arrived here the three boarded it and went to Miss Beranger's drawing room, where the ceremony was performed. She had come from New York city. An effort was made to keep the marriage secret.

DeMille accompanied his bride on to Los Angeles.

BILL TELLS SMITH TO GO SLOW

If New York Governor Acts Up or Tries to Wise-Crack His Way Out of Charges, Wm. Allen White Says He Will Publish Full Report of Smith Vice Record.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Wm. Allen White, Kansas editor who recently made numerous charges against Governor Smith, denied in a cablegram to former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas made public today, that he had ever retract any of his charges.

The cablegram follows:

"In my case against Governor Smith, I have made no retraction. On the position issue I proved my case and a conviction and suspended the sentence. I only do this because I felt that a debate on the subject of hubbly was not worthy of a presidential campaign. But if Governor Smith tries to wise crack his way out of his record I shall come back at him with the iron evidence."

"The complete photostatic transcript of the Smith record is in New York, and I will order it produced if the democratic candidate acts up."

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Thomas H. Love of Dallas, who has announced he would support Herbert Hoover for president, today withdrew as a candidate for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Love said he believed it improbable that he could defeat Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller in the run off primary August 25. Miller has pledged support to Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, the party's presidential nominee.

ROGUE R. VALLEY BOOSTS R. ROAD ACROSS STATE

Jack Harvey of Grants Pass Is Witness at I. C. C. Hearing in Portland—Crescent City Connection Stressed—Local Resources Cited.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Rogue River valley today added its support to the state public utility commission's petition for a cross-state line through central Oregon. At an interstate commerce commission hearing, J. R. Harvey, of the Grants Pass chamber of commerce, described the resources of the Rogue river country and declared that the cross-state line would afford a better outlet for lumber, fruit, dairy products and minerals, which are produced.

He said that connections between this proposed line and a projected line running from Grants Pass to Crescent City, Cal., would give a shorter route for east-bound imports.

Mr. Harvey offered a vision of a country, rich in agriculture, mineral and lumber, with small railroads bringing commodities to a central point for distribution, and pointed to the necessity of giving this central point a greater outlet.

Mr. Harvey described a wealth of lumber in the national forest, which, according to experts, could yield a harvest of 500,000,000 feet of seasoned lumber each year, bringing the government $1,000,000 annually, as long as only the ripe timber is harvested.

He pointed out the crops, saying that apples and pears were the principal harvest and that these fruits particularly were affected by a hail of one or two additional days and that anything that could be done to shorten their trip to New York and London would bring a better value and the equivalent of a higher grade of fruit.

According to the witness the mountains thereabouts held 47 different varieties of metal minerals, many of which were being mined at the present time.

The Rogue River valley, as a nursery center for bulbs and shrubbery, is fast gaining a reputation in eastern markets, he said, and there has been rapid gain in dairy products.

Mr. Harvey also called attention to the proposed further development of Crescent City on the coast of Del Norte county, which can be connected with the Rogue River valley by rail. He pointed out the possibility of moving incoming eastbound freight through this point.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Twelve forest and brush fires burned throughout the night in California, Washington, British Columbia and Idaho, while fire fighters fought with varied success to bring the flames under control.

Over night a number of conflagrations were reported on the Pacific northwest. The fire razing at Sooke district on Vancouver Island, British Columbia, went out of bounds late yesterday and destroyed three barns and volunteers rushed to the scene to save a farm house bordering on the timber area.

A fire of major proportions was reported burning in the John Nanton Mountain district and had reduced 2000 acres of timber and brush.

In the Clearwater national forest 200 men were attempting to beat back a fire that had burned over 600 acres. Reinforcements of men and food were en route from Spokane.

In the Salmon River district of Idaho a fire was reported in the timber and 25 men were lent from the forestry headquarters at Spokane to combat the blaze.

Two hundred men, who had left the dying embers of a fire near Miller, Wyo., were out on the same front last night when stiff winds revived the blaze.

Between 20 and 30 carloads of lumber were destroyed near Spokane when a grass fire, believed to be incendiary, spread to the quarters of the Johnson Hingay Fuel company. The fire destroyed fuel communication lines before the Spokane city fire department was called to bring it under control.

In California fires in the San Joaquin and upper Sacramento valleys, as well as those along the coast line, were reported as under control and burning out.

In Shasta county a fire broke out yesterday in the Pacheco district and swept over brush and grass lands including the upper Oak Hill section, where the home of Charles Ray was destroyed.

KILLING OF S. TEACHER IS SOLVED

Negro Bootblack Confesses to Foul Crime of Week Ago, Which Stirred Chicago Suburb—Guards Called to Prevent Lynching—Wrist Watch Solves Mystery.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Evanston police today wrote "solved" across the case of Jennie Meta Constance, slain near Northwestern university campus last Tuesday night.

David Shanks, a young negro bootblack, was held as the slayer of the 42-year-old English teacher. Police said he had made a complete confession.

Robbery was the motive Shanks gave when the police asked him why he had struck down Miss Constance shortly after she started down a dark street from the university library.

"All I get for shining shoes is tips," he told officers, "and that's about $8 a week. That ain't enough, and that's why I set out to rob some woman last Tuesday night. I guess it wasn't worth while for all I got $1.19."

It was the watch that led police to Shanks. A jeweler notified the police that a wrist watch had been brought to him for removal of the initials "J. M. C." Officers were waiting last night when Lebert Bastian, a youth whose father operates an Evanston shoe shine parlor, called for the time piece. Bastian told of buying the watch for $1.19 from Shanks, whom his father employed.

Shanks was arrested as he was polishing a customer's boots.

"Where did you get this watch?" one of the officers demanded, while athera covered Shanks with revolvers.

"Don't shoot," the negro cried. "I don't it. I killed her."

Later, with a stenographer making a copy of his statements, Shanks went into details.

Confesses Crime.

"The pipe I hit her with was in the gutter, and I picked it up," he said.

"I walked until I came to a dark spot in which to hide while waiting for some woman to come along alone, so I could rob her. I saw this woman coming when she was about 200 feet away, but she didn't see me, for it was awfully dark."

"When she got opposite me I jumped out and struck her down. Once, while I was searching her she groaned, so I hit her again with the pipe."

Following the negro's arrest, and his statement to officers, he was taken secretly from the north side suburb, but later brought back, after a strong guard had been placed about the Evanston jail. A threatening crowd of about 1000 persons had gathered about the jail earlier in the evening, following news of the arrest.

Miss Constance was head of the English department of Bradley Polytechnic Institute at Peoria, Ill. She had A. B. and A. M. degrees and was attending Northwestern university summer school seeking a degree of doctor of philosophy. On the night she was killed, Miss Constance had gone to the library to study, remaining there until it closed at 10 o'clock. She started for home and was struck down less than a block from her home.

LIQUOR IS SOLD IN HOTEL OWNED BY DR. STRATON

Pastor of Baptist Church Charges Conspiracy and Repeal of Gage Law As Source of Trouble—Will Fire Hotel Manager.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A dispatch to the New York Evening Post from Greenwood Lake, N. Y., today quoted the Rev. John Roach Straton as saying that "liquor interests" seeking to embarrass him in his controversy with Governor Smith may have been back of the reported sale of liquor in a hotel recently acquired by the minister.

"The liquor interests may have got the proprietor of the hotel up to this because of my discussions with Governor Smith," the pastor of Calvary Baptist church was quoted.

"If this is so, it is a clever conspiracy."

Dr. Straton, who acknowledged that the possibility of a conspiracy was somewhat remote, had been informed by a reporter that the latter had bought a quart of whiskey over the hotel bar. The property passed to Dr. Straton six weeks ago and is to be used for the Greenwood Lake Christian assembly headquarters.

Although he did not indicate what action he might take against the proprietor of the hotel, the minister blamed delay in getting action on the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act, the state's enforcement law. Governor Smith signed the repealer several years ago.

"What can you expect in a state where there is no enforcement law?" the dispatch quoted Dr. Straton. "Governor Smith has weakened the hand of officers of the law in the state. This situation is an illustration of the disaster which has overtaken us on account of the revocation of the enforcement law."

Dr. Straton said the newspaper, added that he had been in the bar of the hotel, but thought it was only dispensing soft drinks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, was on the warpath today when he was informed that liquor had been purchased in his newly acquired hotel near Greenwood Lake, N. Y. The clergyman, whose recent sermon criticizing Governor Smith drew the hotel six weeks ago for the Greenwood Lake Christian assembly.

Dr. Straton said he would out the lessee of the hostelry if the charge could be proved. Then he appealed to various authorities and was finally advised to swear out a warrant and have the place searched.

INDUS DISASTER REPORT UNTRUE NO DAM BREAK

SIMLA, Punjab, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Punjab government received official information today that reports of the bursting of a glacial dam in Kashmir on the Shyok river are erroneous.

It was indicated that the first report that the glacier had broken away was based on a fire seen burning in the neighborhood which was mistaken for one of a train of beacon lights prepared to give the signal when the break took place.

A long series of bonfires on mountain peaks had been prepared to carry news of an expected break in the dam which is 17,000 feet above the sea and in an almost inaccessible region. The flood waters had been forming since 1929 and a lake nine miles long was formed behind the dam of ice which is thought threatened.

The fire was first seen by a native official who thought that it was one of the bonfires which had been arranged and caused the earlier alarm that the dam had burst to be telegraphed to the authorities.

Fear that 20,000,000 tons of water held back by the ice dam would rush upon the valley of the Indus has been felt for some time and extensive preparations have been made to give warnings to those in the path of the torrent should the glacier give way. Bonfires on mountain peaks were to give the first warnings of the break so that women might be fired by men posted along the gorges to signal the approach of the disaster and to clear the last lingering mountaineers from their homes.

British authorities have been greatly concerned about the safety of the people in the valley below the dam since the latter are traditionally slow in giving up their homes.

EAGLE PT. CASE IS UNDER ADVISEMENT

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 14.—(AP) Justice McBride of the state supreme court today took under advisement until September 15 the application of the Florida National bank of Jacksonville, Fla., for a writ of mandamus to compel the treasurer of the Eagle Point Irrigation district of Jackson county to pay about $12,000 in bonds that were due last January. Absence of other members of the court, who are away on vacation, was the cause of the delay. Justice McBride said he was doubtful whether one member of the court had authority to issue an alternative writ.
