

Local and Personal

Forgetting that today was a local holiday, Lincoln's birthday, a number of Medford and county residents called at the county court house during the day, to find the doors locked, and quite a number of people were greatly disappointed when they attempted to visit local banks on business and found them locked tight. The postoffice was open and business as usual as Lincoln's birthday is not one of the national holidays.

LIFE OF LINCOLN IS WINING THEME AT ROTARY CLUB

The memory of Abraham Lincoln provided the theme for an inspired talk given by Irving Lansing before the Rotary club at Hotel Medford this noon. Mr. Lansing did not go into the history of the great Emancipator's life and activities, but gave rather the influence his existence and personality exerted on the growing nation in that day and since that time.

He showed how Lincoln saved and safeguarded national unity, making it possible for the progress of this nation now in the scope of world affairs. He named the three outstanding governments of this age, as being indicative of three issues—the Russian Soviet government, Mussolini's fascist government, and the American "democracy of the individual." The last, he said, would occupy the most attention of future historians.

Abraham Lincoln, according to the speaker, was a strong advocate of the individualistic type of government, and pleaded for the rights of the individual upon numerous occasions.

E. C. Corr, program chairman, called on the club members to rise and do honor to William Lyman, the only member present who had answered the call of Lincoln, and had personally met the Civil war president.

CLARENCE EVANS TO STOCK BUSTER BROWN SHOE LINE

Medford is to have a new business establishment in the opening of the Buster Brown shoe store on South Central avenue, opposite the Craterian theatre, by Clarence H. Evans, well known Medford resident. The store room, the former quarters of the Steverson's Army Goods store, is being remodeled and is being equipped with the latest and up-to-date fixtures. The local establishment is one more unit added to the many hundreds of Buster Brown stores operating throughout the country. The opening date will be announced later.

The store will feature shoes for men, women and children in the latest styles for every occasion, with each pair guaranteed for factory defects and for reasonable wear. This line has been sold in Medford for years and was featured by the Golden Rule store, which sold out in Medford over a year ago.

Mr. Evans, who will be the local manager, is thoroughly experienced in the shoe business and he is a graduate of the American School of Practicoles. For many years he was connected with the shoe department of the Golden Rule store in Medford and was manager of the Ashland store for six years. He arrived in Medford in 1919 and is well known throughout the valley.

ELK TEMPLE CAFE REOPENED TODAY

The members of the Elk temple who have been accustomed for years to enjoy their Sunday lunches at the Elk club restaurant, are happy again as the restaurant, which had been closed for the past two weeks, began functioning this noon again, this time under the management of Mr. Steverson, famed as a fine chef, and they are able to again resume their daily routine with a glass of beer and a card game after lunch. The luncheon hours are from 11:30 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Not only that, but the handsome dining room in the Elk temple building presents an unusually inviting appearance, as during the two weeks the dining room was closed, the room was entirely redecorated.

ROTARIANS HONOR WILLIAM LYMAN LINCOLN PROGRAM

William (Edly) Lyman, 81, local veteran of the Civil war was paid special honor at the Rotary club luncheon at Hotel Medford this noon, due to the special Lincoln program, which recalled his having followed the call of the Civil war president at that time.

Mr. Lyman was a soldier in the Twenty-ninth Iowa regiment, having enlisted at the age of 17. His last post Lincoln's three sons, brothers, in the law office of General Dodge in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and said that the most impressive feature of the future president was his "open, unshut, mouth, were hard to forget.

"When Lincoln stood up to make a speech—and I heard him upon various occasions—my opinion is that it was going to be worth listening to," said Mr. Lyman. "He had neither a halting way of beginning, nor was he decidedly unimpressive. But the very force of his convictions—once he got into his subject, lighted up his face and swung his voice right into the hearts of his hearers." He said those who claim that Lincoln was a hoarse, and rattles him as the best looking and one of the most distinctly pleasing personalities he had ever met.

The local man said he was down in the interior of Alabama at the time of Lincoln's assassination, and learned the news only when he and other soldiers saw a fleet passing with flags at half-mast, as the fleet came past to the shore a long board was thrown out over the water, to which was attached a newspaper telling of the assassination of the president, which took place 10 days before.

POULTRY CLINIC MEDFORD, FEB. 18

Dr. E. L. Grubb, graduate of the Kansas State Agricultural college and former veterinary inspector, U. S. bureau of animal husbandry, will hold a poultry clinic in the basement meeting room of the Medford hotel, Monday, February 18, at 2:30 p. m. This clinic should prove to be a very interesting afternoon for poultry men as Dr. Grubb will treat on poultry diseases, their causes and prevention. Dr. Grubb has had wide experience in his line of work and is being brought to Medford through the efforts of the Monarch Seed & Feed Co., one of southern Oregon's leading poultry supply houses.

"It should be understood by poultry keepers," states Mr. Miksche "that this clinic is absolutely free to all who wish to attend and there will be nothing sold or offered to sale."

Dr. Grubb in his work takes actual examples of diseased birds, holds a post mortem showing how to distinguish diseases through the use of the post mortem.

Mr. Miksche says if any poultry keeper has any birds in a flock that he would pay him to create one of the sick fowls and bring it to Dr. Grubb for a post mortem.

Dr. Grubb held a clinic in Medford a year ago and spoke before a large and appreciative audience, and those who have heard him will welcome the opportunity of attending another of his clinics.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER FEATURES BIRTHDAY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Altho there is no formal celebration of Lincoln's birthday here today by the populace, Duro Nature, seeming to notice this fact, made up for the lack by turning out with an observance all her own, providing one of the finest winter days of any year, with crisp air, strong sunshine, dress under foot and just enough of a faint breeze to lightly stir up the flags flying from the poles along the curb in the business section, and those flying elsewhere through the city.

Although there is no formal celebration in the city beyond the flying of flags, the owning of the tanks, squares, city and court house offices because of its being a legal holiday and the Lincoln day radio program over KATL this evening, many Medford people will take in the Lincoln club banquet at Ashland this evening.

As usual on a local holiday many people forgot that the banks, courts, city and hall offices would be closed all day and only remembered it when they visited those places to transact business.

TREMAINE ARREST NOT ASKED BY TENGWALD

Captain Carl V. Tengwald of Company A, National Guard, had nothing to do with the arrest of Harlan J. Tremaine, the youth taken into custody on the allegation that during a basketball game at the Armory Saturday night he purloined a pair of shoes and a fountain pen from one of the basement rooms in the armory. The janitor of the building was responsible for the arrest. Nothing has yet been done with Tremaine, who is in the county jail awaiting the disposition of his case, but if further investigation establishes him guilty of the Saturday night theft, he will probably be returned to the state training school, as he was on parole from that institution.

LINCOLN DAY RADIO PROGRAM ON TONIGHT

A special Lincoln's birthday radio program is to be broadcast during Capitol hour, from 8 to 10 p. m. tonight. Much interest has been shown in this unique historical program, especially among the school students, who will find it of special value in their study of the great Emancipator.

In arranging this production, Miss Helen Norris has dramatized some of the interesting events of Lincoln's early life, many of which will be entirely new to the local radio audience.

A large cast of Capote players has been busily working in choosing and an excellent performance is anticipated. Appropriate musical selections in keeping with the early eighties will add to the enjoyment of the attractive Capote radio offering which starts promptly at 8 p. m.
