

NEWS of the DAY in PICTURES

THE REVOLUTION THAT UNSEATED THE ROMANOFFS is commemorated in Moscow on its eleventh anniversary by a mighty parade. Here is the crowd in Moscow's famous Red Square; in the right center is Lenin's tomb, and at the left is the famous church of St. Basil.

THIS TURKEY PROBABLY DIDN'T KNOW HIS LUCK when he wandered out on the sands at Miami Beach, Fla. He was promptly surrounded and seized by this group of bathing girls, with the result shown here.

LOVELY CAPTIVE is Dorothy Mackaill in her latest picture, "The Captive Woman," in which she plays the part of a New York "jazz baby" who flees to Hawaii after being accused of killing a stock broker.

WINTER SPORTS—AND SPORTSWOMEN—CAN BE JUST AS ATTRACTIVE as those of summer time. This picture, showing a group of skiers coming down from the mountains around Lake Louise, Canada.

A STING OF SPRAWLING PLAYERS LITTERS THE GROUND when Christian Cagle, famous Army back, hits the line. Here's a picture taken during the West Point-Nebraska game showing Cagle (indicated by the arrow) coming to earth after an eight-yard plunge through the line.

THE THUNDERING MAJESTY OF FAMOUS CUMBERLAND FALLS IS DOOMED if the Insull power interests win their fight for permission to dig a tunnel, divert the flow of water and erect a hydro-electric plant there. The falls are in southeastern Kentucky and nature lovers are now fighting to preserve them.

HAND-PAINTED PAJAMAS, made of satin, and set off with a high collar, are the latest thing in sleeping garments these days. Pretty Alice White of the films is displaying a suit here.

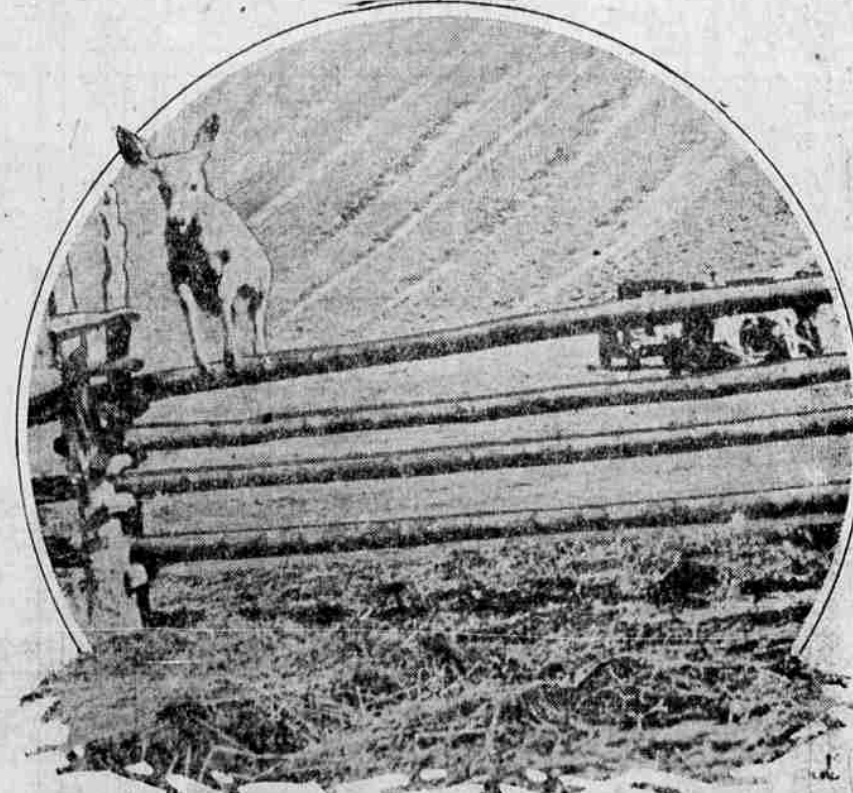

IT'S CHIEFLY HEAD WORK that counts in the game of soccer, and once in a while a player gets a good headache as a result. Here's a picture taken during a game between pupils of Stuyvesant High School, New York.

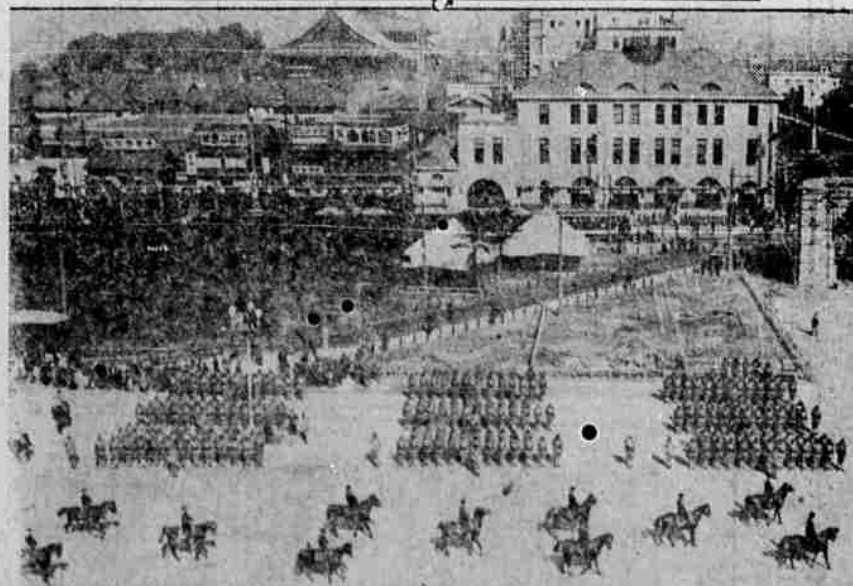

REAL STAR, head-dress and all, is Joe Cross, a Gros Ventre Indian, shown here in the garb of his ancestors, who plays quarterback on the Haskell Indian School football team. He's also good in basketball and baseball.

PRETTY RACHEL Allyn of Springfield, Mass., has the role of "Rafaela" in the comedy, "Fiesta," which the Harvard Dramatic Club will stage at Cambridge, Mass., this fall.

A FRIGHTENED DEER WON'T POSE FOR A PICTURE very often; it takes a quick cameraman to get the picture when the animal's scared. Here's a three-quarter grown buck deer, photographed as it fled from the farm of Nicholas Kappes, near Rock Springs, Wyo., after Kappes had surprised it stealing his lettuce.

CRACK TROOPS OF THE JAPANESE EMPIRE PARADED in the ancient city of Kyoto when the Japanese crowned their new emperor. Here are several companies lined up at attention while the vanguard of the parade enters the city.
