QUALITY TILTS WILL FEATURE ON SATURDAY

Few Major Elevens Take Gridiron This Week—Attraction Centered in Yale-Harvard, Carnegie-New York Games.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Quality rather than quantity is the keynote of the eastern college football schedule this week. Less than half the usual number of games are in the list, but there are such attractions as the Yale-Harvard, Carnegie Tech-New York university, Princeton-Navy, Nebraska-Army and Georgetown-Fordham.

Most of the other major college elevens are saving their final battle for Thanksgiving day. Then will be held the annual frays between Pennsylvania and Cornell, Syracuse and Columbia, Colgate and Brown, Pittsburgh and Penn State, and Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia.

Not even so important a game as that between Carnegie and New York university can take much interest away from the Yale-Harvard duel at New Haven. Both teams have been tossed about a bit riddly; neither has the semblance of a claim to any championship honors, yet 75,000 will throng the Yale bowl Saturday. For Harvard the season will be a success if it wins. The same is true to a lesser degree at Yale where a victory over Princeton delights only a little less than one over Harvard.

Whatever rips the Yale-Harvard battle has on the public in general, many an eager eye will be cast in the general direction of Pittsburgh when Chick Meehan's Violets of New York see whether they can do what no one else yet has done—stop the rush of Carnegie's husky Tartans. If the Violets can offer the outstanding scoring back in Ken Strong, Carnegie can counter with a better all-around backfield of Harper, Karel, Letzel and Moorehead, not to mention that brilliant ball-carrying end, Ten Rosenzweig. The lines, according to advance dope, will be extremely well matched with the edge, if any, belonging to the horde from Pittsburgh.

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Boston Post says today that it has become a generally accepted fact at Harvard that Arnold Horween of Chicago, head coach of football, will direct the team for the last time at Yale next Saturday. Although no official notice has been taken, the Post says it is expected that Eddie Casey, all-American halfback in 1919 and for the last three years head coach of so many remarkable Harvard freshmen teams, will succeed his chief.

Harvard freshmen under Casey have met but one reverse since he took charge in 1924, and their victories have included three straight wins over Yale. Horween captained the Harvard varsity in 1926. In 1926 he was asked to sacrifice a part of the time given to his business in Chicago and assume responsibility for rebuilding Harvard's football machine. The Harvard team won its first major victory under Horween this season when it defeated Dartmouth, but last Saturday it was held to a scoreless tie by Holy Cross, supposedly a weaker squad. The terms of Horween's contract have never been made public.

COCKTAIL SHAKERS STANFORD STARS GIVEN CHAMPIONS OF BYGONE GLORY MAY BE OUT FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Former champions whose days as athletes are long since past have had their recognition at the fortieth annual convention of the amateur Athletic union. Six awards of engraved cocktail shakers were made at the annual banquet last night to the guests of honor, the winners of the competitions for the oldest living champions in various fields. The presentations were made by Mayor Walker of New York.

Recognition as the oldest living amateur athlete was given to Frank Pullcraft of the New York A. C., who started his athletic career as a member of the Gramercy baseball club, winner of the amateur championship of New York state in 1875. Later he became world's champion rifle shot in 1874 and won honors in rowing, tug of war and billiards.

T. H. Armstrong, holder of the American three and seven-mile walking titles in 1877-88, was judged the oldest living Olympic champion. Ray Ebery, national broad jump champion in 1904, was recognized as the dean of the Olympic athletes. The title of oldest living intercollegiate champion went to Dr. Graeme Hammond, winner of the intercollegiate quarter and half-mile titles in 1877. In allied forms of endeavor, Mortimer Bishop, who has been active as an official since 1879, was named the oldest living official and Abe Yeager of the Brooklyn Eagle was recognized as the oldest active sports writer.

WARNEKE DECISIONS DUNDEE IN ASTORIA

ASTORIA, Ore., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Frank Warneke of Portland won a decision over Pat Dundee of San Jose, Cal., in an eight-round main event on the boxing program here last night. Both are welterweights. Ted Rogaway, Portland welterweight, scored a knockout over Joe Corbett, Denver, in the second round of a scheduled six-rounder.

CONQUERING TEAM WELCOMED TODAY BY HUGE CROWD

Welcomed by the high school band in their jaunty black and red uniforms, and a crowd of approximately 1,500 cheering residents and fellow students, the conquering eleven of the local high school, stepped from train 12 this noon into Medford's hearty embrace.

For returning heroes, however, Prink Callison and his men were strangely silent—in fact almost grim in their attitude, toward the demonstration. The coach dropped from the train platform into the crowd and almost succeeded in making an escape before he was discovered. The boys, instead of allowing themselves to be carried up into the thickest part of the worshipping audience, made their way down a side street, where they greeted relatives, sweethearts and friends.

But they were soon tackled and surrounded by the crowd who would not be cheated. Horace Grosley, 'Dope' movie man was on hand, and shot several reluctant grins which crept out on the faces of the local eleven, while the band struck up a succession of peppy tunes.

Callison and his men will be the guests of the chamber of commerce and the combined service clubs at a forum luncheon to be held at Hotel Medford tomorrow noon.

GREGORY'S VIEW OF MEDFORD H. S. FOOTBALL TEAM

It ought to be an interesting football game at The Dalles today between the high school football squad of that city and Medford high's famous team. The state championship is at stake, with only one string on it. The string is held by Bend, which, like The Dalles and Medford is undefeated. But Bend plays The Dalles next Saturday, and if Bend should win, there is still time to snatch its title against Medford on Thanksgiving day if that game should be necessary. For once this state is to have a real high school football champion, for which all concerned ought to be deeply thankful.

