Wagon Reminded the Days of Courtship

Wagon reminded the days of courtship very clearly. Also why should they say of such new logic: "Well she caught him at last!"

Has Judge Thomas Speeded Up Justice?

This is our second statement on this subject. In our first statement we showed that Judge Thomas' court reporter was so busy with political documents for the judge that litigants lost their cases in the Supreme Court because the court reporter did not get out the record for which he had been paid.

State of Oregon vs. Conviction of Manslaughter, January 9, 1926

Thomas granted time for appeal to September 15, 1926, to enable the court reporter to transcribe the testimony. Thereafter, Judge Thomas' court reporter filed affidavits in the Supreme Court showing that he had been paid $200 for this transcript and would get it out but had not had time. He never did get it out. After much delay, extending over two years, the appeal was finally dropped.

Morton vs. Wright

May 27, 1925, Judge Thomas gave judgment for the plaintiff. Five orders in all were made in Judge Thomas' court, which extended the time to file the appeal until March 1, 1926, nearly a year from the date of the judgment; four of the orders were granted by Judge Thomas and one by Judge Evans, sitting in court for Judge Thomas, January 11, 1926. Judge Thomas' court reporter did not get out the transcript of the testimony until March 6, 1926.

Second Northwestern Finance Corporation vs. Mansfield

April 4, 1924, Judge Thomas entered judgment for Mansfield. Thereafter Judge Thomas granted extension of time to file appeal until November 20, 1924, a delay of nearly eight months, and which was made necessary because Judge Thomas' court reporter had not gotten out the transcript of the evidence.

Hollywood Orchard Company vs. Dennis, Kimball & Polk

December 8, 1924, Judge Thomas dismissed the plaintiff's case with prejudice so that it could not bring it again. Plaintiff sought to appeal. Judge Thomas granted extensions of time to June 1, 1925, because it was necessary to enable his court reporter to get out the transcript necessary for the appeal.

American Soda Fountain Co. vs. Medford Grocery Co.

February 9, 1924, Judge Thomas entered judgment for defendant. He afterwards entered orders extending the time to file an appeal to April 15, 1925. The delay was made necessary because Judge Thomas' court reporter had not gotten out the transcript of the evidence.

W. H. Vawter vs. Rogne River Valley Canning Company

April 8, 1924, Judge Thomas entered judgment in plaintiff's favor. Case appealed June 7, 1924. The Supreme Court was compelled to grant six extensions for time to file transcript on appeal and bill of exceptions because Judge Thomas' court reporter had not gotten out the transcript. These orders extended the time from July 5, 1924, to March 23, 1925.

Big Butte Horse and Cattle Association vs. Anderson

November 24, 1925, Judge Thomas gave decree for defendant. He extended plaintiff's time to file his appeal to May 1, 1926, made necessary by the inability of his court reporter to get out the transcript. Between April 1, 1926, and May 16, 1927, the Supreme Court granted eight extensions of time and up until the first day of July, 1927, for filing abstract in the Supreme Court. These were each based upon Judge Thomas' court reporter's affidavit that he had received pay for the transcript but had not had time to get it out, in each case stating he would promptly get it out. These orders extended the time to July 1, 1927, a period of fifteen months, in addition to the five months which had been granted by Judge Thomas for the same reasons.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE MATTER

If the editors who write the editorials inspired by Judge Thomas knew the facts, they would, or at least ought to be more guarded in their statements. We maintain that instead of speeding up justice he has retarded it, resulting in the defeat of the rights of people to have their appeals from his decisions heard in the Supreme Court.

JUDGE THOMAS' EXCUSE

In another article we will show that Judge Thomas has claimed that there were no appeals delayed by reason of the failure of his court reporter to get out the record, but that subsequently when confronted with the facts he has claimed that he did not know that the reporter was behind in his work. However, he made these many extensions of time for parties to get their cases in the Supreme Court because he knew, and it had been shown to him, that his court reporter was so behind and had not gotten out the records and that the extensions were for that reason necessary.

We shall subsequently show that when the Bar Association sought to correct this evil whereby Judge Thomas' court was causing these delays, Judge Thomas opposed the reform.

Please help us elect a man who will so conduct his court that you will have the opportunity to get your case into the Supreme Court and there have the hearing which the law gives you the right to have.

BETTER GOVERNMENT LEAGUE.
