

NEWS of the DAY in PICTURES

EDITOR of a national magazine in her early twenties is the distinction gained by Miss Delight Evans, former Fort Wayne (Ind.) girl, who has become editor of Screenland.

ROSALIND as Shakespeare imagined her—that's Miss Evelyn Price of Pasadena, dressed to represent the Shakespearean heroine at a rehearsal of the Tournament of Roses pageant.

IMPATIENT FOR A DASH 'CROSS COUNTRY, these hounds sniff the air as they wait for the opening meet of the Worcester Park Beagles, Surrey, England.

THUNDERING HOOPS WARN THE DARING RIDERS OF THE DANGERS OF A FALL as runners in the "Moderate Chase" clear the first water jump en masse in a steeplechasing meet at Newbury, England.

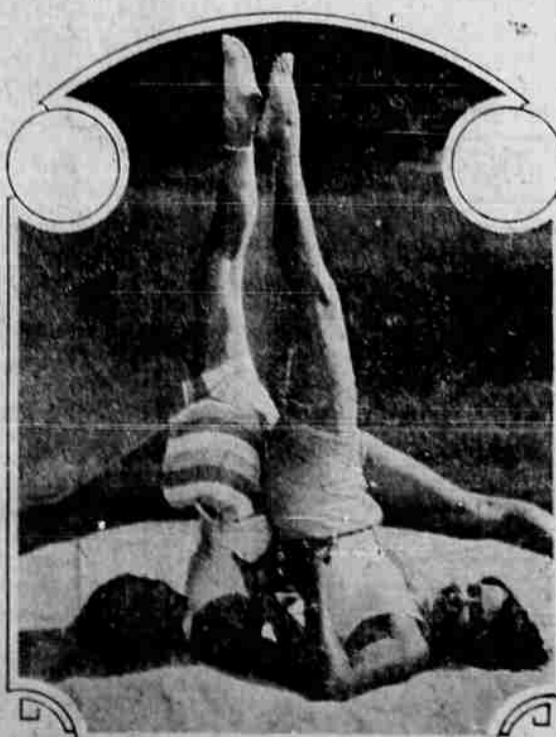

COPYRIGHT, N.Y.A.-London Times. QUEEN OF CATS is the aristocratic "Lotus Blue Bell," first prize winner at the National Cat Club's Show, London.

THE SAILOR'S LIFE ISN'T HALF BAD, what with funny little boats to ride around in, in everything. Here's a group of gobs from the U. S. Asiatic fleet, going ashore in sampans in the Whangpoo river, Shanghai, China.

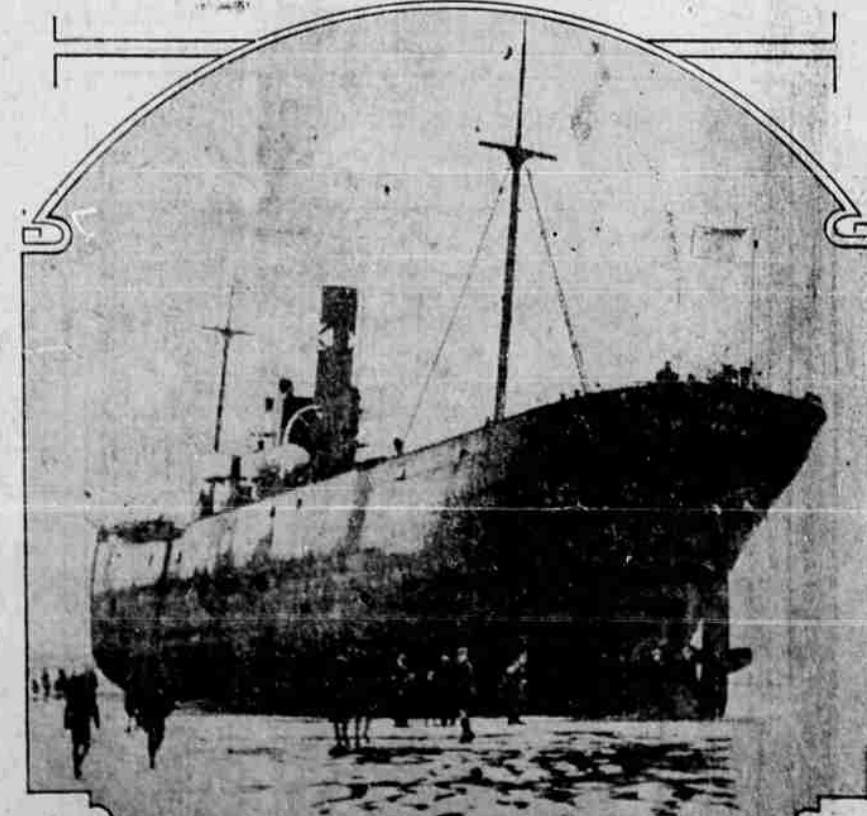

IT TAKES A REAL SKATER to do a trick like this. Jack Dalton is the expert making the jump; he's shown doing it at the Van Cortland auditorium, New York City.

NOTHING TO KICK ABOUT but plenty to kick with—that's the slogan you might apply to Margaret Lee and Kathryn Crawford, of the flickers, shown here in a somewhat informal pose on the lot at Hollywood.

IT'S A FAKE, is this stuffed bulldog, but it's good company anyhow. At least that seems to be the opinion of Reine Valerie, musical comedy star, photographed here as she returned to New York from a European tour.

DRIVEN ASHORE BY A NORTH SEA GALE, the steamer Cantabria, of Santander, Spain, was left high and dry on the Ayr sands, Scotland, when the tides receded. Here's the boat the morning after.
