

OFFICERS ENROUTE LODGEPOLE CABIN TO PROBE DEATH

James Conroy, a trapper, is dead in his cabin at Lodgepole near the foot of Mt. Pitt either as the result of accidental shooting or suicide. Located in a section covered by a deep snow 16 miles from Butte Falls, Deputy Sheriff Louis Jennings along with Deputy Constable Joy Walker left Butte Falls early this morning on horses, accompanied by men familiar with the country, for the isolated cabin, the tragic story of which is set to be unfolded.

Conroy is said to have resided at the cabin for most of the winter with his wife, who walked to Butte Falls yesterday evening to call the officers. She left with them this morning on her return trip to the cabin, from which the officers are not expected to return until late this evening. Butte Falls residents this afternoon knew no details of the tragedy.

The greater part of the trip is through timber covered by over three feet of snow and requires the services of a guide to avoid the danger of getting lost.

WORKMEN FIXING CITY PARK WALKS

A crew of city workmen today began the labor of reconstructing all the cross-walks in the city park, each of which will be torn up and made of uniform width, edged on each side with two by four planking and be given a new top covering of granite.

This improvement will much enhance the beauty of the park as the walks in some places had been widened or narrowed by crowds tramping over and wearing away the grass. However, with the straight planked edges and new facing the walks can hereafter be kept in trim shape. The first walk to be thus improved is the one in the northwest section, and the other walks will receive like treatment in order, as fast as possible. The bare spots around the fountain will also be resurfaced and re-sected.
