Let Us Save What Little Is Left of ROGUE RIVER

What the Bills Will Do—

- They will stop exploitation of Oregon's resources for the benefit of other states.
- They will enable the state of Oregon to derive substantial revenues from hydro-electric development—thus reducing taxation.
- They will preserve Oregon's game fish, which provide food and healthful recreation to the state's population.
- They will justify Oregon's investment of more than $115,000,000 in roads and highways by attracting tourists to this state.
- They will assure posterity its rightful share of the bounties nature provided and of which we are only trustees.
- They will preserve what remains of the power resources of the Rogue, Umpqua, Deschutes and McKenzie rivers until such time as the state sees fit to release them for public or private development.
- They will serve the interests of irrigation by preventing hydro-electric monopoly of the waters of these streams.

What the Bills Will Not Do—

- They will NOT deprive industry of ample electric energy.
- They will NOT induce higher rates to consumers of electricity.
- They will NOT interfere with projected irrigation.
- They will NOT impair established rights for power development, irrigation, mining, municipal use or any other purpose.
- They will NOT prevent commercial fishing.
- They will NOT retard but should advance the state's industrial and agricultural growth.

BLADFORD, Ore., Nov. 5.—(Special)—Having walked 18 miles through woods, notwithstanding fractured ribs, Miss Helen Crandall of Alfred, N. Y., who owns and operates an airplane, was under the care of a physician today.

She made the hike to get aid for her co-pilot, George Eyer of Honolulu, N. Y. who was injured when her plane crashed in a forest eight miles from here.

It was near dark. Eyer was caught in the wreckage with a fractured skull.

Miss Crandall fought her way through thick underbrush, which tore at her clothes and sapped her strength. She knew that finding the way back to the woods might be difficult, so as she walked she tore pieces from her clothing and tied them to tree branches.

Finally she found a farm house. Back through the rain and the forest she led five men, to Eyer, her way marked by the fluttering bits of cloth.

Buffalo Bill, Jr., at State Theatre

Deliberately to incite a group of renegade Americans who are living in safety across the Mexican border, so that in their fury they pursue him across the border into American territory an can be captured by the American revenue forces is the pivotal point of the story of "The Valley of Hunted Men," starring Buffalo Bill, Jr., at the State theatre.

FOR CORONER Dr. Chas. T. Sweeney

Students of good government long ago reached the decision that the work of the coroner should be entrusted to one, who has no financial interest in the funeral expenses of the cases referred to him.

Dr. Chas T. Sweeney has no such interest. He has honorably practiced medicine in Southern Oregon for the past 18 years, and is a highly respected citizen of Jackson County.

Before coming to Oregon, he performed the work of coroner in the district in which he lived in Montana, and will take into the office the experience thus gained.

In many instances, it is necessary to issue death certificates in those cases in which no inquest is held. By placing a licensed physician in the office, these certificates will be issued without any extra expense to the county.

Again in many cases, the District Attorney orders a post mortem or autopsy. If the coroner is a physician he can do this without the taxpayers paying for service, and the coroner will be qualified to testify in criminal cases.

Elect to this office, one who has no personal interest in the cases that come to him in his official duty.

JACKSONVILLE, Ore., Nov. 5.—(Special)—Plans were discussed at the last Jacksonville Grange meeting concerning a big membership drive. This is the first of its kind, so the results are expected to be large. It was decided to have a contest, the women against the men, to see which side could secure the most members, the reward being a banquet furnished by the losing side. Captains selected for the opposing sides were Mrs. Peter Fick and Theodore Sims from whom application cards may be secured.

The Grange members appreciated having Mr. Fowler, county agent, present, who explained the different duties of his office and services extended by the agricultural service bureau.

A short business meeting will be held next Friday, November 9th, at which time several new candidates are to be voted upon, be present.

SUSANNE HOMES CARTER candidate for office of County School Superintendent

Susanne Homes Carter has intimate knowledge of school problems and needs of the county through eight years of service as county school superintendent.

Mrs. Carter has proved to be a progressive leader and an untiring worker for improved educational standards.

During Mrs. Carter's terms, twenty-five different districts have gone through building programs, and correctly equipped modern buildings have resulted.

Mrs. Carter has carried on a constructive program, which touches every school of the county—in supervision, in physical equipment, in sanitation, in helps for State Course of Study, in urge toward music and art for all children.

Mrs. Carter has handled successfully the growing business of the county. Records show 3000 more children in daily school attendance last year than when her term of service began. A higher average of attendance is maintained throughout the county. Eighty more teachers are employed than in 1922, and teacher qualifications are higher.

Efficiency and economy have marked her work. Her time belongs to the county and she has not taken it to campaign. She merits re-election upon her record.

The Farming Business

Much has been said during the campaign about solving the farmers' problems. The same hokum has been dealt out to the farmer that was handed to him twenty years ago.

The average politician thinks of the farmer as the fellow with long whiskers and a wheat straw in his mouth, that we have always seen in the funny pictures.

Every constructive business man who has given the matter any thought at all says that the farmers' problems can be solved only by the farmer.

The day laborer's wage problem was solved years ago by the formation of the Labor Union. More than 90% of the skilled laborers in the United States today are members of the Labor Union.

They pay regular membership dues and thus support the organization that, through its power and influence practically guarantees them good pay for their labor.

The farmer's problem of a fair price for his produce and 100% value for his dollar is not nearly so difficult a problem as theirs, for every individual farmer has some capital other than his labor. He is able to invest something in a co-operative organization and thus build up a business that will have power and go far toward putting farming and the farmer on a business basis.

A great majority of the farmer's problems are strictly local and can be absolutely controlled by local co-operative organizations.

To complete your farming operation by building up a powerful business organization you have only to affiliate yourself with your local Co-operatives.
