

ROTARIANS TELL PET HOBBIES AT NOON LUNCHEON

Local Rotarians rode their hobby at full speed this noon, as part of the entertaining program planned for the day by E. C. Corn, program chairman.

Who ever dreamed that George Hunt was the victim for an all-consuming passion for planting rare species of shrubs and trees? This was his confession before brother Rotarians, who bowed him down in mock decision in the midst of the interesting testimony.

Clyde Eakin is "crazy over grasses"—all kinds of grasses, but in particular, post bulbosa, which he plants feverishly at every opportunity.

Helen Fluhner, from earliest infancy, went wild over the saxophone. Having been suppressed in his early youth, he started a music store.

Nothing makes Walter Leverette so happy, as the opportunity to help a brother Rotarian—even to the extent of guiding prospects past his own real estate and insurance office, into the office of Rotarian rivals. Horace Bromley likes nothing better than attending committee meetings—and has written a little song to the music of "Let Us Gather at the River, entitled "Let Us Gather at the Chamber." He sings this on his way to each meeting.

These were only some of the interesting hobbies confessed to today. They will be continued at the meeting next week. Len Becker, scout executive, the newest Italy Rotarian, was formally introduced to the club by Attorney Frank Newman.

FRIENDS REGRET REMOVAL OF MR. AND MRS. F. COOK

It is with much regret that their many friends view the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cook from Medford to Portland. The furniture of their home was shipped yesterday to Portland, and Mrs. Cook moved to the Hotel Medford to remain there until she leaves the city for Portland tomorrow to join her husband, who has been there for some time past.

Judge William Colvig, who has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Cook, on his return today or tomorrow, will make his home with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Warner, Medford. Cook and Warner are his daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook have resided here since their marriage six or more years ago, and the reason for the removal to Portland is that Mr. Cook's business interests are in that city. Miss Rawen Gale, daughter of Mrs. Cook is a student at the University of Oregon, and Mrs. Cook's son, Winthrop Gale, is a midshipman at the United States naval academy at Annapolis, Md. Daughter and son will probably call Portland their home with their mother, making a distinct loss of a well known family to Medford.

The Cook home on Laurel street will be leased and probably ultimately sold.

NEW PARK CHIEF GOES TO CONFER ON CRATER DUTY

Superintendent E. C. Solinsky of Crater National park, will leave tonight for San Francisco en route to Yosemite National park, and Superintendent C. G. Thomson of Yosemite park will either accompany him or will depart tomorrow for the destination. It is pending on word he receives from Director of National Parks Albright, who is now in Washington, D. C., on national park business.

As to when Superintendent Solinsky returns to Medford or whether Colonel Thomson returns with him, will not be known until they have had a conference at Yosemite park with Director Albright, but if the latter is much delayed on his return to Yosemite from Washington, Superintendent Solinsky hopes to return to Medford for a week, to resume his new duties here and later return to Yosemite for the conference. The trouble the two new superintendents are encountering in getting squared away on duties in their respective parks is that they are awaiting this conference with Director Albright, who with his family is held up in the superintendent's dwelling at Yosemite. Until he moves out of that at Yosemite Colonel Thomson and family cannot move into the Crater National park superintendent's dwelling on Queen Anne avenue in Medford.

Until Director Albright removes the two superintendents of parks cannot move. However, the removals will take place by early in April at the latest, it is expected.

EIGHT INCHES SNOW 23 YEARS AGO TODAY

Just 23 years ago today, there was eight inches of snow on the streets of Medford. To substantiate this testimony, Dr. L. Dandy, local dentist, produced a picture taken March 12, 1906, in front of the Kundy residence on South Central.

The roof of the house was covered with a heavy blanket of snow, and the picket fence around the place held its share of the heavy covering. The streets were banked high, and the atmosphere looked bleak indeed.

JOINT MEETING O. N. G. MEN HELD

Over 150 people were present last night at the joint meeting of the Ashland and Klamath Falls battalions, battery D, coming from Klamath Falls and battery B, from Ashland. Klamath Falls was represented by 25 men, who took part in a manual of arms contest with the Ashland battery. The contest ended in a draw. General George White of the Oregon National Guard, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas E. Hulse of Salem and Captain Carl Tegsvold and Major Ralph Covvill of this city were among the local men present.

Screen Life in Hollywood

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Whatever else of good or bad may be said about the movie-makers, they certainly cannot be charged with neglecting their reading or failing to note the trend of public interest.

"Wings" and other air pictures have been riding high on the wave of aviation enthusiasm, and the "Wolf" or "Wall Street" may be expected to profit by the stock boom.

"Submarine" is a dramatized version of a story which is being made into a picture shortly after the great naval disaster of the terrible mystery. Now comes "Zeppelin," going into production within a few months after the famous trans-oceanic voyage of the Graf, and while polar exploration by aircraft continues an absorbing topic to the air-minded public, with "Comandante" they are now engaged in an epic adventure in the south polar region.

