The poor steelhead gets no recognition by Oregon as a game fish and a valuable tourist asset. It is better, according to the legislature, to realize as fully as possible from this natural resource immediately and let the future take care of itself. We, who know the steelhead, feel this to be a grievous error of judgment, but of course fish can't vote. — Grants Pass Courier.

Prospects for the establishment of an auto checking station at the Klamath junction are still good, according to Sheriff Ralph Jennings, who is looking forward for some action to be taken by the secretary of state's office as soon as the state legislature adjourns. If the state is willing to cooperate in the establishment of such station, Jackson county will probably be willing to construct temporary buildings at least to house the station, which is planned to be beneficial in the apprehension of fugitives from justice and prevention of crime. All out of state cars would be forced to register there upon entering Oregon.

Obituary

JONES—Melvin DeWitt Jones passed away at his home in Jacksonville, Ore., February 27, 1929, after a long illness, at the age of 64 years, four months and 20 days. Mr. Jones was born near Ruch, Ore., October 7, 1864, and during his early life he lived on a farm. Later he moved to Jacksonville, where he met Nettie Fields and on February 24, 1890, they were united in marriage. To this union was born one son, Floyd Gilbert, who died in 1916. Mr. Jones was city marshal of Jacksonville for 15 years.

He leaves to mourn him, besides his wife, two brothers and two sisters, Charles Jones of Weed, Cal., D. L. Jones of Medford, Milinda Hagen of Roseburg, and Mrs. Fred Kleinhammer of Medford.

The funeral services will be held at the Perl funeral home Friday at 2:30, with Rev. T. L. Thuemler officiating. Interment in the Jacksonville cemetery.

ELECTRICITY SEEN AS AID TO FARM

Clyde Higgins of the Copco commercial department made an interesting talk on the "Relations of Electricity to Agriculture" today before the Thursday noon meeting of the Copco forum. Mr. Higgins who has just returned from a week's course at O. S. C., conducted by the Oregon Oregon Committee on the Relations of Electricity to Agriculture," told of many new developments in electrical appliances to farming which proved of interest to all present.

The slogan of the Oregon committee is "Farming is an Industry and Electricity is the Hired Hand of the Farm" according to the speaker who outlined the activities of his committee in increasing the efficiency and cutting the cost of present farming methods by the use of modern electrical equipment. The school has made an intensive study of farming and declare that a minimum business of at least $2000 a year should be done by any successful farmer if his farm is to be put on a paying basis. Volume of production at a decreased production cost is as important to agriculture as any other form of industry and the school advocates the greater use of electrical equipment to bring about these results.

Another important application of electricity is in the farm home where through the use of electric cooking, cleaning, refrigeration, etc., the housewife is relieved of much of her housework. This means not only more time for recreation but also more time for the many outside duties and chores which confront the average woman on the farm.

The subject of irrigated pasture land was discussed by Mr. Higgins who stated that this plan is being successfully carried on in the Willamette valley during the dry months. The important part played by electricity in dairying and poultry raising was also mentioned by the speaker.

The Oregon committee on the "Relation of Electricity to Agriculture is regarded as one of the most efficient committees of its kind in the U. S. Proof of this fact was recently demonstrated when Geo. W. Kable, former director of the Oregon committee was selected to direct the new national R. E. A. committee project which is located in Maryland, across the river from Washington, D. C.

Guests at this noon's luncheon included Frank Redman and A. E. Halliday of Portland.
