

ASHLAND CHAPTER P. E. O. SISTERHOOD MEETING ENJOYED

ASHLAND, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.) Chapter A. C. of the P. E. O. Sisterhood held a meeting of unusual interest on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louise McNair on scenic drive. A large attendance of the members greeted the hostess and her two assistants, Mrs. Clara Shouady and Miss Katharine Vincent. The first hour was given over to the usual order of business and was followed by the serving of delicious refreshments served at small tables set about the room. The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to a Christmas exchange which was greatly enjoyed by the members.

Guests for the afternoon were Miss Eva Poley of Oakland, Cal., Mrs. Walter Kimmell of Redding, Cal., and Miss Edith Dodge.

Rev. Chas. D. Gaffney, pastor of the First Congregational church of Ashland, will attend a state conference of Congregational churches at Forts Grove this week.

Harry Lynch of Wagner creek was in Ashland Friday visiting friends and attending to business affairs.

Bill DeWitt and Earl Riedel made a trip to Grants Pass Friday. Miss Bernice Hess was visiting friends and attending to business in Medford Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer planned to leave Sunday for Eugene to spend the holidays with their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Hicks, and family. They expect to return home by way of Klamath Falls and will stop there for a visit with their son, Cedric Meyer, and family.

Kenneth Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brown, who live on Fourth street, reached Ashland on Friday evening from Glendale, Ore., where he is attending high school.

Miss Clara Willis arrived in Ashland Friday from eastern Oregon, where she is teaching school. She is in Ashland to spend the Christmas holidays with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Williamson and family went to Portland a short time ago to spend the winter. Milton Hiegel is expected in Ashland soon from Walla Walla, Wash., to spend the Christmas vacation with his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Hiegel, and sister Calla on Morton street.

Miss Janet Wilson, daughter of Mrs. Lulu Wilson on Liberty street, is in Ashland from Corvallis, where she attends the Oregon state college, and will spend the vacation with her mother.

Miss Gertrude Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Brown on Holly street, is teaching school in Umatilla, Ore., and is home to spend the Christmas holidays.

Leonard McMillon, student at Oregon State college at Corvallis, is in Ashland to spend the holidays with his brother, "Trick" Leach, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Short of the East Side Pharmacy, and two children, left Ashland Friday for a visit to Pasadena and other California cities to visit Mr. Short's mother and sisters during the Christmas vacation. They expect to return in about two weeks.

William G. Sauer of the Ashland greenhouse, is at work again after having a cold for several days which confined him to the house a part of the time.

George Jenkins, Mason-Ehrman representative from Medford, was in Ashland Saturday on business. Mrs. E. R. Campbell left Ashland Saturday morning to spend the Christmas vacation at Silver Lake with her parents and other relatives.

Miss Agnes Hedberg left Saturday for San Francisco after spending several weeks with her parents in Ashland. Her mother, Mrs. G. H. Hedberg went south with her as far as Dunsmuir and will stay a few days with Mrs. D. R. Jones and family.

Mrs. Marion Carter, daughter of F. H. Walker, city engineer, is in Ashland to spend the Christmas vacation with relatives. Her home is in Glendale, Ore.

Mrs. William Barber of the Barber Convalescent home on Granite street, is said to be improving from a recent hard attack of influenza, aggravated by other complications which have made her case serious.

Screen Life in Hollywood

By Wado Werner. HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—She was two years old when she came here from Denver with her father. Now Lorayne Duval has grown up to be Reginald Denny's leading woman.

Many picture-goers will remember her father, the late Earl Moran, as the "honky" in Harold Lloyd's skyscraper comedy, "So a Fella Lost." Lorayne followed him into the films after their arrival in Hollywood, playing child roles; and after his death she carried on the struggle in the extra ranks. Two months ago she was still playing extra. More recently she attracted attention to herself by doing a small part well in Denny's "Clear the Decks." So he will make love to her in his next.

It has been a long enough struggle, as cinema struggles go. But Hollywood professes short stories of quick success; so in studio comment one usually hears Lorayne described as "that new girl from Denver who just grabbed off the lead opposite Denny."

