FIRST DOGGIE to have his likeness transmitted by television is Wings, shown here in the arms of Miss Lillian Eichler at the Radio World's Fair in New York.

DIVINE LADY is the name of Corinne Griffith's newest picture—and, after a look at this photo, it's easy to agree that the title was well chosen.

WHEELING AROUND A GRACEFUL CURVE IN MILITARY PRECISION, the Knights Templar of Pennsylvania made this striking picture as they marched on the Parkway past Logan Circle, in Philadelphia, on their annual parade and field day.

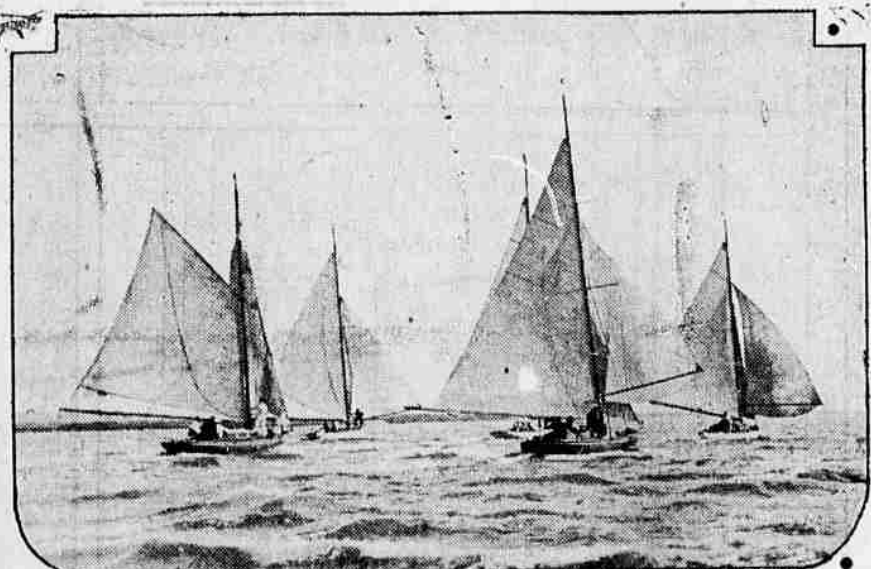

A TREMENDOUS PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION FOR PRESIDENT CALLES was Mexico's way of expressing confidence in the man who refused to continue in office in violation of the country's constitution. Here are two scenes at the exercises by school children in Mexico City's great stadium. At the left, thousands of children are going through calisthenics; at the right is the colorful Dance of the Ribbons.

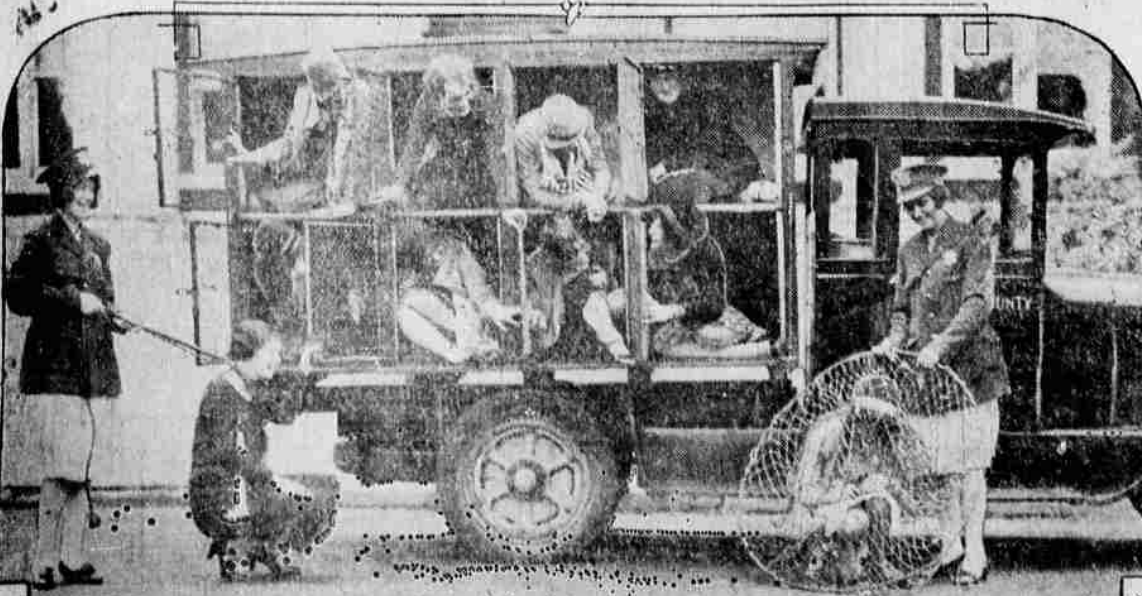

TOWERING IN LOFTY MAJESTY OVER THE MIRROR-LIKE WATER, the great peaks of the Canadian Rockies rise high above Lake Louise, Alberta, to form this striking panorama. Note the inviting footpath through the pines at the right.

A BATHING GIRL is always in season, whatever the calendar says, so pretty Miss Vaudis Bargeron, in this garb, is chosen queen of the Peach Day celebration at Brigham City, Utah.

SCUDDING BEFORE A FRESH BREEZE, THESE SLOOPs of class C, in the British Royal Corinthian Yacht Club, cross the starting line in a picturesque race at Burnham-on-Crouch, Essex, England.

PROBABLY IT ALL HAPPENED JUST IN A SPURT OF FUN—but anyhow, these freshmen girls at the University of Cincinnati got a taste of what it means to be a yearling when a bunch of freshmen girls rounded them up and took them for a ride in the dog cart.

BEST SPELLER in all California is Miss Elsie Louis of San Luis Obispo, who won the title at the California state fair. She is of Chinese ancestry.

HIS SATANIC MAJESTY IS ALWAYS VERY ACTIVE on Halloween—and since that occasion isn't so very far off now, Miss Kathryn Crawford of the movies is practicing with the old gentleman for an appearance as witch.
