Diphtheria Symptoms

In speaking of the advisability of early treatment whenever diphtheria is suspected a physician says that it is of tremendous importance because anti-toxin may save life, while if the recognition is postponed the disease often proves fatal despite all treatment.

For this reason—and particularly as applies to children—whenever chills or convulsions occur, accompanied by vomiting, running nose and fever, the physician should be immediately called.

The advantages of early treatment are so tremendous in such a wide variety of diseases and troubles that there is only one safe rule to follow under all circumstances. Whenever illness occurs call the doctor at the first indication of trouble.

WASHINGTON GRANGE IN FIGHT FOR SALE OF JUICE BY PUBLIC

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Forces for and against public sale of electric power clashed in the senate chamber of the Washington state capitol last night when hearing was begun on the power district initiative. The proposal under debate would permit organization in rural communities of power districts similar to port districts which might acquire and sell electric energy.

Approval of the initiative was urged by A. S. Goss, master of the state grange; Fred J. Chamberlain of Duvall, Grange leader and W. D. Lane, Seattle councilman. Chamberlain related the history of the initiative charging that the "same old gang is down here again" to fight the measure, which it has blocked for the past eight years.

Governor Hartley was an interested spectator at the hearing. Resolutions for joint conferences of Washington and Oregon legislature committees on fisheries and automobile registration were approved yesterday by the legislature.

The senate passed a resolution for a conference on registration of automobiles so that law on the subject can be identical in the two states.

High schools throughout the state are already sending in their lists of upper class students who have been chosen this year to attend the sixth annual educational exposition at Oregon State College February 22 and 23. Dr. William S. Taylor, dean of the school of education at University of Kentucky, will be the leading visiting speaker and counselor at the coming exposition. Last year 127 schools sent more than 700 representatives to the exposition.

TUCKER CONDUCTS LARGE FOX FARM ON DEAD INDIAN

ASHLAND, Jan. 28.—(Special)—Arthur Tucker, who bought the old Spencer ranch over the summit of the Dead Indian mountain a year or two ago, has probably the largest fox farm in the county and few animals now plans to make his farm one of the largest in the state eventually. Jim Grieves, owner and operator of the Prospect hotel on Rogue River, is said to be planning a fox farm to be developed near his hotel. The industry is creating a good deal of interest in this part of the state, said to be well adapted to the raising of good fur-bearing foxes.

His only shelter from the cold winds during the previous night had been a small piece of canvas. He was found by William Drummond, superintendent of the highway maintenance crew, who took the lad to the Siskiyou patrol station, where he was made most comfortable and then taken to Ashland for medical treatment.

He was on his way to Long Beach, but had become so tired and weakened from hard walking on slippery roads and from lack of food that he fell by the roadside where he remained until found.

OREGON STUDENTS TO HAVE CONTEST FOR BEST TALKER

Oregon high school students will hereafter receive encouragement toward excellence in public speaking through a state-wide extemporaneous speaking and interpretation contest, details of which have just been announced through the department of public speaking and dramatics at Oregon State college following more than a year devoted to perfecting a plan in cooperation with state educational officials.

The state contest will be sponsored by the forensic and dramatic honor societies on the state college campus who will provide cash prizes for the winners in the state finals and certificates of award for all those who advance to the finals.

The organization plan of the contest, which has received the approval of Charles A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction, divides the state into 15 districts, each with a local superintendent. High schools in these districts will hold their contest early in March, each school being represented by one entrant in extemporaneous speaking and one in interpretive reading.

The final state contest each year will then be held at Corvallis, where the contestants will be the guests of Delta Sigma Rho and National Collegiate players, the two honor societies. The winner of each branch of the contest will receive a $50 cash prize.

Management of the contest will be in the hands of an executive committee, consisting this year of Superintendent Howard, Dr. Earl W. Wells, assistant professor of public speaking at the college; R. E. Turner, Dallas school superintendent; Rex Putman, principal of Redmond high school; Esther Hettinger, instructor in English, of Marshfield; Helen Woodward, Portland, president of Delta Sigma Rho and Henry Fitzpatrick, president of National Collegiate Players. Districts include: Ninth, Josephine, Jackson and part of Douglas.

SMALL CURRENCY WILL MAKE BOW EARLY NEXT JULY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Smaller pocketbooks will be the vogue beginning July 1, 1929. Cash registers and tills also will display shrinking contours and pay envelopes probably will be considerably thinner.

The date has been set tentatively for issuance of the new and smaller size United States currency.

Federal Reserve banks will be the issuing body for both greenbacks and yellowbacks reduced one-third in size from the present bills.

The treasury department regards the one-third shrinkage as a profit, however, expecting to save that proportion of the present expense of printing and servicing bills. There will be no change in the intrinsic value or denomination.

Issues of the old size currency will cease next April 30 and for two months demands for currency will be met by Federal Reserve banks from new or circulated old-size bills.

During this period the public may find an unusual number of badly worn bills in circulation, but when July 1 dawns the new small currency will be its crackling if diminutive appearance.

Even after July 1, some old bills will continue to change hands, due to problems involved in cancellation and redemption, but the treasury will require an early date redemption of all old currency as it reaches Federal Reserve banks.

National bank currency will not be included in the initial distribution, pending decision by congress as to whether it is to be retired.

SCIENTISTS CONSUME ELECTRICAL BERRIES

PARIS, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A light but expensive lunch of electrically ripened strawberries, beauteous the labors of the Academy of sciences today.

The berries were produced at a meeting as an illustration of the feasibility of making different plants grow rapidly by artificial light. Two research workers, Georges Truffaut and M. Thurey-Esson, took only 40 days to bring the berries to maturity as against 80 days required by old soil.

The strawberries came high, however, it costing five dollars a berry to produce them. But the academicians found them no less delicious for that reason.
