MEXICO CITY.—(Special.)—The government is studying a proposal for the purchase of several new war vessels, of small type and speedy. They would be used principally in chasing smugglers. The warships now in service for the most part are out of date and slow, with the result that smugglers, utilizing speedier craft, easily outdistance their pursuers.

FIRST SHIPMENTS BY UNITED AIR EXPRESS TAKE WING TODAY

Hailed as another big forward step in the history of air transportation, planes carrying the first air-shipments of United Air Express took off today from cities of the Pacific coast and the south-west.

These great cargo planes wing their way from city to city, covering at 199 miles an hour the territory extending from Seattle, via (and New Mexico to El Paso, Texas, Medford, to San Diego, and from there carry cargoes of packages up southern California across Arizona, to 200 pounds in weight.

trucks, providing a parcel delivery service in eight Pacific coast cities. All air-express packages are delivered by United Parcel Trucks to airport and picked up at landing airport and delivered to consignees.

The new United Air Express represents a consolidation of the express facilities of several existing air lines into one system, and has contracted with several large aerial transportation companies, thus covering the entire coast and east to El Paso. The Maddux Air Lines, Union Air Lines, Standard Air Lines and Pickwick Air Lines, are already in the combine. By the united plan, expansion to cover the whole United States is merely a matter of making contracts with additional air lines.

To illustrate the new low rates, a 5-pound package could be sent from Medford to San Francisco for $1.50. The United Air rate for this distance is 20¢ a pound, plus a unit charge of 50¢ a package. The former express rate for the same package was double. The new rates include truck delivery to consignees and insurance. This shows the advantage of rush deliveries for broken parts of machinery, orders for immediate delivery in any line of merchandise, anti-toxins to diseased livestock areas and any other rush orders.

In Medford arrangements for packages must be made at the airport, as the new company does not have an office in Medford.

Of interest to the world war veterans in general of Medford is the news that two homesteads, one in Josephine county and the other in Douglas county, have been opened to homestead entry, subject to preference rights of veterans of the World War. The piece in Josephine county is described as 8 1/2 of NW 1/4 of section 15, township 35 S., range 7 west. It lies about Jump-off-Joe creek in Josephine county and includes 80 acres.