Hollywood Optimism. Motion picture casting directors are opposed to the continued pessimism of the subject of any untried newcomer's chances of breaking into the movies. Yet their own records show that anyone willing to wait long enough is virtually sure of getting work in the pictures some day. There are far too many youngsters trying to break in. It is true, but Fred Datin, casting chief at Paramount, says there never seems to be a surplus of elderly extras who have fine clothes and can wear them well. So the flapper who has patience enough to linger on in Hollywood 40 or 50 years can count on getting something to do at the end of that time. That is, she can if she still looks handsome and well groomed; the sort of elderly person Datin describes as "one who would seem at home in the most exclusive hotels."

Classified advertising gets results.

A WASHINGTON BYSTANDER

By Kirk L. Simpson. WASHINGTON.—It seems fairly clear by now that twins and career diplomacy don't mix. That is, unless the lad with ambitions for a permanent place in Uncle Sam's diplomatic field force has an income of his own sufficient to piece out his government salary.

Twins Alter Career. The recent event giving point to these observations is the resignation from foreign service of Alan Francis Winslow, first secretary of the embassy in Mexico City. It followed on the birth of twins to the Winslow household and despite the fact that Winslow was by way of being a man marked for steady advancement in the service.

He is a son-in-law of William R. Castle, assistant secretary of state, a veteran pilot of both the French and American air services during the war, had diversified experience and apt advancement after he joined up with the diplomatic arm of the government in 1915.

Then came the twins, and Winslow, lacking personal or family fortune, decided to get out into the busy world of private enterprise.

Precedent. Not in Winslow the first of the career service men to be forced out in search of more profitable employment by the birth of twins. Exactly the same thing happened to Cord Meyer, then attached to the legation in Stockholm. It was even more serious in his case, however, as he was a diplomatic secretary of the second class with a salary ranging somewhere between $4,000 and $5,000 a year and a considerable time to wait for any great advancement.

Meyer also was a coming man in the career service. That is, he was struck by the fact that he has been continuously in demand in connection with Pan American congress matters ever since he quit. He has been recalled to active duty several times to act as assistant secretary of secretary to the Washington government delegations to such conferences, the last occasion being at Havana. He also was slated for secretary of the delegation at the very important special Pan-American conference here in December which grew out of the Havana discussions. That December gathering has been given the somewhat resounding title of the International Conference of American States on Arbitration and Conciliation, which sufficiently indicates its potential importance in Washington eyes.

It was this conference Ambassador Fletcher was called home from Rome to deal with as secretary general. Because of his special fitness for the task, the decision to assign him as state department representative accompanying President-elect Hoover on his pre-inauguration Latin-American good-will tour, was a hard one to make. Without doubt the fact that Cord Meyer was available to take over the task of secretary general had a bearing on the change in Fletcher's orders.

But equally without doubt Meyer has little reason to question the wisdom of his action in barging out of the foreign service. A second pair of twins has been added to his household since he resigned.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

Now Showing at Hunt's Craterian

David Rollins and Louise Dresser in The Air Circus

"The Air Circus," now at Hunt's Craterian, featuring three young stars—Sue Carol, David Rollins and Arthur Lake—who perform the thrills like veterans in the air.

The picture also is not lacking in heart interest and sentimental appeal. Louise Dresser plays the role of young Rollins' mother and each of the trio of youngsters is a fair artist.

Searches on the subject took him up to the balcony of the Selwyn theater here every night for a week to see whether the American gallery audience really liked his English revue, "This Year of Grace." Its acts, its scenes and its characters are all English, and some of his friends abroad told him that New York wouldn't think his show was funny.

He wasn't willing to trust the orchestra circle verdict, because it contained so many English folk. So he went to the highest reaches of the dollar seats, and emerged to report that his Yankee audience laughed just as loudly, and at exactly the same places as did the Londoners.

