Although the making of peach ice-cream is almost universally confined to the months when fresh peaches are available, this delicious and popular dessert could be made successfully at any time of the year. Satisfactory supplies of preserved fruit are all that is needed. Freezing produces a slightly better preservation of the delicate fresh fruit flavor for ice-cream, but canning has the advantages of lower costs of production and distribution.

The temperature of milk used in making cottage cheese is one of the most important factors in producing cheese of good quality. For the best results the milk should be kept cool, at 50 degrees Fahrenheit if possible, from the time it is obtained until it is made into cheese.

With the possible exception of the clear wrappers and binder districts of Connecticut and Florida, tobacco plants need more potash in the fertilizer than is commonly supplied to them in order to prevent "potash hunger." While it is true that the plants may attain good size when supplied with only small quantities of potash in proportion to their needs, the leaves are likely to be of poor quality and light in weight unless the deficiency is overcome.

One of the reasons for the rapid spread of the Mexican bean beetle is its ability to travel long distances. A beetle marked by despatch of agricultural workers to measure the distance of flights of this pest was found after 24 hours three miles from the point where it was released, and another was picked up four days after it was liberated 5 1/2 miles away.

Since the discovery that the inclusion of dry skim milk in the diet of growing chicks aids in preventing coelitis, a marked increase has been observed in the use of this product in poultry feeds.

That controlled temperature has a more important effect on various crops than is generally known, has been shown by experiments at Cornell University, where a six-headed cabbage plant was grown on a stalk eight feet high after two years' cultivation under a constantly high temperature, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Automobile Notes

An examination of drivers is required in twelve states having drivers' license laws and it is optional with designated officials in six others.

State highway agencies are declaring war on car owners who clutter up their windshields with non-transparent stickers and posters. The practice is prohibited by law in thirteen states and the District of Columbia.

Additional proof of the growing popularity of motor touring abroad is seen in the fact that during the first six months of this year the foreign division of the American Automobile association shipped 500 more cars than it shipped in the corresponding period of last year.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries. The warm smoke vapor is inhaled into the affected air passages and will go where sprays, douches and salves cannot reach. They contain no tobacco or cubebs, and being harmless, are used by children, as well as adults.

If you suffer from any catarrhal trouble, catarrhal deafness, hoarseness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or are subject to frequent colds, get from any druggist a pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes, and prove their pleasant, beneficial effects.