What Next?

The producers, Tiffany-Stahl, by the way, are probably anxious in having the opportunity to combine in pictures, if they choose, all the latest advances, science has given to the screen, as they claim to have exclusive rights on a new and simple process for "third dimension" photography.

They will use sound and dialog in "Zeppelin," and with the addition of the new novelty and a few scenes in color, could offer a "modern of wonders" to the picture fans. However, the latter two embellishments will not be used in the present project, although such a picture, with "third dimension," will be produced ere long, one official says.

Tearle in Come-Back

"Zeppelin" will mark the return to the movies of Conway Tearle, who will co-star with Claire Windsor. Tearle, until two and a half years ago a favorite leading man of the screen, at that time began suddenly to find the doors of the studios closed to him, due perhaps to an attitude of "independence," which was said to have made him unpopular with producers.

At any rate, he returned then to the stage on which he had first made his reputation, and was about to depart again on a vaudeville tour when the producers of "Zeppelin" offered him the role. Tearle is hoping to make a permanent screen "come-back" in the vehicle.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Herbert C. Plummer

WASHINGTON—A valiant effort has been made by the designers of the national capitol building to make sure that members of congress who see Washington on the important committee strike strictly to business.

In the various committee rooms the artist has welded his hands of a new way with the result that an atmosphere has been created in these rooms entirely in keeping with the subjects that are brought up for discussion from time to time.

Aside from the fact these embellishments serve to keep the legislative mind from wandering, it is also true that these rooms are among the most beautiful parts of the capitol. One's time may be spent profitably in making a tour of inspection.

For example, in the house military affairs room is to be found a series of paintings of the acts of the United States. The same force in the senate wing is decorated with five striking frescos by the great Bruni. One depicts the Boston massacre, one the battle of Lexington, another the death of Wooster, one Washington at Valley Forge, and another the storming of Stony Point.

The Indian There

The scheme of decoration in the house territories room is especially noteworthy. The story is woven in Indian and wild life. The negotiations between the United States and France, which led to the Louisiana purchase afford the theme for an exterior decoration of the senate territories room.

The house Indian affairs room has a collection of paintings by Colonel Eastman of scenes among the Sioux. The senate committee which considers the same subject meets in a room adorned by a painting of Columbus and an Indian maiden. On its walls and ceilings are some exquisite fine and fruit pieces.

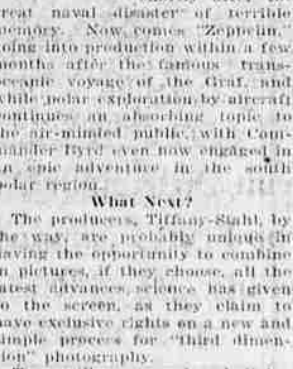

Granddaddy exercised all of his skill in decorating the agricultural room of the house. Here are pictured Cincinnati, called from his plow to the dictatorship of Rome, and Putnam summoned to his part in the revolution.

And Harvest Scenes

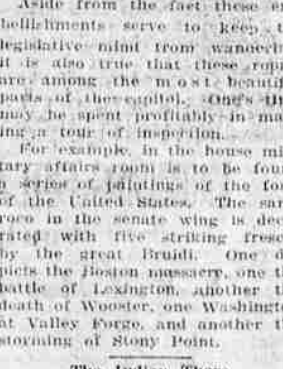

There are also ancient and modern harvest scenes—Flora (spring), Ceres (summer), Bacchus (autumn), and Boreas (winter). Portraits of Washington and Jefferson, both farmers, and other details make this one of the most richly adorned rooms of the building.

Above 114 doors of the senate foreign relations room is a fresco copy of West's painting of the signing of preliminary articles of peace between the United States and Great Britain at Paris, November 12, 1782. The walls are portraits of 215 Allen, Cameron and Sumner, in their three chairmen of the committee.

High Blood Pressure

The subject of blood pressure—either high or low—is a very important one as it is estimated that about 30 per cent of persons above 27 years of age are subject to disturbances from this cause.

There are various drugs known to physicians which lower the blood pressure, yet the effects of such drugs are not permanent since they do not relieve the real underlying cause of the trouble.

For that reason you should not purchase remedies advertised to correct high blood pressure unless your physician recommends them for your use.

You are always safest in going to your doctor for advice whenever medical help is needed.

Pacific Air Transport Planes Lead All Others

For the week ending March 9 there were 16 Pacific Air Transport planes that landed and took off at the Oakland airport. There were only 25 planes that landed and took off from the other two lines that landed there regularly during that period.

The P. A. T. planes fly on the line through Medford, which shows the necessity for a new airport.

Passenger landings on the Oakland port for the week were 177 and there were 258 short trip passengers carried from that port.
