

APPRECIATION FOR DR. MALMGREN BY JOSEPH W. ANGELL

As a friend and formerly a close neighbor and pastor for several years of Dr. Theo. J. Malmgren of Phoenix, Ore., it is a privilege to write a few words of loving tribute to him as a true man, a real friend and a Christian physician whose loss from among us will be long and deeply mourned, and whose place in the community and in a multitude of hearts can never be quite filled.

As one whose life it was to help others, both professionally and personally, and who found his happiness in so doing; and as a physician ministering constantly and successfully to a wide circle of patients, extending into Medford and Ashland and over a large part of Jackson County, he was truly a "family doctor" and friend such as can very seldom be found nowadays, loved, trusted and cherished by all whom he had helped or who knew him at all.

And with all this, he was indeed able and successful as a physician, well read, and one who continued reading and "keeping up," even in the midst of a very heavy practice. Indeed, many of us who knew him intimately will always feel that it was his life of unremitting (and often untiring) toil and of self-sacrificing service as a "country doctor," which literally wore him out and brought on the heart attack from which he died early last Wednesday morning, after a day of heavy professional service reaching beyond midnight, as was so often the case with him.

As his pastor for over four years—and, with my wife, frequently one of his patients for twice that time—I rejoice in this privilege of adding our tribute of love, deepest respect and warmest friendship to Dr. Malmgren, and of loving sympathetically and earnestly praying for his family and those who will miss him.

For him, I believe, because of his own personal faith in Christ and his giving himself unreservedly after the example of his Savior and Lord, to going about doing good and helping all that were oppressed, "it is far better to depart and to be with Christ."

For us, it may be so, too, in our turn, if we so believe and live, and now we have the promise of comfort and help, "I will not leave you comfortless, I will come into you."

JOSEPH W. ANGELL, Glendale, Ore.

PLAN TEXTBOOKS SHOW RESOURCES NORTHWEST AREA

An outline of a textbook covering the natural resources, development possibilities and the economic aspects of the Pacific northwest, proposed especially for use in the high schools of this part of the country, has been presented to E. L. Hedrick, superintendent of public schools, and to C. T. Baker, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, by Clarence B. May, an instructor in Grant high school, Portland, executive secretary of the Northwest Committee on Economic Research. The book is endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce, Governor L. L. Patterson, C. A. Howard, superintendent of public instruction, and many others.

Mr. May, in his outline to the Chamber of Commerce, stated: "The boys and girls in the schools at this time are going to be the future business men and women of the Pacific Northwest. The problems that you are wrestling with will become their problems. Try to visualize what will happen in this Pacific Northwest in the next 30 years. Manufacturing and foreign commerce are carrying us into all the parts of the world. Only trained minds and skilled hands will be able to administer the future of this region to the best of advantage."

"It appears that it would be desirable to have one course in the schools, the purpose of which would be to inform the young people about the land in which they are living and the future of which will be in their hands."

Mrs. Carol Ramsey, an instructor in the Medford high school, has been named to assist in gathering information regarding Medford and surrounding territory for this book.

LAKE OF WOODS ROAD WORK TO BEGIN NEXT WEEK, SAYS RYNNING

Construction work is scheduled to begin next week on the proposed Eagle Point-Lake of the Woods road, involving a distance of 30 miles to the county boundary, not all of which will be new construction, according to County Engineer Paul Rynning today. It will however, be a matter of several weeks before work will begin on the Ashland-Lake of the Woods road, because of the present condition of the ground.

The Ashland road will be widened and given a good surface, making the drive to the lake more of a pleasure than it has been in the past. However, this work will not be completed this year, but will cover a period ranging from four to five years before the road will be in perfect condition. The same length of time will hold true for the Eagle Point route, on which approximately four miles of new road may be constructed this year.

Mrs. Thaden, accompanied by Emory Bronte, Pacific ocean liner, and head of aviation for the Associated Oil company, have been on a week's aerial tour of the Pacific Northwest.

SOUTHERN OREGON PRESBYTERY GETS IVERSON'S REPORT

A report of the work accomplished in the Southern Oregon Presbytery from April 1, 1928, to April 1, 1929, has been prepared by Rev. E. Iverson, Sunday school missionary for the presbytery, and sent to the churches of the presbytery. It reads as follows:

With gratitude for divine blessing and with hearty appreciation for the co-operating and efficient aid of pastors, Sunday school superintendents and other Sunday school workers for their continued loyal support, your Sunday school missionary submits the following report:

In looking over the work in the Southern Oregon Presbytery this past year one is impressed with the great need for missionary work, even if one knows that in the past years the settlers are becoming more accustomed to religious training.

We find special reasons for gratitude in the fact that every phase of Sunday school activity in the presbytery has experienced a new stimulus and giving indications of encouraging advancements. The organized Bible class movement has been stimulated. Home departments and cradle rolls have been started, family religion has been emphasized and the promotion of our daily vacation Bible school has shown advance over previous years.

The following work has been accomplished this past year: Sunday schools organized, 5; revised, 2; teachers and officers, 26; pupils, 251; schools visited and aided, 21; miles traveled, 16,758; families visited, 561; addresses delivered, 132; conversions reported, 58; literature given away, 104 copies; Bibles and Testaments given away, 19; evangelistic meetings held, 28; teachers' training classes organized, 5; workers' conferences held, 28; schools of methods attended, 12; cradle rolls organized, 13; home departments organized, 5; C. E. societies organized, 5; Sunday school institutes held, 5; adult Bible classes organized, 5; daily vacation Bible schools, 7; number of community religious services, 8.

