Conrad Nagel at Rialto Tomorrow

"The Michigan Kid" comes to the Rialto theater tomorrow. It has story, setting and cast, all charmingly combined by the director's deft flair for colorful romance.

Rex Beach's novel of the same name furnished the story. It deals with the adventure of a straight gambler in Alaska during the gold rush of 1898 and is generally considered Beach's most vigorous work. Conrad Nagel appears as the gambler, a man who despite his calling is honest and lovable. Renee Adoree is the girl who finds him.

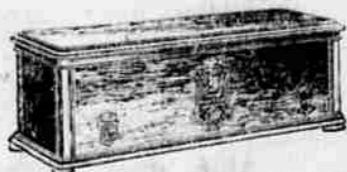

One of the highlights of the film version is the escape down a river flowing through a blaring forest. This sequence is done in natural colors, giving a spectacular dramatic effect. Springfield.—P.H. completed on east approach to local bridge. Installation of sewer unit will be main improvement program in Klamath Falls this year. Mrs. Nettie Thompson and son,