Fighting With Flowers. Two chorus girls in a Broadway musical comedy are saying it with flowers in a bitter feud. They have been co-choruses in three successive shows, and their rivalry began more than a season ago when an admirer of one, who sent her a box of flowers at the theater each night suddenly diverted his attentions to the other and began showering her with blossoms. He has long since forgotten both of them, but meantime the first chorus girl had begun sending herself flowers reported to come from other admirers and when the second chorus' source of horticulture supply failed her, she too began to send herself flowers containing the curds of fetid suitors.

Every night flowers come to each girl at the theater, and everybody else in the cast knows that the rivals are sending the posies to themselves, but each chorus seems still to have the other guessing and it's too amusing for their colleagues to expose. The weekly floral bills are keeping both the girls poor, but they still have their pride.

Pope's Doctor Dies. ROME, Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

AUTHORITY ASKED BY COMMISSIONER FOR WAGE CLAIMS

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—Authority for the state labor commissioner to collect wage claims, extending the pay-day law to more occupations, and provision that the state cooperate with the federal government in operating free public employment offices are the recommendations in the biennial report of C. H. Gram, state labor commissioner.

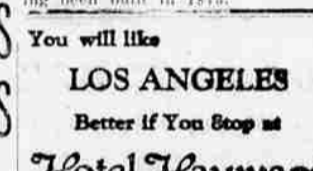

Although the Oregon laws are inadequate for the collection of wage claims, Gram says that the department has been able to make many adjustments by mediation and arbitration and through the prestige of the bureau. He reports that in the last two years he had adjusted 1048 claims, amounting to $59,174.31.

Free public employment bureaus are now operated by the government at Portland, Salem, Eugene, Marshfield and Medford. During the last two years 65,279 men and women received employment through these bureaus and over 128,490 persons received employment through private bureaus. A total of 1201 working permits were granted to minor children during the last two years.

Barracks Burn. FORT SNEILING, Minn., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—Forty soldiers were routed from their quarters early today when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the two-story barracks of a company, third infantry, U. S. A. The loss was estimated at $10,000. The barracks was one of the oldest on the Fort Snelling reservation, having been built in 1875.

You will like LOS ANGELES Better if You Stop at Hotel Hayward

SIXTH and SPRING STREETS

New Million Dollar Annex $50 Comfortable Rooms

$3.00 per day up without bath $2.50 per day up with bath

PERSONAL SERVICE Popular Priced Coffee Shop and Grill

We Check Your Car at the Door

H. C. FRYMAN, Proprietor

MARY C. WAGNER

ROCK OF MARNE WED AT BALBOA, REPORT

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

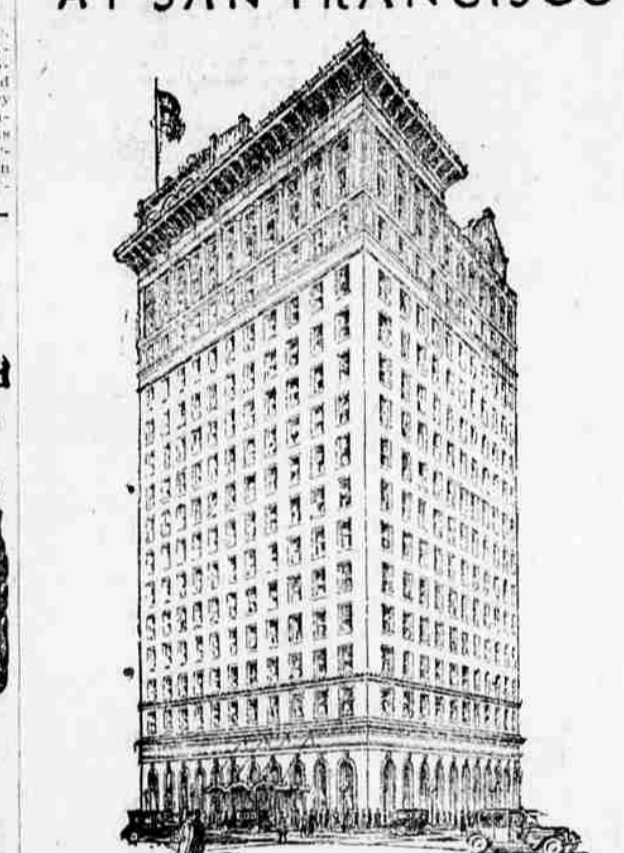

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritation, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CREOMULSION FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

The CLIFT AT SAN FRANCISCO

The ideal hotel with an ideal location for your visit to San Francisco—right in the smart shopping and theatre district. The CLIFT is favored by those who expect the best as a matter of course.

