SAMS VALLEY HAD QUIET ELECTION; RADIOS POPULAR

SAMS VALLEY, Ore., Nov. 9.—(Special.) The election is over, without a great amount of excitement here. The principle interest centered in the location of radios from 8 o'clock till midnight Wednesday when the reports came in. From one public location your correspondent noted that the report of the national head's election brought no applause from listeners, neither did it bring any weeping or words of disappointment; a condition believed to be seldom witnessed.

Sunday visitors at the Geo. McDonough home were Mr. and Mrs. John Linville of Medford, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Strahmire and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rowe of Central Point. The afternoon was devoted to music and conversation, making the day a pleasant one for all, that will not soon be forgotten.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Koger visited Sunday with Mrs. L. S. Scott of Grants Pass. The Scotts were former residents of this precinct.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Straus are the proud parents of a new baby boy born October 31 at the Community hospital in Medford.

Although Al Smith carried our precinct by one vote, we do not believe this determines us any more wet than dry, as we know many sound drys who voted for Smith with the belief that his election might have an effect on the menacing bootlegging business.

Mrs. E. A. White was quite ill the first of the week, necessitating the calling of Dr. Heckman of Central Point. Gall bladder trouble was the cause of the illness, from which Mrs. White is now quite improved.

The Ladies' club meet today with Mrs. Etta Bigham.

Mr. Wilson of Medford, agent for a tombstone company, was interviewing residents in this district Thursday.

A. B. Collett is among the latest to purchase cars here and has a new Pontiac coupe.

Miss Frances Wilson who is staying at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Sanford Richardson in Medford, visited the week end with her parents. She reports Miss Doris Richardson as slowly improving from a recent injury by auto.

Albert Straus spent several days last week visiting Eugene friends.

Mrs. Joe Dusenberry is reported as quite ill from the influenza.

NEW STAR SINGS WAY FROM MILL TO METROPOLITAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(Special.) Clara Jacobs, once a mill worker in Lawrence, Mass., stepped up last night into that golden world toward which she had struggled for nearly 15 years—the stage of the Metropolitan opera house.

She made her debut in "Il Trovatore," whose tuneful arias she could sing at an age when most children are learning kindergarten ditties. After she had sung with Giovanni Martinelli the old familiar "Misereere"—which she used to sing all by herself as a child, both soprano and tenor—could have left no doubt in the minds of her old friends from Lawrence that she was a success.

From an inconspicuous seat in the gallery, a sturdy little old man, with drooping grey mustachios, listened intently to every note uttered by the new dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company. Later he went back stage.

"Papa!" shouted a chorus of Italian voices, and he was dragged up to a place by his daughter's side—in the lights.

Angelo Jacobs, born in Naples, once a grocer in Lawrence and not a comber in a woolen mill, forgot then, all the English he had ever known. He could speak only Italian—and not much of that.

Dr. N. F. De Cesare, childhood friend of Clara Jacobs, who had come from Lawrence in a delegation headed by Mayor and Mrs. Michael A. Landers, tried to explain how he felt.

"He took that seat away up in the gallery," Dr. Cesare said, "because he was afraid he might get emotional and he didn't want to disturb those around him. In the gallery, he thought, it might not matter so much."

"You see, Clara's mother—who believed in her long before he did and persuaded him finally to let her go to Italy to study—died only a short time after Clara went away and tonight he's brokenhearted because she can't be here."

"When once he made up his mind to help Clara become a great singer, Mr. Jacobs went all the way, all right. He's been a wonderful father to her and all his children."

school is now underway, the poles being cut this week. This will be a long needed addition to our school, the absence of which has handicapped our athletic teams many times.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS AT BEAGLE LUNCHEON GUESTS

BEAGLE, Ore., Nov. 9.—(Special.) The Ever Ready Sunday school class gave lunch guests last Sunday at their teacher's, Miss Swanson. In the afternoon they accompanied Miss Swanson to the Meadows to be present at the meeting held by the Central Point gospel team. The class members are Marie Seegmiller, Ella and Laura Blackman, Marjorie and Roberta Mayfield and Fay Ora Zuck.

R. Copley returned home several days ago from a six weeks trip to the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennison and little grandson Lewis Brown have gone to Salem to attend to business and visit their many friends there.

The recent rains here have been welcome as the ground was not in condition for plowing and the season for planting is getting short.

Several turkey buyers have been calling on the farmers of late. There have not been very many turkeys sold as yet.

Chas. Smith and family of Medford were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. Smith's father and sister of this district.

T. P. T. A. was well attended and the evening was turned over to the Boy Scouts. They had with them Scout Executive Wm. Lee Bricker of Medford as speaker of the evening and the boys put on a pantomime and served lunch to the crowd, which they cooked. Every one there reported an enjoyable time and no one went away hungry.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mayfield bought a house from Mr. Moon and have moved the same to the Beagle P. O. site to take the place of the one that burned last summer. Mr. Mayfield expects to build more to it in the near future.

Mr. E. B. Lucas and Miss Hunsong were chosen by the Antioch P. T. A. to attend the county P. T. A. meeting at Bellview next Saturday, Nov. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lucas and small daughter Ina Pearl were business visitors at Prospect last Monday.

The school children were given a day's vacation Tuesday on account of the Antioch school building being the polling place for this district.
