FORM WESTERN FISH AND GAME BODY AT MEET

P. Paul Page Elected Head of New Organization, to Include All Sports Groups in States West of Rockies —Adopt Resolutions.

One of the most important resolutions passed today was the following:

"Whereas the game and food fishes are a natural asset of great recreational and financial value, and

"Whereas, the remaining habitat and spawning beds of such fishes are menaced in certain localities, and;

"Whereas there are now before the people of Oregon, for their approval or rejection in the November election, four bills commonly known as the water and fish bills, which propose to withdraw from further filing or appropriation of the waters of the Deschutes, Rogue, Umpqua and McKenzie rivers, and;

"Whereas, the question of unrestricted and promiscuous granting of water to the people of the entire Pacific coast is involved, now, therefore;

"Be it resolved that the Western Fish and Game protective association endorses in principle the above mentioned bills and commend them to the favorable consideration of the electorate of the state of Oregon."

Among those present at the meeting this morning were J. P. Cuenin, editor of the rod and gun department of the San Francisco Examiner; William Dunston, Seattle, head of the Washington hatcheries; R. J. Kirkwood, Portland; Robert Mann, San Francisco; William Dunston, Bothell, Wash.; Hugh Mitchell, formerly of the Rogue River valley, now of Portland; T. W. Miller, Seattle; M. R. Obitz, San Francisco; E. R. Kauffman, editor of the Pacific Sportsman of San Francisco; Bert Anderson, M. N. Hogan and W. R. Coleman, Medford.

A number of the out-of-state sportsmen expected to fish in the Rogue the remainder of the day.

At a meeting of 35 sportsmen from California, Washington, Oregon and Canada in session at the armory this morning an interstate organization to be known as the Western Fish and Game Protective association was officially adopted with the election of P. Paul Gage of San Francisco as president and Bert Anderson of this city first vice-president.

Other officials chosen to serve the first year included Thomas J. Miller, second vice-president, and H. L. Betten of San Francisco, secretary and treasurer. The initial meeting of the new body will be held at San Francisco on a date which will as near as possible approximate the time of the convention of the Western Association of Game Commissioners to be in session at the same place this year.

Included in the membership of the association will be any recognized sports groups in the following designated states, according to a provision of the constitution adopted today: California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, Montana, New Mexico, and provinces of western Canada.

Each state or province shall be entitled to five votes at the yearly meetings. Funds for its maintenance will be furnished by contribution or subscription, the constitution stipulates. R. J. Kirkwood of Portland, editor of "Western Out of Doors," was chairman of a committee to draw up rules and regulations for governing the interstate body.

Mr. Page, who was the unanimous choice for president, acted as chairman of the temporary organization at its sessions Tuesday and this morning.

After the adoption of the constitution the following resolutions were passed by the sportsmen:

"Whereas, the Western Fish and Game Protective association views with alarm the steady increase in commercial fishing in the Pacific ocean off the coasts of California, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Alaska; and

"Whereas, it is apparent to us that immature salmon are being taken in such quantities as to jeopardize the future supply, especially during the spring months; and

"Whereas, it can be consistently said that the taking of immature salmon in the quantities so noticeable along the coast has resulted in the serious reduction of the species to such an extent that immediate action, the objective of which is the early regulation of commercial fishing privileges, seems advisable; and

"Whereas, our sense of fairness and justice tells us that, in the interests of conservation and the perpetuation of the salmon, remedial legislation becomes of paramount importance now, therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Western Fish and Game Protective association, in session assembled at Medford, Ore., this 17th day of September, 1928, that the president and senate of the United States be memorialized to conclude a treaty between Great Britain and the United States for the protection of salmon on the high seas of the Pacific ocean; and states of this organization petition be it further

"Resolved, that the member the several legislatures of California, Oregon and Washington, as to their respective coasts; the department of marine and fisheries, as to the coast of British Columbia; and to the department of commerce as to Alaska, to pass uniform legislation, or promulgate uniform orders, that will regulate commercial fishing and the landing of fish within the three-mile limit; and

Be it still further resolved, that a committee of three be appointed to confer and work in conjunction with the International Pacific Salmon Investigation Federation to the end that uniformity of action may be assured, and that this committee be empowered to conclude such arrangements as well carry out the purposes of this resolution.