540 rooms, each with bath. Single and en suite. Single, from $4; double, from $6. Located at GEARY and TAYLOR

EL MIRASOL AT SANTA BARBARA

El Mirasol entertains more world famous people than any other hotel its size in America.

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Read about the lamp-test— one proof of merit for this new-day fuel— BURNBRITE KEROSENE

A DRASTIC improvement in manufacturing process has made this better kerosene possible. At no added cost you can now have a kerosene that offers these valued advantages:

- 1. Burnbrite has a clean, sweet odor.
- 2. Burnbrite burns with a clear, white flame.
- 3. Burnbrite does not char the wick.

At your neighborhood grocer's or the nearest red, green and cream service station you can get this new product. Try it confidently; you'll want to use it regularly.

Ask for the Burnbrite booklet. It gives you a score and more of valued uses for Burnbrite, with finer results than you have ever known. Read about the convincing lamp test—a standard lamp burning for from 60 to 65 hours on one filling of the fount.

Sold wherever Associated products are sold.

ASSOCIATED OIL COMPANY Refiners and Distributors of Associated Gasoline - Associated Ethyl Gasoline Cyclo Motor Oil and Greases

NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By G. D. Seymour. NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

SALEMAN, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—The holiday joy has been damped at the Vatican by the death of Dr. Andrea Aruffi, the Pope's physician, who also served Pope Pius X. He attended the Pope's jubilee mass on December 26 in full health, but shortly after was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

Go. W. Thompson Dies. SALEM, Ore., Dec. 27.—(Sp.)—George W. Thompson, 62, former member of the Salem city council and elected to serve a four-year term, beginning in January, died yesterday at his home here.

ST. HELENS.—New addition being constructed to P. & J. Garages.

NEW YORK.—(Sp.)—Ghost writing is supposed to be one of the modern trades, but Herbert Drease, stage veteran, was a ghost writer in London away back in the eighties.

The ghost writers of today are anonymous journalistic hacks who prepare newspaper and magazine articles to be signed by men who are in the public eye, but who lack the time or the erudition to compose their own prose. Most published works of sports heroes may be traced to the typewriters or "ghosts" assigned to put their observations into shape for public consumption. Even Charles A. Lindbergh was offered a ghost writer for newspaper and magazine stories he authored, and it was a body blow to the ghost-writing fraternity when he said he'd write his material himself.

But as to "ghost" writing in 1888, and just getting a start on the London stage, when he turned to writing to augment an income of 10 shillings a week from the theater. He set himself to writing sermons, and his real status was that of a ghost writer for a ghost writer, for he prepared the sermons and sold them to a book merchant at Soho, who in turn disposed of them as his own work to London ministers of various denominations whose religious zeal outstripped their literary ability.

Drease celebrated his fortieth anniversary on the stage last week in the east of "The Last Lover," the new play in which Elsie Ferguson is the star. He went to the United States in 1888, with Richard Mansfield, and he is best known here for his part in "Seventh Heaven."

Senses of Humor. The old question of whether Americans are amused by English humor has been settled by his own satisfaction by Charles E. Cochran, London producer. His re-

Oregon Dairymen Arrange Meet for Medford Early in January

The problem of making Oregon a great dairy state, which is now much before the public, will engage the attention of the Oregon Dairymen's association at its thirty-sixth annual convention at Medford, January 9 and 10. More of a state-wide program than usual has been arranged, as shown by the detailed program just announced by P. M. Brandt, secretary, and head of the department of dairy husbandry at Oregon State college.

This is the first time in many years that the annual convention has been held in the southern part of the state. J. R. McCracken of Ashland is president of the association, S. G. Simon, Tangent, vice president, and John Gaffney, Oregon City, second vice president. The program follows: