

ENLARGE POULTRY EXHIBIT SPACE AT COUNTY FAIR

According to A. H. Willett, in charge of the poultry department of the Jackson County Fair and Oregon Pear Show, which opens next week, the enlarged facilities provided for the feathered aristocrats of the county will enable the exhibitors to make an exceptionally fine display of pedigreed birds this year.

The poultry house has been enlarged 50 per cent and the additional room gives accommodation for approximately 200 fowls. New pens have been added for hantals, pigeons and turkeys, the first time these varieties have had quarters especially adapted for their needs. The entire building has been thoroughly renovated and put in first class condition and exhibitors are assured of the most favorable attention and care for their entries in the thoroughly modern poultry house.

Professor Charles Brewster of Portland, formerly connected with the Oregon State Agricultural college will act as judge in the poultry department. Professor Brewster is a recognized authority in his line and in the opinion of Mr. Willett and other poultry fanciers of this district, the fair board is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

"Poultrymen will derive a real benefit by exhibiting the best birds in their flocks and should also be present and witness Professor Brewster's work during the judging," said Mr. Willett. "Professor Brewster will be pleased to point out the characteristics of the different breeds upon which he bases his premium awards, and also answer any questions pertaining to the poultry industry, which those interested may care to ask."

Mr. Willett declared that with the enlarged facilities now available, more exhibitors are welcomes and are urged to enter singles or pens of chickens, geese, ducks, turkeys and pigeons. An exhibit of special interest this year for children will be a large number of baby chicks and a beautiful Golden Seabright bantam with eight chicks. Ample space has been reserved for club work exhibitors and this department is expected to give added incentive to the work of the boys and girls who raise their own poultry flocks.

CLAIM DANCEHALL SMIRCHED BY FILM

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Class Dow and James Hall, film actors who produced the movie, "The Fleet's In" were sued for $100,000 today by the Pavilion Ice rink company, owners of Roseland dance hall here, who alleged the reputation of the dance hall had been injured by the movie. The complaint charged that although the film was screened in Los Angeles, the action was represented as taking place here. Certain scenes, particularly a fight staged by sailors in Roseland Dance hall, were considered objectionable. Attorneys said a similar suit would be filed in federal court to prevent showing of the movie elsewhere.

SUES WOMAN AS A 'LOVE PIRATE'

SPOKANE, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine Noble has filed suit in superior court here, demanding $50,000 from Marvel Case, wealthy Portland and New York woman, for alleged alienation of affections, charging that Mrs. Case stole the love of Paul Noble, Portland theatrical man, and that she took many trips with him.

EXPEND $243,361 DRILLING FOR OIL IN EUGENE AREA

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Drillers who obtained title to the equipment of the Eugene oil well after filing a labor lien, have agreed with Mark D. McCallister, state labor commissioner, that they will desist from pulling further casing from the well and moving equipment until persons who have money in the enterprise have further time to decide whether they want to take over the plant. This was reported by McCallister here today after spending all day yesterday in Eugene investigating the situation.

McCallister said that from 1923 to 1926 a total of $243,361.12 was raised and expended on the well. He went to Eugene to investigate when complaints reached him at the action of the drillers. McCallister found that they had removed all the six and eight-inch casing, but not the 12-inch casing. McCallister also said he would make a thorough examination of all the records in his office pertaining to the Guaranty Oil company and its successor, the Crown Oil company.

3 ESCAPED NAVAL PRISONERS SAVED

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Three naval prisoners who escaped some time last night from the army transport U. S. S. Grant, were saved from drowning early today two miles off the Caney Island lighthouse. One of the sailors is in a critical condition.

The men were Ray Olsen, 22, and Jack Russell, 23, of New York, and James C. O'Donnell, 23, of Hagerstown, Md. O'Donnell was taken from the water unconscious by fishermen, and little hope is held out for his recovery. The others were rescued by the lighthouse keeper. The Grant left port yesterday for San Francisco with more than a hundred general prisoners for the Alcatraz island prison. The three who escaped in some manner obtained a canoe. The canoe was upset by waves from a liner, and the men clung to their tiny craft's sides all night.

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The public service commission today instituted upon its own motion a formal investigation into the rates and services of the Hermiston Light and Power company, operating in Hermiston, Umatilla, Stanfield and Echo, all in Umatilla county.

"State Street Sadie" Vitaphone Picture Opens at Craterian

Scene from "State Street Sadie" with Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy.

Vitaphone again triumphs in its uncanny ability to clothe drama with an intensity that even the spoken stage rarely equals. "State Street Sadie" has not only symphonic accompaniment, but at stirring points in the action, the characters speak their lines. Only persons having had stage and screen experience are chosen for Vitaphone presentations—hence the telling effect with which Myrna Loy, Conrad Nagel and William Russell speak their lines. Miss Loy is cast as Isabel, daughter of a cop slain in the performance of his duty. Barling to

'Just Married' Now at Rialto Theatre

One can hardly count the rollicking funny situations in "Just Married," which opened this afternoon at the Rialto theater, but to our mind the most side-splitting is the episode in which James Hall swimmers around the deck of a famous as the author of "Abie's Irish Rose." For sheer entertainment it has not been surpassed this season. The principal scenes take place aboard the ship at sea, with many hilarious situations involving a young bride-to-be, her fiancé, another suitor, and a young married couple. Ruth Taylor and James Hall are co-starred in this picture, and judging from their splendid performances, one foresees a great future for them as a team. Miss Taylor, it will be recalled, was the Loretta of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

A BOY AND A GUN AND GRIM TRAGEDY

CORVALLIS, Ore., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Killed accidentally by a shot fired from a rifle in the hands of his 13-year-old brother, the body of Lester Thayer, 12, was recovered from the Willamette river here last night after the boy had fallen from a canoe after he had been shot. Lester and his twin brother, Chester, were riding the waters in a canoe. Verlin, 15, another brother, was practicing target shooting on the banks. He fired into the water and the bullet ricocheted, striking Lester in the head. The canoe capsized as the boy fell and the body was carried down stream. It was recovered by the emergency squad of the Corvallis fire department.

MERCHANTS' BUILDING PAYMENTS COMPLETE

When the Jackson County Fair and Oregon Pear Show closes its doors on September 15, the Merchants' building, which houses the exhibits of approximately 40 representative business houses, will revert to the fair association, having been entirely paid for by the firms which contracted for space when the pavilion was erected. The Merchants' building, which was built in 1924 at a cost of nearly $75,000, has always proved one of the main attractions for the crowds which attend the fair. Exhibits ranging from interesting novelties to complete house furnishings are on display and interesting entertainment programs are provided for each day. Practically all space has been taken for the forthcoming exhibition which opens September 12, and exhibitors are now busily engaged in arranging their space.
