

TEAM ENTRAINS FOR BIG GAME AT THE DALLES

Student Body and Citizens Assemble at Depot—Callison and Squad Confident—Many Fans To See Struggle.

With the encouraging yells of the high school student body and the shouts of good luck from that noisy body and from many citizens, all assembled at the depot last evening, the Medford high school football squad of 18 members, in charge of Frank Callison, the coach, and Clifford Moore, assistant coach, departed north in a special sleeper attached to train 14, the Oregonian, at 7 o'clock last night for The Dalles where they play the high school team of that city Monday afternoon.

Every man of the squad, even the non-committal Coach Callison, seemed to fairly ooze with confidence as to the outcome of Monday's gridiron battle. The team is in fine spirits and physical condition, except of course Potter, substitute full back, who is out of the game with an arm injury, and a few players with colds.

Coach Callison declined to give out the probable line-up of the Medford high team for Monday's game except that it would be chosen from the following list given out Friday:

Centers, B. Hughes and Mason; guards, J. Hughes, Sprague and Green; tackles, Morgan, Stoeber, and one to be selected; end, Donald, Bowerman and O. Newlin; quarterbacks, Melvin and Garnett; halfbacks, Anderson, Harrell, Applegate, Walker; fullback, Cooke.

It was understood at the time of the departure of the train last night that Coach Callison would order the football squad to retire early on the sleeper last night and also tonight at The Dalles; and that some light practice would be indulged in in the latter city tomorrow afternoon, and further practice on Monday forenoon.

When the squad reaches Portland tomorrow morning it will transfer to another train direct to The Dalles, and during the hour's wait will have breakfast in Portland.

Many Fans Go
From the way Medford and valley football enthusiasts have been leaving here by auto the past two days, enroute to The Dalles, with a stop over yesterday afternoon at Corvallis to see the Oregon State and University of Oregon game, the Medford high team seems assured of encouraging rooting by several hundred local fans.

Besides the scores that had gone on ahead by auto already, many more left by auto last evening, all during last night and will string along for the same destination all day today.

The city of Portland will be filled tomorrow with Medford and valley football fans, waiting over in that city until Monday forenoon, to go to The Dalles.

GEORGE NELSON WILL BE DEPUTY TO GEO. CODDING

George A. Coddling, Democratic district attorney-elect, having defeated District Attorney Newton C. Chaney for that office at the recent election, announced yesterday that he would appoint Attorney George Nelson as his deputy.

While there had been much speculation since the election as to whom Mr. Coddling would appoint as deputy district attorney the name of Mr. Nelson was very little mentioned in this connection and therefore his appointment comes with surprise to a large portion of the public, especially as he is known as a Republican.

This appointment, as word of it became noised around yesterday afternoon and last night was generally commended because of Mr. Nelson's previous experience in the district attorney's office and his general qualifications.

It will be remembered that until some time before the primary election Mr. Nelson served for a year or two as deputy district attorney under Mr. Chaney, and that when Mr. Chaney's resignation was announced it created much surprise. It is understood that Mr. Chaney and his assistant had some irreconcilable difference, as a result of which Nelson resigned, much to the mutual satisfaction of both.

District Attorney-elect Coddling and his assistant, Mr. Nelson, as usual office the first week in January at which time District Attorney Chaney and his assistant, Deputy District Attorney Frank P. Farrell, retire to private life.

Mr. Coddling, who is connected with the law firm of Crews & Coddling, will establish the district attorney's office in the Liberty building in a part of the present law offices of Crews & Coddling, with the addition of an immediately adjoining office. These offices are being remodelled in order to form the new offices of the district attorney. Judge Crews will retain his office in a large portion of the present Crews & Coddling office quarters.

CARKIN TAX BODY HAS NEW PROGRAM TO FIND REVENUE

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 17.—(AP)—A sub-committee of the Carkin tax commission has decided upon a revenue producing program which it will submit to the general tax commission and in event of the approval of that body it will be presented to the legislature.

It is as follows:
1. An excise tax measured by the net earnings of banks, financial corporations and unincorporated businesses in competition therewith and of mercantile, manufacturing and other business corporations.