Resolution II

Whereas, it is our opinion that there exists a great need for the establishment and maintenance of a number of inviolate sanctuaries for the protection of migratory water fowl and shore birds and;

Whereas it is our opinion that it is the duty of the federal government in carrying out its treaty obligations to make provision for such sanctuaries, be it hereby resolved: That this association, representing the sportsmen's clubs and official state game and fish departments of three states, do jointly endorse in principle the Norbeck bill approved by the U. S. senate in May, 1928.

Be it resolved: That to carry out the wishes of this body and the purposes of this resolution and to represent it in other congressional efforts that may be taken looking forward to further protection of our wild mammals and birds, a committee of three men be appointed to work with the national committee on wild game life legislation and that the committee be empowered to make such arrangements as may be deemed consistent with the purpose of the resolution.

The committee appointed for the purpose of carrying out the last part of the second resolution is composed of H. L. Betten, San Francisco; Dr. M. A. Winningham, Seattle, Wash., and Harold Clifford, Oregon.

The third resolution presented this morning caused more discussion than any other but because of the nature of the problem the reporters were requested to make no mention of it. The matter concerned in this motion was laid on the table for further consideration at a regular meeting.

Other resolutions adopted today included one to promote the educating of boys and girls of the United States along the lines of the value of conservation and protection of wild game life of the nation; endorsement of the river water and fish bill initiated recently by the Oregon Game Protective association, and a resolution favoring the uniform classification thruout the states in regard to steelhead. In addition to these matters a request was made by the delegation from Washington that the association go on record as advocating that the duck season in that state should be made uniform in length with that of Oregon and California.

Discussion of the increasing amount of sickness among ducks especially in Klamath county with descriptions of research work being carried on in connection with the problem occupied part of the morning meeting. Roy Ludlum, director of the scientific research bureau for California, and George Tonkin, of Berkeley, federal game warden for California, were the main speakers on this subject.

KIDNAPED CHILD RETURNED; NAMES TWO ABDUCTORS

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Lilly Ranieri, 10-year-old victim of kidnapers who was released last night by his abductors after being held for 13 days, today pointed out the pictures of the two Italians who kidnaped him.

A. Scalzitti, a relative, told reporters that the lad, now at home, had named as his abductors Julio Salusso and Pasquale Larocco, picking the pictures of the two men out of a group of 75 photographs brought from the bureau of identification for him to scan.

The names of a doctor and a lawyer who attempted to act as emissaries for the kidnapers also have been furnished the police, Scalzitti said, and squads have gone out to arrest all four of the suspects.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Sept. 19.—(AP) Leslie Kellow, local service station employe, accidentally shot through the right lung yesterday afternoon, when a pistol dropped from the shoulder holster carried by H. C. Anton, Portland school district officer, was reported in a very critical condition here today.

Internal hemorrhages have collapsed the lung and have greatly weakened him. Relatives were called and are with him today. Kellow, who recently came from Grants Pass to this city, was engaged in servicing Anton's car at the time of the accident.

AL ANSWERS ALL QUESTIONS ASKED BY NEBRASKANS

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 19.—(AP)—In winding up his address in Omaha last night, Governor Smith answered from the platform eight questions dealing with prohibition, farm relief and the tariff, which he had been asked in a full page advertisement carried in the newspapers and signed by 10 Nebraskans.

The text of the questions as read and the governor's replies follow:

Q.—"Wht specific federal legislation do you propose for farm relief?"

A.—"If these gentlemen had read my speech of acceptance there would be no occasion for that question. I made that clear in Omaha tonight, that the legislation working out the principle of lifting the surplus is to be handed to a commission, to be worked out during the winter."