You see from the report that it has been the Sunday school missionary's privilege to bring the glad message to discouraging hearts in lonely homes and little hamlets, where they have no opportunity, many of them, of even attending a Sunday school. While we're rejoicing in the past our faces are now turned toward the future, the need of missionary work in our state and land are still great. Respectfully yours, E. IVERSON.

DURANT CAR USED AS BROADCASTING STATION BY ARMS

This unique vehicle is noisy from the standpoint of both sight and sound. The sides of the truck, which serves as a home as well as a broadcasting station for the announcer and his manager, B. F. Shepherd, are a screen so far as color harmony is concerned—with the exception of a suggestion of a past time of any futuristic tendencies. On the top of the truck are four huge metallic amplifiers, which carry the programs broadcast from within, to parts unknown. As for the announcer, his whisper is said to carry from southern Oregon to New York at times. And when he speaks out loud—an audience gathers for miles around to find out what it's all about.

The busy-flying studio is at home in the Durant garage here, and has been sending out orthophonic programs throughout the morning and afternoon. At noon, it went on parade up Main street and down 4th at the Mail Tribune, where the announcer gave Medford people a very entertaining and specially arranged musical and announcements concerning the Durant company and its activities.

Mr. Arms was formerly connected with the Warner Brothers broadcasting station at Hollywood, as well as being employed as technical man for M. G. M. and other movie studios.

As the Durant studio makes its way through the northwest, Mr. Arms and his manager take moving pictures of the scenic points encountered. That they had received some beautiful shots of the Rogue River valley, and a real snow storm in action, was a state-manned by the men this morning.

They will leave tomorrow for Seattle, Vancouver and northwestern points, returning to Hollywood via Salt Lake. Mr. Arms described plans for a new traveling station, which will carry its own pullman accommodations for eight people, a shower bath, a kitchen and all the comforts of a home, now being constructed in Los Angeles by the Durant company. This vehicle will be used on the next trip, according to the announcer.

A final decision is to be reached by the county court at its meeting next Wednesday on the construction of the Midway road north of this city, joining the Pacific highway near the Dr. C. T. Sweeney property, giving residents of Sams Valley and Table Rock a closer route to Medford. The petition, with 106 names for the new road was given its second reading several weeks ago, giving the county court the option of reaching a decision in 60 days.

There has been considerable opposition against the construction by owners of property included in the right of way on grounds the road would ruin their home sites and truck garden spots and in other ways decrease the value of the land. The owners had been allowed amounts for damages but they claimed the sums are too low for the damage likely to be incurred.

The entire northern end of the county is interested in the decision and it is being anxiously awaited.

TRUANT PROBLEM FACED BY COUNTY SCHOOL OFFICIALS

Truancy is one of the current problems of the county school superintendent's office and it is possible warrants for the arrest of several parents in different parts of the county may be ordered to force them to send their children to school. The parents, when asked by the office to send the children, have made many plausible excuses, based largely on sickness, but from henceforth, excuses will not be accepted, and parents may expect a "hard boiled" attitude if they persist in refusing to co-operate with the school office. The students in some cases are in the primary grades and are in need of early education, while others are in the seventh and eighth grades.

(By E. H. Strheim) CENTRAL POINT, Ore., April 6.—(Special.) John Anderson, worthy master of Central Point Grange, having had his leg crushed by a tractor last week, was not able to be at his post Friday night, but it is hoped he will be able to attend to his duties at the next meeting.

Grange opened by G. M. Tyrrell with another dozen receiving final obligations. The tables under the management of Mrs. John Catey with the help of Mrs. Jim Cornutt, Mrs. Pearl Bonney, Mrs. Hubert Smith, Mrs. Oscar Higdon, Mrs. Edith Jensen, Miss Lola Blackford and Mrs. Irene Blackford, were well and impressively carried out.

The singing during initiation was given by Miss Doris Richardson, Velma McCreedy, Mrs. Paul Martin and Mrs. S. S. Tale. The drill team under Captain Morse Haley put on some fancy work.

During the evening several committees were appointed for county fair work. Lecture hour was taken up by the ladies, and Mrs. Mabel Mack, county demonstration agent, gave a short talk on Better Homes, claiming that better homes make a better nation.

The play given by Mrs. May Richardson, Mrs. Eva Smith, Mrs. Ethel Lathrop and Mrs. Victor Bursell was a roaring success. Elmer Rose gave a violin solo before grange opened and then left for home so that he could look after smulding; there were others in the same occupation.

Grange closed and about 130 were served refreshments, and 12:30 is no time for a farmer to be out.

ASHLAND REGRETS CALLISON LEAVING SOUTHERN OREGON

The departure of Prink Callison, coach of the Medford high school to a position as Freshman coach at the University of Oregon next September, brings from the Ashland Tidings the following editorial:

Not only Medford, but all southern Oregon regrets the resignation of Prink Callison from the coaching position in the Medford high school. Prink Callison built championship teams—each year at the beginning of the season would be heard the plea that Callison hadn't the prospects for a championship team this year—and then when the season was ended it was admitted that Prink made his team win. He taught them football and he coached them in a winning brand of basketball and he coached them in track—to use brains and brawn to the best advantage. With this ability it is only natural that his talents should take him to a wider field. And wherever he goes we will wader Prink Callison will produce winning football teams.