2. A tax on intangibles in private ownership.
3. That the personal property tax shall be an offset against the excise tax.

4. That the rate of the excise tax, intangible tax, effects, deductions and exemptions be, as near as may be, identical with those exacted by competing states which employ a similar plan of taxation.

5. That the return blanks shall be simplified to require no more private business information than is essential to the administration of the tax.

6. That adequate safeguards be adopted to insure inviolability from publicity of such private business information.

GANGS CARRY ON KIDNAP BUSINESS IN DETROIT, MICH.

DETROIT—(AP)—Kidnaping has entered the class of "big business" in the racketeer zone in Detroit. A grand jury now is trying to ascertain why.

Twelve unsolved kidnapings are on the police records for the summer of 1927, a gang of extortionists terrorizing liquor dealers and gamblers, collecting, according to the records, $234,209. The ransoms ranged from $10,000 to $50,000, and were paid, the police said.

In two instances the "racket" reached across the international boundary; two Canadian liquor exporters paid large sums for their freedom.

Officers have been unable to delve deeply into the kidnapings. The victims disclosing any knowledge of kidnapings, and few, if any, are left.

Labor circles also have their kidnapers. One leader was snatched away from a conference with four companions, held three days and released. His associates had paid for his freedom, the police said.

A story officers obtained from a "stool pike," but which could not be corroborated was that a blind pig operator, who had made much money, was informed that a band of extortionists would operate his illicit business a few weeks. They did, giving him $400 weekly. Later he disappeared and his places were closed.

LAKEPORT, Cal., Nov. 17.—(AP) The four University of California students missing nearly a week in the mountains north of here staggered into a deserted forest ranger cabin on Mount San Hedrin, about 46 miles northeast of here, at 11 o'clock last night and telephoned another ranger's cabin for food, said a telephone message here.

RADIO PROGRAM WILL FEATURE YARNS OF A FORMER RESIDENT

A most interesting hour of radio entertainment has been arranged for next Tuesday's Copco hour over station KMED from 3 to 10 p. m. In searching about for some thing original to present the Copco people have secured a number of unique short stories in prose and verse for their next program. These clever stories are from the pen of Halah E. Penoyser, a former resident of this city who is well known for his literary ability.

Mr. Penoyser, through twenty years, much of which was spent in the timber has accumulated a vast store of information regarding the lumber-jacks and miners around whom his stories are woven.

Two of the stories, "The Unsurveyed" and "Bread and Biscuits" have as a setting Jackson County while the other two, "A Prospector" and "Dan MacGregor" deal with life in neighboring states.

In connection with these stories which will be ably presented by Mr. Earl Davis well known radio artist there has been arranged an appropriate musical program.

Two new Boeing "40-C" mail, express and passenger planes are under construction at the factory of the Boeing Airplane Company in Seattle, to go on the Seattle-Medford-Los Angeles route of the Pacific Air Transport, says A. K. Humphries, vice president and general manager.

The new planes will be delivered about December 1, to handle increase in volume of traffic due to Christmas mailing. It is expected that the holiday business will double last year's due to the fifty per cent reduction in package rates effective last August 1.

OFFICERS ARREST STILL OPERATOR

A raid made by the authorities at 5 o'clock last night on the upstairs portion of a house at 329 Apple street, which G. R. Mackey, 35, had rented for some time past of a Mrs. McGarvey, disclosed a 20 gallon washbottle still in Mackey's upstairs portion. Six gallons of very low grade finished whisky—in fact poisonous stuff, the officers say, was also found with 100 gallons of grain mash consisting of wheat, oats and barley, and five gallons of strawberry wine. Mackey was placed under arrest and confined in the county jail to await hearing on a still possession charge.

The raid was made by Terry Talent, federal prohibition officer, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Louis Jennings and Officers Ray Shonaker, Joe Cave and George Prescott of the city police force.

It is not known by the officers just how long Mackey had operated the still, as they allege, but from the fact that he seemed to be a gentleman of leisure with plenty of money and no employment he had been under surveillance for some time past, they say.