Q.—"Do you believe the country will be more prosperous with liquor or without? Why?"

A.—"Well, I assume that this is an intelligent group of men that have an understanding of what is going on around the country. Nobody, no living person, no matter how wise, no matter how well informed, no matter how far-seeing could make any answer to that question, because there has never been liquor out of this country."

Q.—"Do you believe that liquor is the great issue in this campaign?"

A.—"I certainly do not."

Q.—"How can you square your support of democratic candidates for congress, pledged against liquor with what you say you will do for liquor?"

A.—"Why, I dont' know what idea these men must have of the debates, the platform and the speeches of acceptance. If they paid the slightest attention to anyone they could not ask that kind of a question, because there is nothing that the president can do about liquor. All he can do is recommend to the congress, and he can assume the leadership of the American people in an effort to show them that his recommendation is right. That is what I propose to do, and let the American people make the decision as to what they will have to do."

Q.—"How can I support a dry democrat for congress?"

A.—"That question came up in the national convention, and the national convention deliberately, through the report of the committee on credentials, left every democrat in the United States free to express his own individual opinion of what he thought on that subject."

"Now, you have an admirable, scholarly gentleman running for United States senator here, Mr. Metcalfe. I understand that Nebraska is dry, but I would never ask Mr. Metcalfe to turn his back on the people of his state until such time as he can come out here and convince them that they are not tackling the problem the right way."

Q.—"How will your proposal for the sale of liquor in a few states meet your issue of personal liberty in the other states?"

A.—"Prevention of the sale of liquor is in the exercise of police power, and I have clearly shown that if a majority of the people of a given state voted for the exercise of that police power in that direction they should get it to the limit.

"On the other hand, following the well defined Jeffersonian principle of state's rights, the state that does not want the exercise of that police power ought to be in a position, through a majority of the people, to say so."

Q.—"Are you still personally opposed to the St. Lawrence waterway?"

A.—"Why, if the gentlemen had just looked at my speech of acceptance, they would have seen that I made as clear a declaration on that as any man could make. I frankly said to the American people that while I was the governor of the state of New York, I favored the all-American route, because it went through that state, but inasmuch as the figures affecting the St. Lawrence canal, as well as the all-American route, are disputed by some eminent engineers, I am willing to leave it to congress, after a study of the matter."

"Now, number seven is something of a tricky question. It says:

"'You have stated that the Underwood tariff law fulfills the pledge of this year's democratic platform.'

"My answer to these distinguished gentlemen is that I never said that, and I challenge them to find it in any public paper of mine."

"The last one, number eight, is this:

"'Are you in favor of higher food prices in the city or lower food prices on the farm?'

"My answer to that is that the farmer can get the full benefit of the value of his crop without increasing the price in the city."

POSING AS WOMAN

four named by 15-year-old Sanford Clark, Northcott's nephew.

It was young Clark who yesterday led officers to the cabin in Mint canyon which he said his uncle rented and which the police believe may prove to be the source of new finds of evidence. The officers found in a pile of burned debris two pairs of boys' shoes which had evidently escaped the fire sufficiently to be identified as having belonged to boys of 9 to 11 years. The fire had left only the toes of another pair of shoes.

Digging in a freshly filled-in well on the property, the police found evidence of a big fire having been built in the hole within the last few months. The officers said the well would be the target for their shovels again today.

The "first positive evidence of the corpus delicti" in the evidence which yesterday caused the murder complaints to be issued against the Northcotts, mother and son, came in the identification of bones dug up on the so-called "murder farm" as from the bodies of human beings.

Two paleontologists of the Los Angeles museum who had been asked to examine eight jars of bones turned up by the searchers' spades said some of them were ankle, finger, leg and skull bones of juvenile human beings. Of the others, many still were unclassified while others were those of animals.

