The county clerk's office today was patiently awaiting for the arrival of a young couple from Maxwell, Cal., desiring a marriage license, as upon their arrival at the office, the girl, who is under legal age, will be turned over to the sheriff's office on instructions received from the girl's parents in Maxwell. However, it is possible that the couple may not stop here, but obtain their license either at Grants Pass or Roseburg.

A recheck of auto fatalities in Jackson county since the first of the year by State Traffic Lieutenant O. O. Nichols reveals that nine persons have met death as the result of auto crashes instead of seven, as reported earlier this week. Each death resulted from a different cause and of the total, four took place in the Green Springs mountains, one in Ashland, two at Orchies crossing, one in Medford and one near Butte Falls. Previous to the first half of this year, 16 months had elapsed without one fatality. However, in 1928, 15 persons met death in the county as the result of auto crashes.

There seems to be more interest this year than on the average in Oregon State Motor association work," said L. C. Garlock, local representative, today in speaking of the association and the present campaign for new members. "I believe," he continued, "that many of our motorists are not thoroughly familiar with the association's purposes and benefits, all of which I could explain to any person interested if they would call on me at my headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce." Mr. Garlock reported the addition of a road-sized number of new members during the past month.

Wagons traveling at night on main travelled highway, invite danger when not equipped with lights, according to traffic officers, who request that such vehicles use lights when on the highway. One was cited last night when a wagon on North Riverside avenue was nearly struck by an automobile, the driver of which did not see the wagon until it was nearly on it. Luckily his brakes were good, and the car barely stopped in time to avoid hitting the wagon, which had no lights.

Woman Scientist Ends New Mexico Exile With Valuable Indian Lore

Miss Frances Dinsmore (right), collaborator in the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, has collected and transcribed more than 1700 Indian songs. A group of Acoma Indians of New Mexico accompanied her to Washington for scientific study at the institute. Chief Daylight (second from left) and his family were the principal ones.

By SUE MCNAMARA, Associated Press Feature Writer WASHINGTON, D. C.—(P)—Miss Frances Dinsmore, collaborator in the bureau of ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, is here enjoying for awhile the interpretation of sunsets and butterfly dances given by several Acoma Indian boys from New Mexico.

Miss Dinsmore's contribution to the bureau has been in collecting and transcribing 1700 Indian songs. These she obtained from various tribes in Utah, British Columbia, and the Mexican border. The songs have formed the nucleus for many compositions now played by orchestras and string quartets. They have also been made into phonograph records which are a part of the newly established archive of records in the Smithsonian Institute.

After long association with the Indians, Miss Dinsmore brought a party of them with her to Washington for scientific study. At her request Hanaya, an Acoma Indian youth, willingly sings the songs of his tribe.

Miss Dinsmore, herself a musician, was a teacher in the schools of St. Paul, Minn., when she decided the confines of the classroom were too limited for her. She began delving into Indian music and translating it, and her work drew the attention of the bureau of ethnology. Since then her flung trails and interesting adventures have claimed her.

"I have had very little trouble with the Indians," she says. "I have been alone on reservations with 2000 Indians, but have never known any fear. I approach the chiefs of the tribes and get their cooperation. Sometimes this is a little difficult at first, but when I make them see that their music will vanish into oblivion they are glad to let me make a record of it for the little black discs which they regard with awe."

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Roberts have purchased a small acreage suburban home on the Jacksonville highway near the Oak Grove school. They expect to take possession November 4 and have made this for extensive improvements with a view to making the place their permanent residence.

O'GRADY TO GIVE WEIGHT IN MATCH AGAINST VERNON

With nothing to do but wait until tomorrow night, the American Legion drum corps smoker is in readiness for the opening bell tomorrow evening at the Armory, where Gene O'Grady of Ashland will mix gloves with Bobby Vernon of Portland in the 10-round main event, which promises to be one of the hardest battles ever fought in Medford. Vernon will weigh around 170 and O'Grady 205.

It is the desire of many local fans to see O'Grady work harder in a fight than he has been doing, and it is expected that if he ever worked in a ring, he will do so tomorrow night, or else take the count. Vernon is under the management of Sam Doman of Portland, who in a recent letter told of O'Grady's prowess in the Portland fields world, where he has been having more than ordinary success. Doman is confident of Vernon's victory, but at the same time does not underestimate the Ashland fighter.

Pat Padelford is ready for Dud Eads, who this week won a special event from Mike Depinto, a well known Portland boxer. Eads and Padelford will mix in the semi-main event, following two good preliminaries.

Card of Thanks. We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness during our recent bereavement, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

High blood pressure reduced
—better than in 20 years

A husband writes about his wife who could get no relief from high blood pressure of long standing. He was worried. Finally he asked her to give Agmel a trial. In his letter he says "Since taking Agmel she has gained eight pounds. Her blood pressure is much lower. She sleeps well. In fact, she is feeling better than she has in the past twenty years." Every day such letters are received, testifying to the benefits derived from Agmel.

What is Agmel? A great natural health food. The sap or milk of the Mexican Agave plant extracted by removing excess water, Kalmatol, potassium, iron, important minerals. It is a natural tonic for the proper adjustment and functioning of the body. A vital tonic. Not a medicine. Non-alcoholic. Thousands praise Agmel. If you have any of the following symptoms, investigate Agmel today! Headaches, heartaches, dizziness, frequent nervousness to get up at night, etc. Ask your drug dealer.
