FLUHRER'S MILK BREAD

It is the result of exact fermentation and absolute temperature control, always a certainty in our plant, the most modern equipped bakery in Southern Oregon.

Shipment of the pear crop was in full swing when Hamilton Patton left Medford for Portland. This crop is one of the largest the Rogue River valley ever had, and hundreds of orchards have already been dispatched to eastern markets. At one time people thought the valley would be fine for growing apples, and orchards were set out, but later it was realized that the country was peculiarly adapted for the growing of pears of a superior quality, so the apples were abandoned. And before the apples there had been peaches. The valley has found itself in pears and late standing by this fruit in preference to all others. Mr. Patton, who is registered at the Heathman, is an automobile dealer.—The Oregonian.

Dressmaking and remodeling. Fashion Shop, 424 Medford Bldg. 417

Temporary auto licenses were issued at the sheriff's office yesterday to J. S. Shaw and George Rebel of Ashland and Charles Patton and Pierce-Allen Motor company of Medford.

Despite the thousands of people who were at the fair grounds during the county fair, the sheriff's office had little trouble in keeping order. Intoxication was conspicuous because of its absence and up until Saturday night, the sheriff's office was forced to only correct two youths who were somewhat disorderly.

Our big shipment of Parker pen sets has arrived. See them at Office Stationery & Supply Co. 117

Henry B. Stewart, who styled himself as "The World Marcher," and attaches considerable importance to himself as being important in the world of affairs, was in Medford yesterday and plans to spend several days here while en route to San Diego, Cal. Dressed in an eccentric costume, liberally covered with brass buttons and a big variety of badges, Stewart tells strange tales of foreign lands, through all of which he claims to have tramped. In addition to being eccentric, Stewart, an elderly man, is also irritable and talked in an unpleasant manner yesterday afternoon when a reporter accidentally happened to touch a scrap book he carried with him. He claims to have tramped 139,000 miles.

Snider's Milk

Vitamines and mineral salts are necessary for vigorous, glowing health. Milk supplies both in important quantities. From childhood to old age milk should be a regular part of the diet. With children this is especially important. Children do not thrive as they should, unless they have milk—a quart a day at least.