Medford has known football supremacy for so long that it gives a tendency on the part of Medford fans to think there is nothing to it—that Medford will walk right through The Dalles and pile up a huge score. Don't be so sure of that. Medford may, but cocky overconfidence of this sort, the inclination to underestimate the other fellow on the strength of "dope" that has gained many a good football team this year. Even Medford has no logical cause to expect a "set-up" when facing a football eleven coached by Bob Murray.

You can depend upon it that "Prink" Callison, the Medford coach, does not encourage this superiority feeling in his team. Prink played football himself too long for that. He has played on teams that staged some great upsets, and has no doubt been on others that were upset. Coaches know what happens to the team that is too cocky against an under dog.

Callison has made a fine record when at the high school level, but as a center on the Oregon team in 1922 and in 1923 he became the Medford coach. This, consequently, is his sixth year there—and also probably his last, for he expects to move on next season to California, where football coaches in the high schools are so much better paid than they are in Oregon. Prink is an idol in Medford, but this doesn't get him the dough they pay in California.

In his six years at Medford, Callison's team has not lost a game. In 1925 and '27, though the anti-championship element in the State High School Athletic association prevented any actual championship, there is no doubt about it that Medford earned the unofficial title. Medford beat Grant, the Portland winner, in 1925, and last year won from McLoughlin high of Milton-Freewater in the only championship game the association would let Medford play.

One hears much of Callison's "great strategy" and some of his linemen are certainly hefty. In Medford recently I met Morgan, one of his big tackles, and this boy, with his 185 pounds and unprung weight, would delight the eye of any varsity coach.

But take 'em all in all, and they're not so heavy. J. Hughes at guard, whom Prink himself calls his best offensive lineman, is only 165. B. Hughes at center is 172. McDonald at end is 181, which is college stuff, but in the backfield there is little of that heavy poundage. His four backs, Melvin, Cooksey and Harrell, being three of the four average only, 157 between them. One of the four weighs only 149.

There will be a big throng at The Dalles to see the game at 2:30 today. There should be, for it is the first genuine championship encounter this state has ever had. There should be one every year. — L. H. Gregory in Oregonian.

BLONDE WOMAN IN ROTHSTEIN QUIZ

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—An attractive blonde woman was due in New York today to aid the state in clearing the mystery surrounding the death of Arnold Rothstein, who was shot to death in a hotel there the night of November 1.

The woman, Mrs. Ruth Keyes, 24, was taken to New York by detectives for a second questioning as to what went on before and after a party she attended in the hotel the night of the shooting. Mrs. Keyes, who terms herself a free-lance clothing model, admitted she had room No. 439 in the Park Central Hotel and said she visited room 449, which was the number of the room where Rothstein was shot. She denied knowing Rothstein, however, and said she did not know George McManus, whom police wish to question.

AGED BRIDE VICTIM OF YOUNG HUSBAND

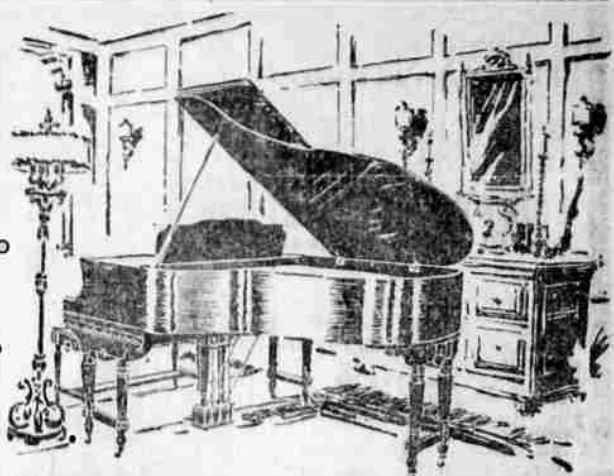

PORT MYERS, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP)—A 60-year-old bride and mother of 10 children, and Frank Fox, her laborer-husband, of 22 were dead today and the verdict was murder and suicide. Although a note in the husband's hand writing described the woman as "the sweetest woman on earth," the coroner's jury decided that he had beaten her during a quarrel at a boarding, and unable to revive her after taking her home, had shot himself to death. The children, ranging from 16 to 36 years in age, were by three other marriages.

TERRIBLE TURK WORRIED BY BOB KRUSE, WRESTLER

Hassan Muhammed, the Terrible Turk, is worried. He has fears that at a man has been found for him that he can not handle in both Turkey and Portland, athletic instructor of the National club, recognized as one of the best men in his class on the coast. When they meet next Friday night in the armory, both men will weigh approximately 210 pounds and now are in the pink of condition.

Matchmaker Jack Wood has gone to considerable expense in bringing the Turk and Kruse to Medford, and if Medford and southern Oregon wrestling fans appreciate his efforts, he is planning to bring the Turk to Medford from Salt Lake City to meet the winner of Friday's match. Dern has signed a conditional contract and Dern's appearance here will depend largely on Friday's attendance.

Muhammed works out every night at the Armory with other local wrestlers and is sparing no effort in putting himself into absolutely perfect condition. Preliminary wrestlers for Friday are also working out and in their ranks include several headline aspirants. The preliminaries include matches between Fred Mortensen and Young Gotech of Klamath Falls, Tex Porter of Medford and Carly Woods of Medford and Tommy Ryan of Medford against a member of the local Oregon National Guard unit. That round will be another feature of the evening, the Grants Pass municipal band furnishing the music for the evening, and the crowd is expected to include a good sized delegation of Grants Pass fans, who will support their home town favorite, Fred Mortensen.
