Thanksgiving

And this is just one of the 200 tested recipes in Frye's Meat Guide. Gladly mailed by Frye & Company, Portland, on receipt of 3c to cover postage.

One whole FRYE'S DELICIOUS HAM. (Ask your dealer to include the paper wrappings). No parboiling is necessary, owing to the very mild cure of the ham. With a sharp strong knife split skin into 1-inch squares but do not cut through into meat. (A razor blade is excellent for this purpose). Force a clove of garlic or a piece of ginger root in next to flat bone at back. Make a paste with 4 tablespoons cinnamon, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons ground cloves, 6 tablespoons dry mustard and 1 cup flour, stir 1 teaspoon maple flavoring in 1 cup cold water and cover the outside of ham with this paste using spatula.

Have all three sheets of ham paper dipped in cold water, run lid on table. Put 3 cups flour on paper and distribute over ham, wrapping tight in wet paper and tying with string. Keep water under ham during baking, using any sort of baking pan and use no top heat. Start in cold oven and when water boils, cook 15 minutes for ham to heat through and 15 minutes for each pound. This makes 2 hours and 45 minutes for a 10-pound ham. Serve with maple raisin sauce. Baked sweet potatoes are better with this sauce than candied sweet.
