RALLY HELPS IN STOCK RECOVERY AFTER A DECLINE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Strong rallying tendencies developed in today's stock market after an early period of irregularity. Many of the early declines of 1 to 5 points were cut down, or wiped out, and by early afternoon scores of issues were selling 1 to 7 points above last week's final quotations. Trading was moderately heavy in volume.

Motors, which had been heavily sold since the first of the year on reports that the middlewest was bearish on those issues because of the severe competition in the industry, snapped back in rather impressive fashion on what appeared to be short covering.

American sugar refining was heavily bought on reports that 1928 earnings would run above $10 a share, crossing 91 for the first time since last November.

Airplane stocks were in the forefront of the day's advance, Wright soaring 7 points and Curtiss 4. Continental baking A and Virginia Carolina Chemical reached new high ground.

SOVIET GENERAL IS SLAIN FOR REVENGE

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—(AP) Tass, the Soviet News agency, said today that a Russian named Kolenberg, aged 24, had been held for the murder of General Jacob Alexandrovitch Slaschoff, a high officer in the soviet war commissary, yesterday.

Police announced that the man had confessed, saying that he killed the general to avenge his brother, who was executed at Nickolaiev by the general's orders in 1920. Kolenberg, who was only 15 years old at the date of the execution witnessed the gruesome scene and swore vengeance personally.

Perhaps Shakespeare Wore Plus Fours

By Frank H. King
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON — (AP) — Shakespeare knew his golf.

As the winter afternoons lengthen and the rain drives foursomes to the clubhouses here in Britain, golfers settle down before the big open fires of the smoke rooms for a session of the new pastime of quoting Shakespeare on the ancient game.

A player started something a few weeks ago when he remarked he believed it possible to describe a golf match in Shakespeare's own words. Golfers all over the country have been helping him out:

"Cursed be the hand that made these fatal holes."—Richard III.

"Give me the iron, I say."—King John.

This must have been from an ancient caddie:

"A plague upon the tyrant that I serve. I'll bear him no more sticks."—The Tempest.

"Uneven is the course. I like it not."—Romeo and Juliet.

Othello, the Moor, seems to have been an honest golfer. "I am ill at reckoning," he admitted.

Then he rather spoiled it by claiming to be the most potent in potting." He must have meant putting.

The "Show of Kings" supplies the picture of the duh who fans the air: "A fourth! Start eyes! What! Will the line stretch out till the crack of doom? Another yet? A seventh. I'll see no more."

"He transports his poisoned shot and hits the woundless air."—Hamlet.

"You know the course is common."—Measure for Measure.

"A garish flag, to be the aim of every dangerous shot."—Richard III.

Somebody even suggests Calaban faced a stymie when he said: "Here you sty me in this hard rock whilst you do keep from me the rest of the island."

Again, from The Tempest: "By lesky acres and by unshrubb'd down,

Rich scarf to my proud earth; Why hath thy queen summon'd me hither to

This short-grass'd green."

And in Macbeth we have: "Duncan comes here tonight." But it could hardly have been George Duncan, the modern Scot, who in the play reports a little fracas in a bunker.

"Aye, my good lord, safe in a ditch he bides with twenty trenched gashes on his head."

The modern Duncan visits bunkers, but never needs twenty to get out.

"The Taming of the Shrew" has advice for the 19th hole: "Do as adversaries do in law, strive mightily, but eat and drink as friends"—after the match is over.
