POSTAL PROMISE IS KEPT DESPITE RAIN AND ILLNESS

Notwithstanding that despite the furious rain storm of last Monday evening the postoffice staff delivered at the homes all the Christmas parcels and other mail that had arrived in the city by late that afternoon by 5:30 p. m., and then went on to enjoy the remainder of Christmas eve, and Christmas day yesterday, the first-class mail that accumulated over yesterday at the postoffice was being delivered today.

Owing to the working stress existing at the postoffice in the receiving and delivery rush of the past weeks and their working in the weather during their emergency period when they were not feeling well, two of the regular members of the postoffice staff, Assistant Postmaster Roland Beach and R. E. Swain, city carrier, are on the sick list.

Mr. Beach, who only recently returned to duty after a siege with the flu, was sick all day Monday, but, nevertheless, stuck at his post of duty and assisted in the delivery of mail all that day and evening, even working out in the rain with the motor delivery trucks until 2:30 p. m. Then, when the strain was off, he went home in a collapsed condition where he has been since, and was unable to report for duty today.

Mr. Swain's case was somewhat similar. Although not feeling well Monday, he completed two heavily loaded trips over his route. Today, not liking to give up, he resumed his carrier's duties as usual, but this forenoon he became ill and reported back at the postoffice that he could no longer keep up. He then went home to bed, while a substitute took over his duties.

The Medford public had been promised that all Christmas mail arriving by late Monday afternoon would be delivered at the homes by midnight Christmas eve, and this promise was kept, although no one had foreseen that so heavy a rainstorm would be on all during that evening's emergency delivery.

It looked to be an almost hopeless task to deliver the Christmas parcels in the driving rain in dry condition, even if the houses could be found in the dark. The delivery, however, was not halted for a minute. Several of the motor delivery trucks had permanent covers and big tarpaulins were used to cover the open trucks and their contents. The men making these deliveries, of course, were soaked through, despite their slickers or raincoats. They used flashlight to locate the homes for which parcels were addressed and the parcels were carried from truck to house with a waterproof cover or a kind over them.

Thus it was that obstacles were surmounted and over two hundreds of packages bringing Christmas cheer into as many homes might be delivered.

CHEST BENEFITS TOLD LION CLUB BY EARL GADDIS

The benefits of a community chest, properly handled, were outlined at today's noon meeting of the Medford Lion Club by Earl Gaddis to stimulate interest among club members for the establishment of a chest in Medford. A joint meeting will be held next Monday at the Hotel Medford with the chamber of commerce, Rotary, and Kiwanis clubs to discuss chest establishment.

The establishment of a chest, said Mr. Gaddis, will do much to eliminate the waste of effort in the several charities and other drives staged in Medford every year. The chest will make it possible for drives to be controlled from one central headquarters and will include all drives in one annual effort.

In speaking of the Hawaiian Islands from which he recently returned to his headquarters at Fort Mason, near San Francisco, Captain Amos Tyree, father of Lion Darwin Tyree, gave them the credit of holding the key position of the Pacific ocean and declared that native born Japanese are patriotic American citizens. However, he dwelt at short length on the possibility that Japanese emigrants would be loyal to their mother country should war ever arise between Japan and the United States.

He also gave a brief geographic description of the islands and spoke on the customs of the natives, citing that native girls marrying American soldiers, are contaminated from their fathers for marrying members of the white race.

In taking over his duties for the first time as "tail wagger," Lion Earl Davis was a huge success and took particular delight in keeping Lion Don Collier off of his feet as much as possible.

As a part of the program, selections on a harp were played by Miss Betty Stennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Stennett, and vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. C. H. Paske, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. H. E. Marsh.

DISCUSS BUDGET IN COUNTY COURT WINDUP SESSION

The final session of the county court for the year was under way today. The county judge and commissioners busy catering up the items of many county affairs. The chief matter was the final endorsement of the county budget and the turning of the same over to the assessor for extension of the tax rolls preparatory to the fixing of the levy for the year. This involves much extra work, including the signing of orders setting aside sums for the current expense funds, the payment of interest on bonds, and many other matters.

The budget was passed December 7 by the budget committee. Under the state law it must be submitted to the assessor on or before December 31.

Assessor Coleman estimates that the consolidated levy for the city of Medford will be "around 50 mills." It makes a rough guess that the state and county tax will be "between 17 and 18 mills," about the same as last year. This does not include the city and school taxes. The school levies for the various high school districts of the county have been submitted, along with special road levies.

A couple of road matters also came before the county court today. One concerned the building of a two-mile stretch on the top of Greenings mountain. Twenty-seven residents of the district and a number of stockmen signed petitions presented to the court. The road is paid for by the taxpayers affected. A land owner objected to the road crossing a corner of his land, after appraisal by road viewers, and a conference was held with his attorney in an effort to reach a compromise.

The other road problem concerned the construction of a bridge across the upper reaches of Griffin creek, which some maintained would not withstand the next high