The belief of the police that young Northcott might have resorted to dresses as a disguise was based partly on reports from Canada and partly on the story of the youth's father, Cyrus G. Northcott, that his son had worn dresses and passed as a girl until he reached his 'teens.

Mrs. Northcott and "her daughter" were reported seen in Saskatoon, Sask. Police ordered checked a report that a youth resembling young Northcott had attempted to work passage on a South American-bound ship at Seattle yesterday.

Jessie Clark, Sanford's sister, whose report of conditions on the Riverside farm led to immigration officials taking the boy into custody and his later story, was located last night in Vancouver, B. C.

A handwriting expert's report added some weight to Clark's story that one of four boy victims of Northcott was Walter Collins of Los Angeles. The handwriting expert, after studying specimens of the Collins boy's handwriting prior to his kidnaping and examples of the handwriting of a boy returned here from Illinois as Walter Collins, said they were entirely dissimilar. He said that in his opinion the boy brought here from Illinois never went to school in southern California, the penmanship being that taught in some parts of Illinois, probably in Chicago.

The mother of Walter Collins from the first has contended that the boy brought back to her in a dazed condition was not her son.

STARVING REFUGEES RIOT

terday clamoring for food and seeking aid.

"The greatest devastation and loss of life with little outside aid," was reported by Dr. A. W. Zielold of Miami, in charge of field work who left his post at Lake Worth and made a survey of the lake region. Joe Frank of the American Legion reported here yesterday that he and his fellow workers were caring for 750 negroes who came from the low country surrounding Belle Glade. He said many of them walked 20 miles and carried white women to safety on their backs.

Yesterday refugees poured from the stricken lake area into southerly cities of Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood and Miami.

George Brewer of Miami said five bodies were in a poolroom when they reached the stricken town and that they recovered 12 more within a radius of 300 yards.

Sheriff Bob Bokare of Palm Beach county and a squad of deputies who went to Pahokee, Canal Point and South Bay to bring in bodies of the storm victims, said today the outboard motorboats in which they went were "wholly inadequate." The sheriff said a sea skiff would be taken into the area today, stationed at a strategic point as a base of operations, and that motorboats would bring the dead to the skiff. He said most of the dead were negroes.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Howard Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach county Red Cross, told a conference of relief workers today that bodies of 200 persons, victims of the hurricane, had been buried in local cemeteries.

The bodies came from the region about Lake Okeechobee, he said. Half of them were of white persons.

"Conditions in the stricken area are growing worse every minute," Selby said. "About 8,000 persons in the lake region are in desperate need of clothing, food and medical aid."

"They have been standing in water for hours and there are a number of cases of double pneumonia. There are about 1,500 homeless in the county. (Palm Beach county embraces most of the east coast area and Okeechobee lake sections affected by the storm.)

"The estimated damage of Palm Beach county placed yesterday at $25,000,000, now is nearer $50,000,000.

"Sanitary conditions in the lake regions are terrible although conditions along the coast are fairly good. In the lake region two companies of State National Guard troops arrived last night and are on duty. The sections around Pahokee and Canal Point are under military control.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The tropical hurricane took a toll of 669 lives in Guadeloupe, French West Indians, the ministry of colonies announced today after receiving an official report from the governor of the dependency.

The deaths included 300 at Pointe a Pitre, 70 at Ste. Anne, 58 at Le Gozier, 50 at St. Francois, 60 at Les Abymes, 28 at Bourg and 60 at Le Moule and some at other places.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 19.—(AP) D. D. Jackson, superintendent of the Multnomah county farm for seven years, resigned today, and Oscar A. Johnson was appointed to succeed him.

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women — who are dragging yourself around on your "nerve"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Minnie Huber, of 945 E. 26th St., Portland, Ore, says: "Ever since I was a girl I suffered from sick headaches and vomiting spells. I weakened so I had no strength for anything. After taking Tanlac, my headaches and sick spells disappeared altogether."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past to years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.
