With the evidence in one case given yesterday afternoon, the grand jury was expected to complete its work today and possibly return a report late this afternoon or early tomorrow forenoon. These manslaughter cases and three still possession cases were to be brought before the judicial body. The present grand jury will be dissolved at the end of this month and a new one will be appointed by Circuit Judge Harry Norton, who does not plan to carry grand juries over the month of time, as had been done in the past.
